Aboard the Train.
Infantile Paralysis.
The Real Killer.
What Will America Be?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1927.)

THIS is written on "The Chief," one of many splendidly equipped trains that carry passengers between the two oceans in perfect comfort.

How long will such trains carry the passengers? Railroad men that think would have asked themselves that question could they have seen Will Rogers, traveling as an air passenger, United States mail, roaring over and past the "fast" expresses, leaving them in the distance as the first locomotive left the old stage coaches.

ROGERS paid $406 "postage" on himself from Los Angeles to New York. When the fast express had got well under way, and passengers had settled down for their four nights and a little more than four days coast-to-coast trip, Rogers was in Chicago. When they had gone through luncheon and dinner on their second day Rogers was in New York. By the time they reached New York he was back in California and remember that he was flying slowly, less than 100 miles an hour. Planes already built go 300 miles an hour. Men will soon make the trip from New York to San Francisco between breakfast and dinner time, as a matter of course.

When locomotives came, aged dodos said, "nothing will ever take the place of the stage coach for REAL, RELIABLE TRAVEL."

The first locomotive that made from 20 to 25 miles an hour killed the stage coach. What will the 300-mile-an-hour airplane do to long-distance railroad passenger traffic?

INFANTILE paralysis appeared in the castle inhabited by five-year-old King Michael of Roumania. Immediately the king was carried away to the Carpathian Mountains.

That unfortunately does not mean safety for the baby king. Nobody knows how infantile paralysis comes, what causes it, or how it is implanted in the blood of its victim.

INFANTILE paralysis should interest government, national, state and municipal, more than it seems to do. There are 4,000 cases in the United States now. Nobody knows how the disease starts and spreads. The disease breaks out, nobody knows how or why, in dark city streets and in distant sunlit beautiful valleys, more than thousands of miles from either ocean, and five thousand feet above them.

SUCH a mysterious disease among swine or cattle would be investigated and fought by the government energetically.

The Rockefeller Institute is doing admirable work, but a nation of 115,000,000 should not leave such a fight to the generosity of one man.

YOUNG Wilfred Winters got drunk on moonshine whisky, killed two young women, then killed himself. His grandmother says "before God it was not my grandson that did the killing, but the man that sold him the whisky."

The murder of those girls and the young man's suicide were caused by bootleggers of course. The chief assistant in the killing was a government too feeble to enforce prohibition, too cowardly to admit that it cannot enforce it.

MISS JANE JOHNSON

This is Miss Jane Johnson, 18-year-old ballet dancer, who plunged to her death from the twelfth floor of the Claridge Hotel. Her mother claims that the tragedy was an accident.

4 YEARS FOR SLAYER OF HUSBAND

Mrs. Roxie B. Mumford, who slew her husband with a rolling pin last Easter Sunday, this afternoon was sentenced to serve from two to four years in jail by Visiting Judge W. T. Darr, Jefferson county.

Mrs. Mumford was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter for the death of Joseph B. Mumford, during a drinking bout in their home 1519 Metropolitan street.

Judge Darr said the sentence would start from last April 17, the date upon which she entered jail.

Attorney J. Howard Devlin pleaded for leniency, stating she had been subjected to abuse and was epileptic. Assistant Attorney Roy Ciunk, who prosecuted the case, did not oppose leniency, stating that since the trial he had learned Mrs. Mumford had been subjected to much ill treatment.

LETTER DOOMS SAM

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 21.—Handcuffed and heavily guarded, Sam Jaworski was started back to Pittsburgh today in the custody of five officers, all armed and on the alert for a possible attempt at rescue. Chief of Detectives George Murrin headed the party.

Jaworski was unshaven and unkempt. He was bitterly disappointed at his failure to be allowed bond. He will face seven indictments, including one for murder.

One charges that he provided the revolvers with which his brother Paul and Jack Vasbinder blazed their way out of the Allegheny county jail, where they awaited execution on murder charges.

CONVICT WOMAN, 2 MEN IN BALLOT CHEATING

ELECTION OFFICERS GUILTY

FIRE CAPTAIN CHARLES GOLDEN, Engine Company No. 46, Sandusky street, of 1237 Buena Vista street, aged 40, on fire department 19 years, former Republican chairman of Twenty-second Ward, charged with conspiracy to defraud, making a false election return and failure to deliver ballots and records. CONVICTED ON ALL THREE COUNTS.

J. WILLIAM BOLSTER, aged 72, 1316 Sandusky street, retired city employe and North Side resident since 1860, minority inspector of election, charged with conspiracy to defraud, making false election return and failure to deliver ballots and records. CONVICTED ON ALL THREE COUNTS.

MRS. ANNA CONKLIN, 311 Hemlock street, widow with two daughters, clerk of election board, charged with conspiracy to defraud, making a false election return and failure to deliver ballots and records. CONVICTED ON SECOND COUNT, extreme mercy recommended.

The three members of the election board of the Sixteenth District of the Twenty-second Ward, on trial in Criminal Court on charges of violation of election laws, were found guilty in a sealed verdict opened in Criminal Court this morning.

Charles Golden, fire captain, and J. William Bolster were found guilty on all three counts on which they were tried. Mrs. Anna Conklin, the third defendant, was found guilty of one of the counts, that of making a false return, and the jury recommended the extreme mercy of the court in her case.

The cases are an outgrowth of the primaries of the spring of 1926.

The fraud for which the defendants are convicted first came to light when Frank J. Zak, candidate for Legislature, contested the nomination of his opponent, Daniel Malle. Zak won in a recount and the charge that the ballots in the Sixteenth district were thrown into a sewer was made at that time.

Mrs. Conklin almost collapsed when she heard the verdict read by the jury foreman, Mrs. E. Mathilda McLaughlin, of 215 Eighth avenue, Homestead.

A daughter of Golden was present and burst into tears when the verdict was read.

The jury received the case last night and reached a verdict at 2 o'clock this morning. It was returned when court convened. The jury was composed of six men and six women.

The penalties which the defendants face are maximum fines of $500

POLICE RUSH STUDENTS IN RIOT AT ACADEMY

Police were summoned by a riot call to the Academy Theater this afternoon to quell the exuberance of Pitt students who surged into the burlesque house after a parade downtown.

Anticipating a victory for their university eleven over the Carnegie Institute of Technology, when the two teams meet tomorrow in Pitt stadium for the city championship, the Pitt students, a good portion of them co-eds, paraded through the downtown streets this afternoon and blocked William Penn way for a

RAYMOND WINTER AND WIFE

Mrs. Mildred Winter, Shannon road, Overbrook, was granted a divorce in Common Pleas Court from Raymond Winter, a street car conductor, now in the county jail under conviction of murder for the slaying of two children, Alexander and Helen Sabo of Mollenauer. The children were beaten to death near Mollenauer, about two years ago. Cruel and barbarous treatment was alleged as grounds for the divorce. The state pardon board has appointed a sanity commission to examine Winter. It has not yet reported its findings.

MISSING WOMAN FOUND IN RIVER AT SHARON

SHARON, Pa., Oct. 21.—Believed murdered, the body of Mrs. Martha Truxell, 75, widow of a former Sharon constable, was found floating in Shenango River, belowe West Middlesex, late yesterday. Dead a week or more, an autopsy revealed drowning was not the cause of death, as there was no water in the lungs.

A newspaper clipping regarding the death of Constable John Truxell, published about a year ago, led to the identity of the woman. She had made her home with a daughter, Mrs. Walter G. McCrea, 145 Marshall avenue, Pittsburgh, since the death of her husband.

Two weeks ago she started for Youngstown to visit a granddaughter, Mrs. Margaret Day, but never reached her destination and since then a search has been in progress.

Yesterday the body was seen floating in the Shenango River, a mile and a quarter below West Middlesex. Recent rains had raised the river and Coroner William McGrath and local police had difficulty in securing the body.

After the result of the post mortem was made known the coroner ordered a thorough investigation. There were no marks of violence on the body.

Ruth's Story Delayed

Faulty transmission conditions today kept Ruth Elder, trans-Atlantic flyer, from continuing the story of her spectacular ocean flight in the Sun-Telegraph.

Miss Elder's ship, Lima, on which she is traveling from the Azores, where her rescue ship took her, to Lisbon put in at Ponta Delgada last night, but conditions were so unfavorable that the cables were unable to handle the long chapter of her thrilling narrative in which she tells of the minutes that seemed hours while her wrecked plane rode the crest of heaving seas as the Barendrecht attempted to effect a rescue.

This chapter, perhaps the most absorbing of the entire story of the great adventure, will be printed in the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow.

SCIENTIST WRECKS FALL'S CHIEF DEFENSE POINT

FEAR OF OIL DRAINAGE DENIED

By GEORGE E. DURNO.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Dr. George Otis Smith, director of the Geological Survey, today blasted one of the chief contentions of the Fall-Sinclair defense when he testified there was no danger of drainage from Teapot Dome when the naval oil reserve was leased by Ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall to Harry F. Sinclair.

DEFENSE STRONGHOLD FALLS

The defense has relied greatly upon this point and said it was an impelling reason for the lease.

Under examination by Owen J. Roberts, of the government staff, Smith said Fall call d him into conference and directed him to send an expert to the reserve to investigate drainage conditions. Smith sent K. C. Heald, former he d of the oil and gas section of the bureau.

"Heald reported there was no imminent danger of drainage of Tea: ot Dome," Smith said.

"Did you repo.t this to Fall?" asked Roberts.

"Yes."

"Did he ever again call you into conference on Teapot Dome?"

"No," answered Smith, "that was the last time."

REITERATES REPORT

Heald prepared a memorandum, November 30, 1921, recommendir against leasing of Teapot Dome insofar as drainage was concerned. Roberts read it to the j ry.

Cross-examination failed to shake Smith's testimony in any essent. respect.

Before Smith took the stand, Roberts read an exchange of letters between Fall and the late Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin. The date was April 12, 1922, five days after the lease was signed. Fall inclosed a copy of the lease. La Follette then launched the Senate's investigation of the oil scandals.

GOING UP!

TAUGHT TO USE TOWERS

Members of an instruction squad study equipment. Here is a group gathered around one of the large nozzles used on fire towers to flood the interior of burning buildings in stories too high for an ordinary hose stream to reach. Increased height of buildings has made proficiency in the use of towers a very necessary part of the fire-fighter's makeup.

Sam and Paul with two Pittsburgh payroll robberies and indicated that they intended to make for Uruguay, South America, if they got free. Otherwise the letter suggested they would both end up in a grave.

The letter, written by Jaworski, to a former accomplice, Jim Meshee, now living in Montevideo, Uruguay, was turned over to Inspector Henry J. Garvin, of the Detroit police force, by Federal postal authorities yesterday. The letter was seized in Montevideo before it was delivered to Meshee.

The letter follows in full:

"Dear Friend Jim:

"I received your letter some time ago and did not answer it at once. I will try to tell you the story from the beginning.

[illegible] appened this way: On [illegible], 1925, a job was pulled [illegible] There was a murder in [illegible]

([illegible] ote—I. L. Gump, Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company mine guard, was shot and killed on December 24, 1925, when six gunmen staged a holdup at the company's mines at Mollenauer and escaped with a $48,000 Christmas payroll.)

"Everything was all right. No one was caught. March 11, 1927, a job was pulled for $104,000 around the same place and the same company.

(Editor's Note—A $104,000 payroll holdup occurred at Hillcrest station, near Coverdale, on March 11, 1927. Two armored automobiles carrying a Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company payroll were bombed and five guards were injured. Much of the money was dug up later on a nearby farm.)

"Everything was O. K. and every one got away but Paul. Felix took his Ford and went to Pittsburgh the next day with one of the boys, and Joe, the farmer, drove him to Pittsburgh and came back to take Paul.

"When he got back to the farm the police already had Paul handcuffed. Joe did not come back to the farm. He drove by and saw there were four automobiles in the yard. So he kept on going straight to Pittsburgh.

"Paul got caught, so everyone went their own way. How the police got the tip of it was by the farmer living across from Joe's farm. He seen them coming in with the machine and he read it in the papers the next day and went and telephoned the police. Everyone was gone but Paul and he was waiting to be taken to town.

"When Joe came to Pittsburgh he told the boys what had happened. So he went to Detroit. He came over to his sister's and told her what had happened. She told him to give himself up and tell the police everything and they will not harm him.

"So that is what he did.

"He and his sister walked into the police station and told them what had happened on the farm for the last six years. He told them of the jobs way back in 1922. The $8,000 job, $22,000, 48,000 and then that last one of $104,000. And he told that Paul was on all of the jobs.

"Paul was so mad at him he could kill him, but there was no way out of it, so he pleaded guilty to all of the robberies, to the one that no murder was committed in and not guilty to the one that murder was committed in. So they charged him for the $40,000 job and murder, and found him guilty of it.

"If he would win the charge, they would try him on the $22,000 and the murder. The one you know something about. Felix got $16,000. Every one of the gang got the same, but not one of them ever gave a dime to defend Paul. I haven't even seen one [illegible] them.

[illegible] may be the last letter I'm [illegible] because I'm going to the [illegible] guns. I will give two [illegible] two for myself, and we are going to shoot our way out. If we get out, we may be down there to see you within a short time, and if we don't get out we will be in the graveyard, so by the time you get this letter Paul may be out or the two of us may be dead. I remain, enness among children, and says Republicans and Democrats must take a definite stand on prohibition in 1928.

"SAM PALLAS.

"2727 Yemans avenue, Hamtramck, Mich., U. S. A.

Senator Borah, old - fashioned American, thinks prohibition ought to be enforced, and demands that Republicans and Democrats take a definite stand on prohibition in 1928.

But Republican and Democratic politicians believe in being elected, first, last and all the time, if possible. And they WILL NOT take a definite stand on prohibition in 1928.

WHAT is America, as regards its people, what is it destined to be?

Indians were here first, Columbus came, then the Pilgrim Fathers, determined to worship God as they pleased and to make everybody else worship him as they pleased. They would not recognize today's populations. The city of Chicago contains 450,000 Germans, 400,000 Poles, 200,000 Jews, 300,000 Irish, 200,000 Italians, 200,000 Bohemians and Czecho-Slovaks, 125,000 Swedes, 50,000 Norwegians, and 50,000 Greeks. Not exactly what you would call "pure Nordic."

What type, what civilization will come out of that mixture?

CONVICT THREE IN FRAUD

and imprisonment of three years on each count.

Judge Harry H. Rowand, before whom the case was tried, set the bail at $3,000 for Golden and Bolster and at $1,000 for Mrs. Conklin, after the prisoners had furnished bail. Attorney Charles B. Prichard, defense counsel, intimated an appeal would be taken from the convictions.

CHECK BRIBE CHARGE

Mrs. Conklin and Bolster were members of the Sixteenth district election board. Capt. Golden was a political figure in the Twenty-second Ward, who is charged with having illegally assisted in the conduct of the election.

Numerous charges of attempted bribing of witnesses and others connected with the trial of the defendants are being checked by the District Attorney's office.

A mysterious Charles Carr, listed as the clerk of the election board, figured often in the trial. Carr, whose address given the District Attorney's office, proved to be a vacant lot, was indicted but never apprehended.

Yesterday Mrs. Conklin testified that she never had seen Carr and that as recently as Sunday, October 9, Golden had told her to testify that Carr served on the board, but was sent home because he had become intoxicated.

Golden was the ringleader in the frauds, First Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park sought to show in presenting the state's testimony, and ordered Bolster to "put the works on the ballots, kid," after the returns had been compiled. Golden sat with the board, occupying the seat of a board member, assumed the duties of a board member, and took part in the count, according to the testimony.

ELECTION REVERSED

The fraudulent count deprived Frank J. Zak of the nomination for the legislature, but he was declared the nominee after an appeal and recount and the throwing out of votes for Daniel Malie, who was the apparent winner. Park presented 33 witnesses, many of them residents for years in the district, to testify they had voted for Zak, who was given 29 votes in the returns from the district.

Park showed that more votes were counted than the number of ballots issued, Malie receiving 183 votes when 160 ballots were issued. The evidence also showed that voters were registered from vacant lots on Hemlock street and that qualified voters recorded as having voted did not vote at that primary.

John P. Downey, indicted as a member of the board, was not placed on trial and testified for the state. Park explained to the jury that had he been put on trial his wife, Mrs. Katherine Downey, an important witness, could not have testified. Mrs. Downey declared that Bolster had told her in Downey's presence that "we threw the ballots into a sewer." Mrs. Downey also testified that Golden had asked that "we get along together and all tell the same story." She said she heard Golden at the polls tell Bolster to "put the works on the ballots." Downey said Golden sent for him after he was accused of "squealing" and told him "You know nothing about it," Bolster having come for him.

BRIBERY ALLEGED

The question of alleged bribery before the September, 1926, grand jury was raised by Ray Seifert, called as a witness by Park, and he declared that Golden had told him that "we are going to get" McCune, the foreman, because he "wouldn't go our way" and that a friend of McCune, "belonging to the same organization" had been sent to influence him, also that a Millvale woman had been given $20 for the attempted bribery.

Golden imputed the prosecution to the fact that he had not been for District Attorney Gardner four years ago and did not belong to the same political faith. Park showed that the Gardner fight had nothing to do with the charges of fraud and that the prosecution had been referred to the District Attorney by the court.

Golden entered a sweeping denial of the charges and, with the other defendants, sought to make Alvin Miller, the judge of election who has been missing since the primary, the "goat" for the frauds. Mrs. Conklin was shown to have been ignorant of many of the practices which went on and left before the count was completed.

Bolster was convicted last week of false pretense for collecting $10 from the county as pay for Carr, the alleged "phantom" clerk with a vacant lot for a home, and no disposition of the case has been made.

DAMAGE TOLL HEAVY AS FLOOD PERIL PASSES

Many thousands of dollars damage in the Pittsburgh district have been caused by the three rivers, swollen by the rain of the last several days, although the Point Bridge gauge showed the crest to be three feet below flood stage when the water began to recede slowly at 3 o'clock this morning. The gauge reading was 22.2 feet. The flood stage here is 25 feet.

High waters in the Ohio River have thrown more than 600 men out of work at the new government lock opposite Sewickley, according to G. W. Maxon, construction engineer of the U. G. I. Construction Company, contractors.

While the coffer dam and the great concrete recesses of the lock are under water no great damage is expected to result other than the cost of removing mud and grease, Mr. Maxon said. In anticipation of the flood the heavy machinery used in the construction was covered with grease and the lock was then flooded to a level with the river, he said.

Pumping of the water from the coffer dam will start Monday, but it will be Wednesday before the damage can be determined. By Friday of next week it is expected the 600 men employed on the lock will be back at work. According to the United States engineers' office, similar damage of mud and water occurs from one to three times during construction of every lock.

The damage included the loss of the steamer Resolute, which was swept over Dam No. 1 in the Monongahela River yesterday and damage to stocks of merchandise in sub-basements in the lower triangle district, where water was backed through sewers.

None of the low-lying streets of the city were reached by the water, although many families moved to second floors yesterday as the water from the 2½-inch rainfall in this district continued to swell the three rivers.

1st Birger Gunman Hanged

MARION, Ill., Oct. 21.—(AP.)—Redo Millich, a Montegrin, and former member of a band of southern Illinois gangsters, headed by the notorious Charles Birger, paid with his life on the gallows here today for the murder of Ward "Casey" Jones, a fellow gangster, at "Shady Rest," Birger's cabin, near here, on October 26, 1926.

Millich, who was the first member of the Birger gang to pay the supreme penalty for a series of murders and other crimes laid to Birger's door in the last two years, went to his death stoutly maintaining that he killed Jones in self-defense and that he was "framed" by other Birger gangsters. He was executed at 10:05 a. m.

Police arriving from Stations 2 and 3 found a milling mob in the theater's Penn avenue lobby, with the students pushing and shoving in all directions—and a lot of them being shoved through the doors into the playhouse without tickets. The police rushed the crowd, broke it up, formed lines at the ticket windows and the students began to pass in in more or less orderly fashion.

The parade was headed by the University branch of the R. O. T. C. and a squad of city policemen. The students organized on the campus and paraded through Oakland to the downtown section. The reserve corps band and the university student band furnished the music. John R. Johnson, graduate manager of student activities, and C. R. Wilson, assistant to the dean of men, and Harry Becker, president of the student council, were in charge of the parade.

Floats showing the Carnegie football team in bitter defeat and the Pitt Panther running wild with victory were featured.

CONVICTIONS SEEN AS HERALDING NEW ERA

The conviction of Fire Captain Charles Golden, former Republican chairman of the Twenty-second Ward, "who looked after things in the ward," and J. William Bolster and Mrs. Anna Conklin, members of the election board, for election frauds at the spring primary of 1926, inaugurates a new era in the conduct of elections in Allegheny county, Attorney J. Lowry Humes, former United States Attorney here and a member of the lawyers' special committee following election prosecutions, declared today after the convictions were reached.

"These convictions represent a splendid start and augur well for the success of the numerous prosecutions growing out of the recent primary election," he said. "They will throw fear into the hearts of dishonest election officials and form the best guaranty after a long period of fraudulent elections of cleaner elections in the future."

The convictions are only the second instance in more than 25 years that an election board has been found guilty of election frauds, the first coming last year when a conviction was reached on charges against the Tenth District of the Twenty-second Ward. In that case James A. Battles, who roomed at Golden's home, was given a fine. The opinion is freely expressed in legal circles that Judge Harry H. Rowand will impose prison sentences in the case of Golden and Bolster. The only imprisonment of record in many years is that of Patrick O'Malley, convicted as an individual for illegality in a Second Ward election several years ago. There are many instances of record during 25 years of boards escaping through acquittals or failure of prosecution.

Attorney Humes, with Attorney William H. McNaugher, also on the special lawyers' committee, called upon First Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park to congratulate him upon the strength of his preparation and prosecution of the case and afterwards went into conference with District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner.

DONAHEY TO QUIT AFTER PRESENT TERM

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Oct. 21.—Gov. DROP PIPELINE SALE PROTEST

OIL CITY, Pa., Oct. 21.—Protests of independent refiners against the sale of the Pure Oil Company's pipe lines in Pennsylvania to the National Transit Company and the South West Pennsylvania Pipe Lines have been withdrawn, according to information here, as a result of the proposed purchasers' agreement to continue to deliver pure Pennsylvania crude through the lines. Protests filed at the public service commission hearing on the deal held that it would result in mixtures of inferior oils with the Pennsylvania base.

VARE SUCCESSOR RELEASED

By International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 21.—Gov. John S. Fisher today announced that he has accepted the resignation of James M. Hazlett of Philadelphia as a member of the United States House of Representatives. The Governor also has issued a writ for a special election for filling the vacancy at the general election November 8.

Hazlett was elected to succeed W. S. Vare in the House while serving as recorder of deeds in Philadelphia.

SPANKINGS FOR FLAPPERS?—PITTSBURGHERS DISAGREE

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

"Spare the rod and spoil the child?" To spank or not to spank—the old, old question has arisen again.

Way out in Whiting, Ind., Mrs. Catherine Latzko spanked her 19-year-old daughter Emma. And Emma ran right straight from her mother's checked apron and swore out a warrant charging assault and battery.

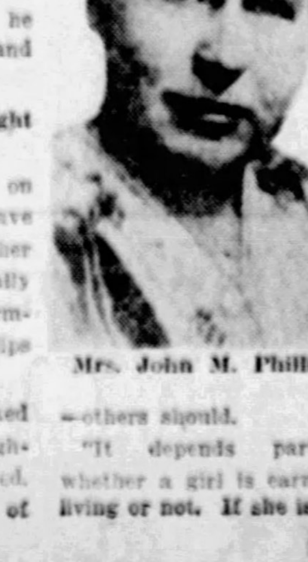
Judge John Sullivan on Wednesday surprised and started the populace to arguing pro and con when he haled Mrs. Latzko into court and fined her a dollar and costs.

"No mother," said he "has a right to spank a 19-year-old girl."

Pittsburgh women are divided on the subject. No two seem to have the same convictions. A real mother and a model mother, famed locally for her ability to bring up a charming family is Mrs. John M. Phillips of Carrick.

First she smiled, then looked thoughtful and appeared to be weighing the problem before she answered. Then Mrs. Phillips, the mother of three daughters and two sons, said seriously:

"In bringing up a family a mother has so many family traits and circumstances to cope with that no one knows what she goes through. The judge had no right to say a mother has no right to spank a daughter of that age. Some girls should not be spanked—others should.



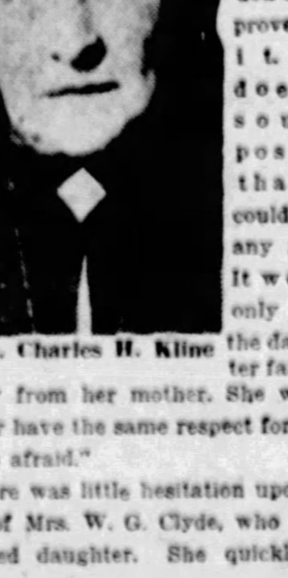
Mrs. John M. Phillips

"It depends partially upon whether a girl is earning her own living or not. If she is not dependent upon her mother in any way it seems doubtful as to whether she has a right to paddle her at that age.

"Many girls are immature at 19. Just like babies. Sometimes they have to be shown that there is authority in the household. I haven't spanked my children since they were very small—then rarely. I have found reasoning of depriving them of something works best. There are a lot of subnormal mothers too, who do not seem to realize the girl of today is living in a different world. They should wake up too. The girl is not entirely to blame."

Mrs. Charles H. Kline, wife of the Mayor, has never had a child. But she too took the matter of spanking flappers seriously. She believes in spanking early when necessary, she said.

"Don't you suppose it would have been better to give that spanking a few years sooner? It seems a pretty big undertaking to me for a mother to use force upon a full grown girl like that. Surely she could do more by reason. No—I don't approve of it. It doesn't sound possible that it could do any good. It would only take the daughter farther away from her mother. She would never have the same respect for her, I am afraid."



Mrs. Charles H. Kline

There was little hesitation upon the part of Mrs. W. G. Clyde, who has a married daughter. She quickly replied:

"A mother has a perfect right to spank a daughter if she deserves it—as long as she is under her roof! Of course, if a daughter is married she has no right to interfere. A mother knows best—and the sooner a flapper daughter learns that, the better of will be for all concerned. Both sides have their story—and sometimes the girl thinks she is right. But a mother who loves her daughter and has her interest at heart knows when and when not to do those things."

But—never mind, poor little abused flappers, there is one real champion in Pittsburgh. Mrs. Enoch Rauh offers a large slice of consolation:

"No indeed! If the training of a girl by her mother is not good enough to justify her respect, spanking is not going to do any good. That mother's influence was lacking or it wouldn't have happened when the girl was 19. Any girl brought up properly will not enrage her mother to that limit.

"That girl who exposed her mother to the humiliation of arrest could not be made to see the light of reason with a paddling. The fault, no doubt, lies in the beginning of the family life. I don't condone the girl, but it seems to me she must have been aroused a great deal to bring her own mother into court. Sometimes mothers forget that the girl has her side of the story too.

Mrs. Enoch Rauh

Love and sympathy and understanding are the most successful methods of dealing with any child."

Ouch, girls!

DIES AS HE EULOGIZES WAR HERO

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—A common soldier waited 64 years to tell the true story of his hero to the world. He finally got his chance, but death cut off his words.

H. H. Spayd was the soldier. Blue uniformed he stood, gun in hand, a young sentry on a ridge at Gettysburg, Pa., the night before Gen. Meade turned back the onslaught of the South in the famous battle of 1863.

Silhouetted in the dark was a red barn from which Confederate shots came whizzing toward him. The next day he saw Meade courageous under fire.

WANTED TO TELL WORLD

The war was over, Spayd succeeded moderately in his state of Pennsylvania. He was made commander of the G. A. R., and loved to tell his cronies of his hero, Meade. It was his ambition, he said, to have all the world know.

Wednesday a statue to Meade, built by Pennsylvania, was unveiled here. President Coolidge spoke. So did Pennsylvania's Governor. Many notables were there. As a one-time G. A. R. commander Spayd received his great opportunity. He was asked to tell reminiscences of the famous Gettysburg.

Spayd, 82, wearing a blue Civil War cap trimmed on one side with squirrel skin, stepped proudly on the platform. With shoulders straight and head erect he spoke into a microphone so his words could carry to the crowd.

"SEES" RED BARN

In a firm voice he told of the "night before the battle" when he was a sentry. The smoke from saluting guns drifted across the platform and into his nostrils—the first warlike smoke he had smelled in 64 years.

"There was a red barn across from me," Spayd said. "There were shots coming from it. Funny, but I can see that barn plainly now. It's right over there," and he raised a wrinkled hand to point.

He turned from the microphone, and his words became mere mumbles. His knees trembled. Col. U. S. Grant III, descendant of the great Civil War commander, leaped to his side. The veteran slumped back in his chair, feebly protesting, "I want to see this through."

Four colonels carried Spayd, chair and all, to an ambulance. Maj. James Coupal, President Coolidge's personal physician, accompanied him to a hospital.

Yesterday Spayd became unconscious, still murmuring weakly about Gen. Meade. Last night he died, with a niece, Mrs. Rebecca Warren, of Pennsylvania, at his bedside.

Today his body was sent to Pennsylvania. There was a suggestion to bury him with other warriors in Arlington National Cemetery, but friends thought he would prefer a grave in his own state, not too far from Gettysburg and its red barn.

North Side Newsboys Organize

LEADERS

MEN OF TOMORROW

Among this group may be a Thomas Edison, an Abraham Lincoln or a Jimmy Walker of the future. They are at present engaged in the sale of newspapers on the North Side and, though none of them have log cabins, they all have a lot of American style ambition. They are shown gathered in the community house club room, where the organization was formed, last night.

WINNER

FREE AGAIN, CARROLL AIMS TO COME BACK

CHANCE IS ALL HE ASKS

By International News Service.

ATLANTA, Oct. 21—"I'm going back to Broadway and stage a comeback if people will give me half a break," said Earl Carroll, New York theatrical producer as he left Atlanta and its prison "forever."

Carroll walked out of the federal prison under parole last night after serving four months of a sentence for perjury in connection with his famous champagne bathtub party last winter.

In his quiet manner, Carroll declared that the stigma of the prison will haunt him for years, with the knowledge that his most priceless heritage—his American citizenship—was gone, all because he told a "chivalrous lie" to save his friends.

"But I'm not whining," he told reporters, "and if Broadway gives me half a chance I'll come back.

"I realize I have got to find myself," he said. "I've got to get keyed up. I hope I will come around to it when I get back to work.

"I have been living in a twisted world, a world of warm sympathies for men who were sufferers with me. It was a world of many revelations of fineness and trueness in men, who were what society had stamped as unclean."

Plenty of Time? Then Walk, Says Flying Will

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 21.—Left New York at 1 p. m. yesterday, got to Cleveland at 5 p. m., and will be in Beverly tonight for corn bread and beans. No special planes, just regular mail planes; fare $400 each way, and you save two days each way. So if your time is worth anything travel by air, if not, you just might as well walk.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

U. S. Singers Equal to Italians, Gigli Says

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

"It is amusing and absurd for anyone to say that Americans haven't an equal chance with Italians in opera."

Laughing away the old moth-eaten idea, with a characteristic shrug of his shoulders, Beniamino Gigli, famous tenor, exploded the theory in the Mayor's office this morning with a sensible comeback.

"Why do people ask that when Americans are so proud of one of their own people who makes good? Take Marion Talley, or Mary Lewis. They are idols. It has become almost a tradition because Americans have created the illusion themselves. It is not fair to young Americans who are starving for a chance to bring out the art they feel they have in their hearts. It should not be said. It should be forgotten."

Gigli was enthusiastic. His eyes sparkled and his eloquent gestures aided him to make his points clear. Sometimes Dr. Chev. G. M. Castruccio, royal vice consul of Italy, interpreted a particularly difficult spot in the conversation. Gigli became serious:

"American girls have a much better chance than men. Why? Because they are more patient. Many a good man's voice has been ruined because he would not spend the five or six years of hard study.

"The men get in a big flurry to make money and go into vaudeville or musical comedy. That is bad—impatience. But American women—just wait and see if they don't make amazing strides toward success in grand opera within the next short while. Talley and Lewis have proven that it can be done. Others will follow. We always need pioneers to blaze the trail."

Gigli studied the key to the city that had just been presented him by Mayor Kline then put it in his pocket and continued:

"American women have wonderful voices. They have souls. There is a much better chance right here in America when a young person is starting to study than in Italy. If I were an American with ambition toward grand opera this is the course I would pursue:

"First, I would find a thoroughly reliable teacher—an expert—and learn for sure whether I had a God-given voice—real talent. There are many teachers, unfortunately, who are after the money and they are not always truthful with their pupils.

"Then, I would study here, get a thorough background, and go to Italy with the idea of breaking into opera over there. It is possible to do so easily, for nearly every small town has an opera. There is room for the small and the great artist. There they can learn thoroughly the operas and go higher and higher."

Gigli had warmed to his subject and went on excitedly:

"There is much money thrown away foolishly by people who want to sing! Thrown away on bad teachers and going abroad before they are ready. The necessary background can well be had right here in America. If there were more operas it would not be necessary to go to Italy at all. There are excellent teachers here."

Gigli spoke of Caruso reverently:

"No, there will not be another Caruso. His talent and his fine soul went to the tomb with him. It is sacrilege to say anyone can take his place. They may build up an idol—but that won't bring another Caruso."

Gigli's eyes snapped at the mention of Americans changing their names to foreign ones in order to get a better chance in opera. His opinion was:

"It is not honorable. It is against their own interests. Americans are proud of their own singers and if they keep their names they will see how much farther they will get. Americans want their own singers. Can you blame them? It is national pride."

The tenor knows Talley well, having sung Mignon, Rigoletti and Lucia with her. He says:

"She is a charming, thoroughly American girl, and one who should be an example for others to follow. She will go far—very much farther. She has the artistic sense and sentiment, the love for the music and the willingness to sacrifice. Important indeed are they to the one who would become an artist."

It is refreshing to find a foreign artist who really believes Americans are not lost souls—artistically speaking. And Gigli is sincere. He was not talking "newspaper talk." But giving his honest opinion for the benefit of struggling young American hopefuls who dream dreams of becoming future Carusos and Jenny Linds.

Visit Imprisoned Ones, Governor Accused Urges

By Universal Service.

GREENSBURG, Ind., Oct. 21.—"Visit those in prison" was one of the admonitions of Gov. Ed Jackson in a sermon before the Baptist Church Brotherhood.

Those who fail to take concern in the welfare of others cannot expect mercy in the last judgment, the Governor said. He urged his hearers to feed the hungry, clothe the naked and visit those in prison.

The Governor is under indictment in the Criminal Court at Indianapolis charged with attempting to bribe former Gov. Warren T. McCray.

Girl Fails To Swim Channel

By International News Service.

LONDON, Oct. 21. — Miss Mercedes Gleitze, London typist, failed today to repeat her performance of a few weeks ago in swimming the English Channel, according to a wireless dispatch to the Evening News from an airplane over the Channel.

The dispatch stated that Miss Gleitze was forced to give up eight miles from Dover.

Radiator Kills Man

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 21. — One man was instantly killed and two others were less seriously hurt when a five-ton radiator they were moving fell in the basement of the First Presbyterian Church here this morning.

Charles E. Altman, 60, of Carpenter street, escaped death, although pinned beneath the radiator, and is in the Westmoreland Hospital suffering from shock. John Carroll, 35, of Greensburg, suffered lacerations of the right hand. It is believed the supports beneath the radiator buckled, causing it to topple.

GUN TOTERS WARNED

Magistrate A. D. Brandon today passed the word for gun toters to beware. In holding for court two men arrested with explosive hips, Brandon announced that no sympathy would be shown gun toters. Leroy Riley, 38, and Santo Perona, 18, were held for court on charges of carrying firearms.

Newsboys' Club Here Gets Church Use

Club privileges will be extended to more than 100 newsboys who last night organized a newsboys' club in the First United Presbyterian Community House, Union avenue, North Side. The boys have been permitted to use the pool once a week for the last two years, and the club was formed to permit them to have further use of the community center.

Charles A. Rodleder, a law student at the University of Pittsburgh, who is paying his college expenses by selling papers, is the boys' leader. He, with J. W. Fulmer, secretary of the men and boys' work, and R. Leonard, assistant to Mr. Fulmer, will direct the club activities.

The formation of the club took place following the weekly swim. The three leaders explained the club idea to the boys. Club members will be permitted to use the pool each Thursday night.

The program last night also included a harmonica contest, which was won by Joseph DeHaven, 15, of 601 West Diamond street.

Edward T. Crowder, general executive of the community house, said he considers it a privilege to be of service to such a group, and the Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr, president of the board of directors, believes the club will more nearly meet the needs of the boys for character building and recreation than any other similar organization.

M'CORMICK MANSION INTRUDER COMMITTED

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Michael Halalack, 39, former convict arrested when he tried to force his way into the Gold Coast mansion of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick last Sunday, was committed to the Kankakee (Ill.) Asylum for the insane.

DIVORCE SEEKER SKIPS SHOOTING

It remained for others to bring out that her husband had shot her in a North Side movie in 1924 when Judge Ambrose B. Reid yesterday heard the application for a divorce made by Kathryn L. Lieson against her husband, Gust A. Lieson, whom she accuses of cruel and barbarous treatment.

"Why didn't she tell that when she was on the stand?" inquired Judge Reid of the woman's counsel, who again recalled the libellant.

Then Mrs. Leison, who formerly lived in Isabella street, said:

"I was sitting beside another man in the theater when my husband came in and shot me in the shoulder, the temple and my head. I was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital and my husband was placed under arrest and later sent to prison for three months."

Mrs. Leison had prevously testified that her husband was extremely jealous.

"He was cruel. He used to tramp on my baby's feet and burn its arm with a lighted cigaret," the woman explained.

Mrs. Leison went to live with her husband, a Greek cook, after he got out of his shooting scrape, but said she could not stand his cruelty longer and left him. She does not know where her husband is.

Robbed Victim While Giving First Aid

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 21.—There's always a last straw and it came to Edward Beken, of Keeksburg, when the man who ran into his automobile added insult to injury by stealing a steering wheel and other accessories while giving Beken first aid. So Beken has sworn out a warrant against Edward Stahl on a charge of larceny.

A. A. Horne, 80 Today, Aids Store Chorus

Albert A. Horne, Pittsburgh's oldest active merchant, for 62 years associated with the Joseph Horne Company, this morning began the celebration of his eightieth birthday by joining a great gathering of the young people of the store in the Friday rehearsal of the Horne chorus.

The act was characteristic of the veteran in years who, in spirit, is regarded as one of the most alert members of the organization. Behind a cluster of bronze chrysanthemums on his desk, Mr. Horne received the congratulations of hundreds of his fellow workers while many patrons of the store came today especially to offer their felicitations to their old friend.

Beginning as a clerk in the Horne store at 77 Market street in April, 1865, the new employe's first duty was the selling of black goods which were quickly bought up by the people of Pittsburgh in draping their dwellings and buildings in mourning for President Lincoln.

"On the Monday following the President's death, the store was closed at noon," said Mr. Horne, "and services were held in the churches. From the hilarity over the victory of the Union armies we were thrown into grief over the death of a beloved leader. Those first days of my merchandizing were the saddest days in Pittsburgh.

"Yes, times have changed and so have the styles, but human nature is about the same. You talk of the vanity of the flappers now, but girls will be girls, and very lovely young women do we have in this generation, call them flappers or what you will.

"The business 60 years ago consisted largely of notions and fancy goods. On one side of the store were sold notions, hosiery, yarns and zephyr. In the center was a square where were displayed the balmoral skirts and hoop skirts which then were fashionable. The balmoral skirts were the ones with the stripes going around and four yards of material were required. Bradley's hoop skirts were from two to four yards in width."

Mr. Horne permits no deference to his age, and bears his share of the day's burdens with any member of the organization. He is on his feet almost the entire day, meeting customers and superintending service. Outside of his business interests he takes an active part in church and civic affairs and is punctual in his fraternal and social duties. While he has a keen memory and delights in old-time reminiscences, he is a student of modern progress and is interested in recreation and outdoor sports.

AUTO THEFT VICTIM PLAYS SLEUTH; 2 HELD

MARTINS FERRY, O., Oct. 21.—S. H. Curry turned sleuth when his garage was robbed, made a tour of junk yards, found many of the stolen articles, traced the men who had sold the loot, and caused the arrest of Charles A. Fleisner and his stepson, Kenneth Bromier, 18. They were held for the grand jury. Arrest of the two will clear up similar thefts, police say.

"THAT'S IT, MR. MAYOR!"

GIGLI, FAMOUS TENOR, AND HIS HONOR

They hold a little singing bee following presentation of the key to the city. Mayor Kline later told the warbling Signor Gigli he hoped it wouldn't be necessary for him to call for any assistance while in the city—but that he would gladly help out with his basso in case the tenor needed him.

1,500 Sun-Tele Newsies Get Theater Party

Newsboys of Pittsburgh—1,500 of them who sell the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph every day, rain or shine—will be guests of the Sun-Telegraph and the Gayety Theater next week.

As the result of an agreement between officials of the newspaper and the theater, 500 boys Monday night will see "Jiggs, Maggie and Dinty," based on George McManus' famous cartoon characters. An additional 500 will see the musical show Tuesday night, and a similar number will have seats Wednesday night.

The tickets will be distributed to the boys by V. Snyder, Sun-Tele circulation manager, and they will be available beginning today. All the boys, familiar with the printed characters appearing every day in the Sun-Telegraph, will watch the antics of the humanized cartoon characters as they move in the life of stageland. The vehicle, containing clean, light humor, is well adapted to the tastes of the city's youth.

C. F. EBERLE WILL LEAVES BEQUESTS TO CHARITIES

Bequests of $500 to the Old Folks' Home at Harmarville, $200 to the Orphans' Home there and $100 to the Third Evangelical Lutheran Church here are contained in the will of Charles P. Eberle filed for probate today. The remainder of the $8,000 estae is left to the widow, a son and a daughter.

Shellwhite

Storage Eggs

Superior Eggs at a Saving of 12c a Dozen

Mammoth eggs with snow-white shells. Clean and appetizing, the pick of April's production—we bought them last April and had them refrigerated under our own supervision, so that you might now enjoy the very finest in egg flavor at prices far below the cost of fresh eggs.

*Shellwhites represent the maximum in egg quality—far superior to most freshly gathered eggs at this season and even through until the first of the year! Don't think of them as ordinary storage eggs. They are uniformly large, with snow-white shells—their very appearance is appetizing.

*Shellwhite Eggs are produced solely for table use. Notice their mild flavor and compare it in your mind with the very finest egg you ever tasted. We'll be satisfied with your verdict. If they're not fully up to your expectations, return the unused eggs to us and we'll refund your money.

And more good news! You save 12c a dozen. April's Eggs are the best of the year's production and the price usually is lowest. That's why *Shellwhites are so far below today's fresh egg market.

*Shellwhites are exclusively McCann's and cannot be purchased at any other store.

*Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

"I BOUGHT my coat at Horne's"---and therein is the story of coat satisfaction. Lovely materials, new shades, abundant, first quality fur trimming---and assortments that are a veritable review of the mode, are factors which make for happy selections at this store.

Barbara Lee Coats, $100.00

These coats for women and misses, issued in new models each month, are now being shown in late October numbers. They are unusual in their richness of fabric and of fur.

They are chosen by the style authorities of seventeen stores, including Horne's; and their collective buying not only makes for greater style assurance, but also causes the price to be unusually favorable.

Women's Coats
$79.50—$129.50

Coats in these two groups have been chosen with the specific purpose of giving extraordinary values at the prices.

They are fashioned of the smart flat-surfaced fabrics of the season, and are trimmed with excellent qualities of beaver, caracul, black and brown fox, kit fox, natural and dyed squirrel, wolf, skunk, badger and black lynx.

Misses' Coats, $100.00

Misses' coats in regular lines at this price, include beautiful models of soft, fine, lovely cloths and velvets—in black, brown and tan tones, moonlight blue, red and green.

RUTH TO TRY FLIGHT AGAIN

PLANS CONQUEST OF SEA NEXT AUGUST

LISBON, Portugal, Oct. 21.—(AP.)—Ruth Elder, undaunted by forced descent of her plane upon the Atlantic, plans to try to cross from New York to Paris by air again next August.

Miss Elder, who has arrived at Ponto Delgada, Sao Miguel, Azores, on board the steamer Lima which is bringing her here, declared that she will fly from Lisbon to Paris and then to London. From London she will go by boat to New York and immediately begin preparations for her next venture.

Her great ambition is to be the first woman to fly from Paris to New York, Miss Elder said, and now that she has faced the dangers of a trans-Atlantic flight and is accustomed to its sensations she is convinced that she will succeed in her next attempt.

Asked for her personal impression of the Viennese actress, Lilli Dillenz, passenger of the Junkers plane D-1230, now at Horta, the Azores, Miss Elder declared that she thinks Miss Dillenz' intention to fly to the United States is a far more risky adventure than her own. She said that Miss Dillenz, whom she met when the Dutch tanker Barendrecht, which rescued her, landed at Horta, was a very charming, intelligent and cultured woman. Miss Elder, impressed by the spirit of the actress, is convinced that she will succeed.

Miss Elder said she intended to stay aboard the Lima until it reached Lisbon, landing there.

While there is no question that Miss Elder has been wearied by her varied experiences before and after her rescue, there was some speculation in Ponto Delgada as to whether her nonappearance was not due to her lack of a suitable gown. Her feminine instincts, it is believed, made her reluctant to appear in her masculine flying garb among a bevy of American and Portuguese society women dressed in Paris gowns.

WIRE WORKER HURT AS 'PHONE POLE BREAKS

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 21.—Clifford Hay, electrician for the Monessen Coal and Coke Company, suffered severe injuries when a telephone pole, on which he was working at Alicia, near here, broke, throwing him to the ground.

HIT BY STONE, GIRL LOSES EYE; ANOTHER GIRL HELD

POLICEMAN WHO BEAT PRISONER IS CONVICTED

Charged with brutally beating a prisoner, Patrolman James Sullivan, of 2760 Church street, was convicted of aggravated assault and battery in Criminal Court yesterday.

W. M. Kenny, 656 Chess street, Mt. Washington, with a companion, sat on the curb at South Fourth and Carson streets, May 7, after emerging from a saloon, and were arrested by Sullivan, according to the testimony. While waiting for the police patrol Sullivan beat Kenny so severely, hitting him on the head with a mace, that Kenny had to be sent to a hospital, and spectators were forced to interfere and take the mace away from the policeman. Sullivan said that Kenny resisted arrest. Sentence was deferred.

MOVIE BATHING BEAUTY SAVED FROM DROWNING

PASADENA, Cal., Oct. 21.—Daphne Pollard, film actress with Mack Sennett, was saved from drowning in Brooklyn Park by Marjorie Wilkanson and Loretta Rus of Los Angeles. The accident occurred while a Sennett troupe of bathing girls was at work. Miss Pollard, fully clothed, got beyond her depth. She was unconscious for 10 minutes after being rescued.

Movieland Beckoning Durand, Rich Robber

JOLIET, Ill., Oct. 21.—Hollywood is beckoning to Jack Durand, foster son of Mrs. Scott Durand, wealthy Lake Forest resident, he told the board of pardons and paroles in applying for release from the state penitentiary.

Durand is serving a term of from 8 to 20 years for robbery. He appeared before the board supporting the plea made for his release by his foster mother.

Durand told the board that he aspires to be a camera man in a motion picture studio, if released.

"When I was in California I met a brother of a famous motion picture star," he told the board. "I worked with him as a camera man. It is the only work I like and if the board will give me my release I intend to seek employment of that kind."

SEARCHERS FIND WRECKAGE OF PLANE

QUEBEC, Oct. 21.—(AP.)—A pair of broken airplane wings, found in the St. Lawrence River at Sandy Bar, today guided searchers for Count Jacques de Lesseps, veteran aviator, reported missing on a flight from Quebec to Gaspe Val Brilliant.

Count de Lesseps, who came here in 1919 as one of the first fliers in Canada, was engaged in aerial map work over the eastern part of Quebec. With a mechanic he took off early yesterday and was long overdue at his destination when a search led to discovery of the wings, a description of which tallied with that of the titled airman's craft.

Fear was felt for Count de Lesseps's safety when a heavy fog set in soon after his take-off over the heavily forested territory. The point at which the wrecked plane fragments were found is about 45 miles west of the flier's destination.

Count de Lesseps is a son of Count Ferdinad de Lesseps, noted for his work on the Suez and Panama Canal projects.

THE DEATH ROLL

Brice Lemmon.

Brice Lemmon, 29, of 5700 Bartlett street, died Wednesday in St. Francis Hospital. Mr. Lemmon was born in old Allegheny. At the outbreak of the World War he joined the Aviation Corps and saw a year's service in France. Mr. Lemmon was a member of the American Legion; of Fellowship Lodge No. 349, F. & A. M.; Scotish Rite and Syria Shrine, the Duquesne Club, the Pittsburgh Country Club and the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. He also was past president of the Pittsburgh Automobile Association. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Harriett H. Lemmon; two daughters, Jean E. and Harriett H. Lemmon, and his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Lemmon.

Mrs. Mary F. MacDonald.

Mrs. Mary Francis Woods MacDonald, 82, widow of Capt. David MacDonald, died Thursday in her home, 469 Second street, Beaver. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Beaver. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. John C. Taylor and Mrs. John H. Berber, of Beaver, and Mrs. George A. Hoffman, of Aliquippa, and two sons, Capt. David A. MacDonald, of Pittsburgh, and Charles W. MacDonald, of Rochester.

Oscar A. Tanner.

Oscar A. Tanner, 76, died Wednesday in his home, 618 Front street, Verona, Pa. He was born in Jersey City and came to Pittsburgh 52 years ago to take the position of superintendent of the Oakland Railway Company, now the Pittsburgh Railways Company. NAB INFORMER, SUSPECT IN DRUG STORE HOLDUP

Jailed When He Tells Detectives of Robbery

Two men were arrested this morning in connection with the holdup of the drug store of J. B. Cullen, 4649 Center avenue, late last night. The drug store was one of three places robbed by armed thieves who escaped.

The thieves took $5 from Cullen's cash register after forcing him into the basement. They fled when a customer entered. Those held are G. R. Grant, 26, of 5616 Baywood street, arrested at Craig street and Center avenue after he had called city detectives to tell them he had information about the robbery, and Walter Horne, 23, arrested at his home, 1 Enfield street.

A lone robber held up a P. H. Butler store at 1207 Federal street and escaped with $50 from the cash register after a battle with C. C. Hunter, 1203 Federal street, who grappled with the intruder as he was pursuing Miss Rose Bayner, 1115 Federal street, a customer, from a rear door of the store. The bandit fired one shot at Hunter after both had fallen through a kitchen door opened by Mrs. C. M. Poff, of 12 Eloise way, who lives across an alley from the store.

W. H. UPPERMAN DIES

William H. Upperman, a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh and one of the oldest funeral directors in this district, died at his home, 5464 Upsal place, Wednesday.

ZONE BOARD USES 'RUBBER RULE,' HERRON DECLARES

"An India rubber rule" is used by the Zoning Board of Adjustment to measure compliance with building ordinances, Councilman John S. Herron said yesterday during a discussion of a proposed amendment that will eliminate the requirement that commercial properties must have a 15-foot side yard on intersecting streets.

The amendment would permit the erection of the medical building, Chesterfield road and Fifth avenue. A number of residents of that section appeared to protest against the amendment yesterday.

WOMAN BURNED AS GASOLINE IGNITES

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Ruth Ely Sprage, 44, while cleaning clothes with gasoline was probably fatally burned yesterday. She is in Waynesburg hospital. The house took fire, but was saved by firemen.

WINNER OF BOK PEACE PRIZE DROPS DEAD

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 21.—(AP.)—Dr. Charles Herbert Levermore, 71, winner of the $100,000 Bok peace prize, dropped dead here yesterday while addressing a women's organization on plans to promote world peace. Physicians said death was caused by heart failure.

Dr. and Mrs. Levermore had been visiting in California since last spring.

Dr. Levermore was born in Mansfield, Conn., in 1856, was graduated from Yale University in 1879, and in 1886 received a Ph. D. degree from Johns Hopkins University. He was a professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and at the University of California. He was president of Adelphi College, Brooklyn, N. Y., from 1896 to 1912.

In 1912 Dr. Levermore began associating himself directly with peace work, although he continued at Adelphi College as professor of history until 1914. He wrote numerous works on international relations, was secretary of the New York Peace Society and secretary of the World Court League and League of Nations Union.

PAROLED IN LIQUOR CASE

William Boniface, one of nine men convicted in the Homestead liquor conspiracy case in Federal court, today was paroled for two years by Judge R. M. Gibson. When the other eight, including five borough councilmen, were called for sentence, Boniface failed to appear, and it was reported that he was ill. Boniface is said to have been the delivery man in the case.

WAIT UNTIL ASPINWALL POLICE GET THIS ONE!

Aspinwall police are looking for a young man who drove in and out of the borough last night At maniacal speed, yelling every now and then for the law to go to a certain widely known resort. Police said they had his license number and would arrest him in Sharpsburg.

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders droop under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Clogged bowels and inactive liver cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanishes and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets will save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by

AVERAGE MAN MAKES AVERAGE TRIP TO BIG CITY

Gray Just Average in Train Conversation

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(AP.)—Roy L. Gray, of Fort Madison, Lee county, Iowa—America's "average man"—has come to Chicago for a couple of days to give the big town the once over, meet some of the boys, take a peep, maybe, at the night life, and find out if Chicago hasn't a few "average" citizens of her own.

Gray, who owns a one-man clothing store in Fort Madison, was picked as America's "average man" in a survey of the country published in the American Magazine. Iowa was found to approximate most nearly the "average" state and Fort Madison the "average" city. The folks in Fort Madison themselves picked Gray as being most representative of them all and therefore as being the "average man."

HEARST PAPER HOST

The Chicago Herald-Examiner is host to Gray here. A reporter for that newspaper went to Fort Madison yesterday and found Gray selling an average topcoat to an average fellow townsman.

"Suppose you come to Chicago," said the reporter, "and meet the people there and give them a chance to see what most of them really look like from the other fellow's point of view. Mayor Thompson is anxious to greet you. The folks want to hear your voice—which they must regard as an echo of their own—over the radio."

The "average man" had to talk it over with his "average" wife and children to decide if they could get along without "Daddy" for a day or so. Also, there had to be found an average clerk to take care of the store while Gray was away.

On the train ride to Chicago with the reporter Gray smoked two average cigars and chatted about subjects of average interest.

"EVEN AS YOU AND I"

"Bill Thompson? Sure, he makes a good mayor for Chicago. But I don't know about all that talk he is making over British propaganda in the schools.

"Locarno pact? What's that?

"Next President? Oh, probably Charley Hughes. Greatest American? Lindbergh, undoubtedly.

"Mussolini? He's got a good publicity man.

"No, Dempsey won't stage any comeback. And say, that fight with Tunney was decided on its merits.

"Flappers? Aw, this chatter about the younger generation going to the bad is silly. The youngsters are all right.

"Prohibition? Yes, and no. You can't believe everything told you either by wets or drys. Don't drink myself, so am not specially interested."

At the Herald-Examiner office Gray was puzzled as to why a newspaper should want his photograph.

"I thought newspapers printed only pictures of important people or great criminals. But, no matter. I'm average enough to enjoy the thought of seeing what my face will look like when it comes out in print."

He expressed misgivings when told he had been announced to make a radio talk.

"WHAT IS AVERAGE?"

"Average—I know. But what is average in a speech?"

He was asked what he wanted to do today.

"Well, I'd like to look some of the stores over, the stores on State street and elsewhere."

He was lukewarm toward city suggestions for night entertainment—the theaters, night clubs.

"No, guess not. I go to the movies with the wife and children in Fort Madison now and then—when there's something good. And we've got a radio—just an average one. That's about all the entertainment I crave."

But Gray made one request.

BOYS TOURING WORLD ON BICYCLES SOUGHT

Two North Side boys who ran away from their home at 552 Ridgewood street to tour the world on bicycles, were being sought by county detectives and state police today at the request of their parents. They are Keith Johnson, 14, and Norman Esby, 11. They left their homes about 9:30 last night.

VANDERBILT COKE PLANT WILL RESUME MONDAY

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 21.—Operations at the Paul coke plant of W. J. Rainey, Inc., will resume in full Monday, according to an announcement today. All former employes, about 100, will be given work. The plant, located near Vanderbilt, west of here, has been idle four months.

FIRM'S DISSOLUTION SOUGHT IN PETITION

E. J. Voegtley, as president of the Steiner-Voegtley Hardware Company, a Pennsylvania corporation, filed a petition in Common Pleas Court asking for the dissolution of that concern. The company was incorporated April 16, 1908, and the stockholders voted to ask permission to dissolve June 6, 1927. Judge Reid took the papers and fixed November 17 for a hearing.

4-YEAR-OLD GIRL HURT BY AUTO; DRIVER HELD

Playing in front of her home, Sylvia Teppler, 4, of 2517 Penn avenue, was struck by an automobile today, suffering concussion of the brain. She was taken to St. Francis Hospital. Lester Steniner, 28, of Greensburg, driver of the car, was arrested and released on $1,000 bond.

It Never Pays—Unless You Get the Coat

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Emily O'Keefe was just 17 and when she started dealing them off the arm in a downtown lunch, she was warned to be good and careful — especially rgarding middle-aged and amorous business men.

She was good, careful, and made it pay.

Emily is 19 now and still has the coat, which ought to be good for a season or two yet. But that is getting ahead of the story.

His name was Powers and he was a furrier.

"Would you like a fur coat? Come to my office at 471 Fifth avenue at 4 o'clock," read the note he slipped to her between the tomato salad and the coffee.

Emily should have given him a disdainful look, of course, and thrown the note in with the soiled napkins. All the story books prescribe that. But Emily reads the New Yorker and knows her tomato salads.

She went to the furrier's office. She tried on coats. She fell in love with a beautiful one priced at $500.

"It's yours," said Powers, and whispered in her ear.

"Sir, how dare you?" gasped Emily and started for the door. In her indignation she forgot to remove the coat.

Powers told the police she had stolen it. She told the district attorney her story and the charge was dropped.

So naturally Emily started suit for $50,000—of which $25,000 was for false arrest and $25,000 because she said Powers made advances to her.

A jury yesterday awarded her six cents for slander because Powers said she stole the coat and nothing for the alleged advances.

And—as was pointed out previously, Emily still has the coat.

Prisoner-Wife Nurses Dying Man in Jail

MERCER, Pa., Oct. 21.—Behind the grim, gray walls of the Mercer County Jail, James Huft, of Hubbard, O., was dying today as his prisoner-wife kept vigil at his bedside.

The Huffs, alleged members of a gang of interstate thieves headed by Parker White, father of the woman, were arrested some time ago for larceny. The woman was committed to jail, but Huff was at liberty on bail. He contracted typhoid fever, and through the efforts of friends obtained a lifting of his bond and a commitment to jail.

Permission was granted his wife to care for him, but efforts of prison physicians failed and hope for his life was relinquished today.

STATE PATRIOTIC SONS ELECT PITTSBURGHER

F. A. Potter of Pittsburgh was elected state vice president of the Patriotic Order, Sons of America, at the state encampment held recently at Altoona. A reception will be tendered the newly-elected officer by the Allegheny County Boosters' Association of the order next Monday night at the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Romance ends when FAT begins

IMAGINE Mary Pickford fat and forty. Picture lovely Norma Talmadge clumsy and gross.

You can't. It would be unthinkable. Also it would be inexcusable—for in this day of science fat is as needless as it is ruinous.

PARENT-TEACHER MEETING ENDS IN TOURS

The completion of convention business, a motor trip of the city, a visit to the Heinz plant, a board meeting at the Hotel Schenley and tea at the Taylor Allderdice High School, and the twenty-ninth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers came to an end today.

The address of Joy Elmer Morgan, editor of the Journal, of the National Education Association, was the chief item of interest on last night's program. In developing his subject, "Ethical Character," Mr. Morgan said: "Crime waves would be as rare as cholera epidemics if we applied what is now known about the character development of children."

Speaking of the "widespread misconception" that the ideals of the youth of today are lower than those of their parents, Mr. Morgan observed, "Youth is breaking away from certain customs of dress and speech and manners which an older generation took with intense seriousness, but which in reality are relatively unimportant."

The speaker held that modern life is so exacting in its demand for personal efficiency that it brings out the breakdowns and exceptions, noting failures which would have been taken as a matter of course a few years ago.

Speakers at the afternoon sessions were Dr. William T. Root of the University of Pittsburgh who talked on "The Wise Use of Leisure" and W. C. Batchelor, director of the city department of recreation. Mrs. Martha Eaton Brickman sang in the afternoon, Miss Helen Bell Rush at night and Mrs. Rose Leader Chiselt at the morning meeting. Dr. J. Kirkwood Craig, secretary of the Allegheny County Sabbath School Association, speaker of the morning, said the church, the school and the home had been found wanting and that a statesman-like program of religious education would have to be provided that would match the public school system.

CADETS OPEN CONVENTION

The national convention of the American Cadets, one of the oldest boy organizations in the United States, opened here today with headquarters in the East Liberty Y. M. C. A. This evening the convention will formally open with an inspection of the First Infantry Regiment by Gen. Robert N. Hunter, commander of the First division. This will be followed by a reception. Tomorrow the delegates will be conducted through the McKeesport plant of the National Tube Company. A business meeting will be held in the afternoon and a banquet in the evening at the Y. The convention will close Sunday with a church parade and services at the Lincoln Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church.

VOTING MACHINE DEMONSTRATED

A voting machine, termed foolproof, was demonstrated last night in Hotel Schenley at the thirty-second anniversary dinner of the Civic Club of Allegheny County. Dr. Ralph Boots, professor of political science of the University of Pittsburgh, demonstrated it.

Slides showing the work accomplished by the Civic Club during its 32 years of existence were shown in addition to photographic exhibits, but there were no speeches. Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., who has been treasurer of the Civic Club for 25 years, was presented with a silver loving cup.

AUTO-CROWDING DEATH TRIAL ON

William Rogers, 1100 Fourth avenue, Coraopolis, was placed on trial in Criminal Court yesterday charged with involuntary manslaughter for the death of John Stockunas, 19, a lineman's helper, of 2308 Larkins way, who was crushed against a pole on Neville Island August 15 by a truck driven by J. Douglas Hague, forced off the road by a car driven by Rogers.

According to the testimony Rogers failed to stop. He testified that he knew he had scraped the truck in passing, but thought he had done no damage.

Suggests Rubber Bullets for Policemen

Rubber bullets for policemen.

That was the suggestion made by Councilman Harry A. Little after the finance committee had received two claims for damages caused by wild shooting.

One was from Mrs. Mary Morin, who claimed that seven shots fired by police at two fugitives had punctured the drain pipe and cut the telephone wire at her home. She asked $7.74.

The other was from Mrs. Mary Crawford, who claimed that one shot fired at the tire of an automobile, which had not stopped when ordered, broke a lampshade on the third floor of her home. She asked $35.

FLOOD FATAL TO THREE

THOUSANDS ARE HOMELESS IN STATE

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 21.—Pennsylvania today was recovering from one of the most disastrous fall floods in the history of the state.

It was estimated that the floods caused by the overflowing of creeks and small rivers in the state yesterday has cost at least three lives, made thousands homeless and caused more than 10,000 men to be idle.

Following a continuous rain which fell for 78 hours, hundreds of highways in the sections near Harrisburg, Pittsburgh, Shamokin and Wilkes-Barre, were turned into raging canals, creeks overflowed their banks and the flood waters poured into the towns, flooding cellars and tying up traffic.

Two railroad employes whose names were not learned, were killed near Hailstead when an engine went into a washout and another unidentified man was drowned near Sayre when a bridge collapsed under the weight of his car.

Clever Jiggs Sketches Mean Free Show

You don't have to be an artist to be ingenious—and you can change your cleverness into theater tickets if you like Jiggs well enough to sketch him.

That's the situation in the sketching contest now under way. It may end in your getting a seat, a pair of seats, or a full box in the Gayety Theater next week to see "Jiggs, Maggie and Dinty," new musical comedy based on the famous cartoons.

The cartoons are published every day in the Sun-Telegraph. George McManus, the artist, likes to play with his cartoon characters. He shoots them at you in all poses, with all expressions.

The Gayety Theater officials and the newspaper are co-operating, and perhaps you can turn your originality into seeing a show.

The rules follow:

For the best and most original draw of Jiggs, an entire box of six seats will be given for Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday night, as desired.

For the next 10 best sketches, each sketcher will be given four orchestra seats.

The next 20 best sketchers will be given one pair of seats, and the next 25 sketchers will get one seat each.

Submit as many cartoons as you like. There is no age limit. Professionals and employes of the Sun-Tele and Gayety Theater alone are barred. But hurry in your drawing to the Jiggs editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER BURIED ON SAME DAY

SHARON, Pa., Oct. 21.—Grief caused by the death of his daughter, Mrs. Martin Reap, Masury, O., is believed to have hastened the death of Isaac Arkwright, 76, Wednesday. A double funeral was held yesterday.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A SIMPLE TWO-PIECE DRESS FOR A LITTLE MISS.

Linen, crepe or gingham may be used for this model. As here illustrated it was developed in gingham and organdy.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. A 10-year size will require 1¼ yards of 27-inch plain material for the waist, and two yards of contrasting material for skirt and facing on collar and cuffs.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 15 cents in silver or stamps.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents. Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Here's Speedy Relief From Bunion Pains and Soft Corns

Emerald Oil Must Give Complete Satisfaction or Money Cheerfully Refunded.

Get a two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) today. Every well stocked drug store has this, with the distinct understanding that your money will be cheerfully returned if it does not reduce the inflammation, soreness, and pain much quicker than any remedy you ever used.

Two or three applications of Moone's Emerald Oil and in fifteen minutes the pain and soreness disappears. A few more applications at regular intervals and the inflammation is gone.

As for Soft Corns a few applications each night at bed time and they just seem to shrivel right up and scale off.

No matter how discouraged you have been with pads, shields, or other applications, if you have not tried Emerald Oil then you have something to learn.

It's a wonderful formula — this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually for reducing varicose or swollen veins.

McCulloch's 10 Convenient Drug Stores and every good druggist guarantees the first bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil to end your foot troubles or money back.

Lesson No. 1

Question: Why should my cod-liver oil be emulsified?

Answer: Because I can absorb it more readily, like the emulsified fat in milk. What's more, it tastes pleasant when I take it in the form of SATURDAY -- A MAN'S BEST SHOPPING DAY!

Men's "Neuglo" Everfit Shirts of Fine White Broadcloth, 1.95

Both neckband and collar-attached styles and a complete size range from 14 to 20—taking care of those unusual sizes rarely found at this price. The "Neuglo" shirt is guaranteed not to shrink—thus obviating the necessity of buying a larger-than-usual size to take care of shrinkage, a not unusual occurrence. Sleeve lengths are proportioned to sizes and statures with every care taken to provide an all-'round accuracy of fit. And "Neuglo" shirts have a durability surprising to find for 1.95—you'll surely want more than one of these!

(The Store for Men—Main Floor)

Men's Domet Flannel Pajamas, 1.45

Made of a fine, close-woven material with a long, soft fleece—providing a warmth that will be heartily welcomed these chill Fall nights. They are practical in every sense of the word, being warm, yet being so light in weight that the change from lighter pajamas is hardly noticed. You may choose either the military style collar or the surplice neck. Trimmings are attractively done in rayon and sizes include A, B, C and D.

(The Store for Men—Main Floor)

All-Wool Cheviot Trousers in Assorted Patterns, 4.95

Both conservative cuts and the more generous English cuts that younger men prefer—in plain blues of deep, true hue or in the fancy mixed effects that use the popular Fall shade with correct effectiveness. All are of a quality that well warrants a higher price—all are trousers that fitly answer a man's need of an extra pair.

Whereas A Girl Risks Her All To Get A Rich Society Husband

IT NEVER PAYS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

MARGIE MARSH comes to New York with a thousand dollars and a wonderful education. She learns stenography, keeps house with four other girls and after three years of struggle decides to get married. But first she has to pick out the man. She thinks of Rob Saunders.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

BUT it would be wonderful to have a little house somewhere, to make terribly good things to eat, to keep things bright and shining, to go up and up in the world, until there were servants and limousines and fur coats and cream for breakfast. It wouldn't be fun to be rich afterwards unless you'd been poor first.

How nice to say goodby to this desk and to all the routine of the Pantheon Finance Company. She was so tired of these elaborate offices with their thick, plum-colored carpets. Tired of the men who came there, men in spats and wearing rings, with the florid airs of popular actors. Tired of the sense of shady schemes going on behind soundproof doors. There was something feverish and hollow about the Pantheon Finance Company. Elaborate prosperity to meet the eye, but always a difficulty about paying the monthly rent.

WAS SHE DIFFERENT?

ROB SAID SO

They were about to exchange "good-nights" when Rob, puzzled, said: "You know, you're different from other girls." Margie wondered if she was.

The outer door opened. Margie looked up and smiled. Dan Shevlin sauntered in. A man of 35, with a lean, tired-looking face, carefully dressed, with hard, cold eyes.

But how can you be angry at a man who makes you laugh, even when he asks you to go to dinner with him in such a day that refusal is the only thing.

She couldn't help enjoying his bored, faintly amused look, the dry weariness of his voice.

"Still being a good girl?"

"Trying to," Margie admitted.

"Too bad. I've done my best." He shook his head.

She laughed, looking at the pretended melancholy of his cold eyes. Sadness and Dan Shevlin—they didn't go together. Her eyes rested on his tweed suit. He did dress so well. There was an aroma of Russian leather, Havana tobacco and good living about him. He was supposed to have money, or knew how to raise it at least. When he came in, the Pantheon Finance Company was very polite indeed.

Margie pondered after he had left. He was what Rob Saunders so ardently desired to be, really wicked. She thought of Rob's rather round head, the direct look in his grey eyes. . . .

Then it was noon and she stood by the elevator, patient. Down the hall was the door of the office where Rob Saunders worked. It opened, shut, opened, shut. Everybody in the world came out or went in, everybody except Rob Saunders.

"It's so mean of him when I'm so hungry," she sighed. "If he didn't come in five minutes, if he didn't come in another five minutes— Oh, dear," said Margie, "I can't make anybody fall in love with me when I'm hungry, and I certainly can't fall in love with anything except food right now."

She ate hurriedly alone, returned wondering. Did Rob Saunders go without lunch, was he ill, did he have a new job? She might never see him again. That would be disgraceful—having to choose two husbands in one week.

All at once she stopped and shivered. To think of marrying someone, living with him—for good, and plan everything as if it were nothing at all. She felt suddenly a little scared.

She began to call herself hard names to restore her courage, her confidence. Then the door opened and in walked Rob Saunders.

"Hello!" He really did try to make his voice sound deeper than it was, like a puppy practicing his first bark. Next he yawned and shook his head. "Didn't get in till four last night," he explained with a grin.

Young—that was it, he was just young. "I want to talk to you," Margie said in a whisper, "really and truly."

She dropped her eyes. Schemer, adventuress, siren!—not bad fun, if you really were one. Men in droves bending before you, flowers, adoration—you lifted one hand and called your maid and told her to send them away, because you were so fearfully bored. All men were just alike—they wouldn't let you alone—they insisted on loving you. . . . Well, anyway, Rob Saunders had halted, was staring at her.

"Wait till I get these papers signed," he said.

He was back again quite quickly. "What did you want to tell me?"

"Oh—nothing. I don't know. It's none of my business. Anyway I'm not going to."

"Yes, you are."

"No, I'm not—I'm going home anyway." She gave him one of her swift, radiant smiles—the smile of someone who really loves all the world.

Her eyes flew to the window, the opened window where spring was pouring in a soft, scented air.

"I'm going to walk home," she announced suddenly.

"I'm going to walk home with you," he asserted, "and make you tell me."

"All right. But you mustn't knock me down. I'm not used to it."

Cars and busses shouldering their way through the homeward traffic, but space to breathe and move on the sidewalks. Almost twilight. Rob Saunders talking. Trying to tell her one thing and really telling her another. All the way from Minnesota, unfunny jokes about prohibition, rakish comments about girls. Once or twice he looked up to stare into the eyes of some other girl passing by, and made a comment to Margie about her.

She felt angry, but of course he didn't know any better. He was just trying to impress her. And after all, he was walking home with her. Perhaps it was only curiosity to find out what she had wanted to tell him, but here he was, anyway. So at last she did tell him.

"I've been thinking about you—lots. The way you live—the things you do. And—I just wish you wouldn't. I mean I wish you wouldn't be bad."

A guilty smile, flattered, immensely pleased, stole across his face. He began to argue. A man had to live. Good Lord, what harm was it to have a little fun! He wasn't old enough to join the Salvation Army. "Look here," he said, "why do you want me to be—different?"

"This is my street," said Margie.

"Wait up—that is—" He floundered. "Why don't you eat with me tonight? You don't have to go home. I know a swell little Italian restaurant . . ."

No wonder women liked being adventuresses, if it was as easy as all this! Margie stood near the lamp post. She looked up at him. She ought to be ashamed to be reformed. But so should he, pretending he needed to be. What a direct, frank look he had about him, though. Fresh-looking, too, a look of soap and water. Suddenly Margie laughed. She had a sense of being vigorously, dramatically alive.

CHAPTER III.

THE stained tablecloth lay between them, demi-tasse cups, the bottle of thin, red wine he had ordered with a wink. Two hours ago they had been acquaintances. Now they were friends. Two months from now—two weeks?—but Margie did not want to look too far ahead.

She was troubled. She had been telling herself all evening how nice he was, what a pleasant voice he had when he forgot to pose as a man of the world and talked naturally, how good his table manners were, all his really good points. And yet she had no more notion of how she was going to fall in love with him than she had before she started. She just couldn't fall in love with him, she said, and then decided that after all she would have to give herself a chance.

Queer little restaurant it was, with Italian menus, and Italians talking furiously at a round table in the corner, and now and then glancing at her with bright, scrutinizing eyes of appraisal.

Margie felt dreamy. She found herself saying things, things that didn't matter, that you always believed. How good it was after all to have a home, and someone to care for, and live the decent, normal life of decent, normal people.

She could be startlingly honest now and then. "You see, I'd like to get married," she admitted. Would she have admitted it, if she wanted to marry, really wanted to marry, him?

But he flushed, leaned forward a little.

"I'm sick of being by myself, too," said Rob Saunders. "Only where are you going to find a girl nowadays who'd be willing to start with—well, listen, all I get is thirty-five a week."

His voice was natural enough now, no pretense any longer, full of blunt, homely confession. Suddenly she saw and understood. Why all that pitiful parade of wickedness was merely to hide his own loneliness! She vaguely thought she wanted marriage—he hungered for it. No wonder he had been so susceptible, so quick to make friends.

He was talking again, with sudden confidence.

"I think most girls today have got the wrong idea. All they want is good times and clothes and money. They want to go to a show every night. A girl ought to stay in—there's always work of some kind, mending or something like that. After all if her husband works hard all day, why shouldn't she?"

"Well . . ." Margie's voice was a little hesitant. Strange, but now that he was talking quite honestly, there was a strain of harshness in him. "But, of course," she objected, "if they're quite poor, people have to do things like that. But when the husband makes money, you don't think there's any harm in her having a good time."

"You bet I do! A good time! That's how most divorces start!" He was frowning, earnest, and solemn. "Why I don't believe a woman ought to employ a servant. As soon as she does she has so much time on her hands, she gets into trouble right away!"

Trouble—talking of trouble! Being so serious about things, viewing life as an unlovely struggle, made up of suffering and unending labor—so that was what Rob Saunders really was!

Margie drew in her breath sharply. She felt as if she had been dancing on the brink of a precipice. Crazily, wildly, she had been willing to do anything just to escape from the routine of the office, the monotony of pleasureless days.

Rob Saunders, there, with his grey eyes and small ears that were so close to his head—he wasn't a means of escape! He meant a worse drudgery, a deeper monotony. She closed her eyes, saw him, saw the woman he would inevitably marry, poor thing!

A small, stuffy apartment, scrimping and pinching, making one's own things mostly, washing them, and never having even a holiday, just an approving pat on the head for doing one's duty. And Rob himself, with lips growing tighter, forgetful that he had once boasted of being a devil, talking of right and wrong in a rather high, humorless voice.

WILSON LEADS PROGRESSIVES AT PRINCETON

Life and Letters of War President

Woodrow Wilson Saved to College By Friends, Elected President; Delightful Home Life Despite Financial Strain

Wilson's place in educational development was indicated, as revealed in yesterday's installment of "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson" in the Sun-Telegraph in his great oration at the sesquicentennial of Princeton. He was the outstanding figure at the "new birth" of the old university. The presidential campaign of 1896 interested him. He analyzed Bryan's rise, but did not like the man who then came to dominate the Democratic party. Nor did he admire McKinley.

By RAY STANNARD BAKER

A Leader of Progressives

IN THE other great field of Wilson's interest—Princeton and education—the outlook appeared scarcely better. The rifts were indeed deepening. The younger and more progressive group, led by Wilson, had become more powerful. Wilson's speech at the Sesquicentennial—especially the reaction in the educational world—had made a profound impression. Other men were beginning to see how far the institution fell short of what it should be. But the leadership here, too, was hopeless! Wilson speaks of the "sinister influences at present dominant in the administration of the college."

If the chances within Princeton, however, seemed poor, there were ever recurring and brilliant opportunities elsewhere. He was urged three times to take the presidency of the University of Virginia and found the offer tempting. The trustees at Virginia were about to abolish the old Jeffersonian system of a governing board and they wanted Wilson for their first president.

The trustees and other friends, however, could not think of letting him leave Princeton. He was the "only stable prop of the college." They were determined to keep such a commanding figure at Princeton until the situation somehow cleared up. But the university itself could not offer him directly an increase in income, since he already was the highest paid member of the faculty, without creating a difficult situation. In this crisis a group of friends agreed that they would contribute annually a certain amount to increase his income.

"For the period of five years beginning with the college year 1898-'99 Wilson agrees that he will not sever his connection with Princeton University in order to accept a call to any other institution of learning; and that he will not during that time give any such course of lectures at any other institution of learning as will interrupt or interfere with the regular duties of instruction at Princeton University."

The men who signed, several of them members of the devoted class of '79, were Cyrus H. McCormick, C. C. Cuyler, Cleveland H. Dodge, John L. Cadwalader, J. S. Morgan, Rollin H. Lynde, M. Taylor Pyne and Percy R. Pyne.

This arrangement gave Mr. Wilson, for the first time in his life, a respite from the hard problem of making the income of a professor cover the expenses of his family and give him freedom for a little travel. He could now give up the lectureships at Hopkins and elsewhere and take more time for his literary enterprises.

But it did not cure the situation at Princeton. This was growing worse instead of better. As one of his friends in the faculty wrote to him in the summer of 1899 while he was in Europe:

"We have had several informal gatherings of the faculty malcontents on West's porch. The excitement of the early days of the summer has subsided and a sullen resentment seems to have taken its place in reference to the powers that be."

Wilson Family Life

By 1900 Wilson had grown so hopeless both of his usefulness in recreating Princeton and of his influence, either direct or indirect, in public life, that he considered seriously the idea of devoting himself wholly to his literary work and especially to the great book, "The Philosophy of Politics" ("P. o. P."), which he had so long been planning.

But before he could carry out his plan he was elected, in June, 1902, to the presidency of Princeton University. A wholly new life was thenceforth to open to him.

During all of the years of Wilson's professorship at Princeton his home life, his social contacts and environment were near perfection. If they had not been he never could have accomplished such prodigies of labor. In the 12 years from 1890 to 1902 he not only carried on his university work with constantly growing success, but he delivered innumerable addresses—from New England to Colorado—he carried courses at Johns Hopkins and the New York Law School, he wrote books, essays, articles and reviews. He thought, wrote and lectured widely on educational theories and practices, and often on Sundays and at other times he talked to small groups and large on religious subjects. In 1896, as we have seen, he began to break under the strain of all these labors, combined with the anxieties that began to complicate the situation at Princeton.

But his home life saved him. It was not merely the physical comfort that surrounded him, but far more the perfect understanding and sympathy of Mrs. Wilson and the warm friendship of many of his associates in the faculty.

Mrs. Wilson was an excellent manager. It was she who truly kept the house, took entire charge of the entertainment—"she set a surprisingly good table"—made most of the clothing for the family, did everything in her power to provide the conditions under which her husband could best do his work—and at the same time managed to keep up more or less of her art work. He told a friend that during one year the four largest items of her clothing cost only $6. She was proud of the fact that less was expended in some years to clothe the little family than Mr. Wilson used in buying books.

"I don't know how I can approve a gown which made you sit up too late—and neglect me (!); but it was certainly a triumph to make it for 50c." . . .

Mrs. Wilson as Helper

In addition to all of her other work she was the indispensable assistant of her husband in his literary labors. Everything he wrote was read aloud to her and she was his best and "hardest" critic. When there were proofs to be read—and when were there not?—they read them together. They never made a task of it, but carried off the work with an unfailing gusto of interest and enthusiasm—indeed with a kind of playfulness.

"When working on the proofs he would, of course, read aloud all of the punctuation marks. Afterward at lunch or dinner his conversation would run along in the same style. 'So and so said comma quote Princeton will play Brown on Saturday comma to which so and so replied comma quote—period—and so on.'"

Mrs. Wilson helped her husband in many other ways. When his hand was crippled with neuritis, as in 1896, she wrote out innumerable letters to his dictation and he signed them with his left hand. Sometimes she herself added postscripts to the letters, enlarging upon certain aspects of the subjects under discussion with which she was familiar. When Wilson was trying to persuade Prof. Frederick J. Turner to come to Princeton in 1896 Mrs. Wilson enlarged upon the domestic problems that a professor must meet, incidentally giving a vivid glimpse of Princeton life at that time:

MONTHLY ACCOUNT.

Food and lights	$ 75 00
Servants	29 00
Rent	42 00
Coal	12 00
Water	4 00
	$162 00

"These items, with the exception of the first, are exactly what we pay ourselves," she continued. "Our food and lights cost about $100 a month, but our family, including the two servants, averages ten persons, two of them being very large and hearty college boys. As a matter of fact, when our family was the size of yours I was able to keep that item down to $65.

Methods Careful

"Mr. Wilson says he forgot to mention that the salary now proposed for your chair is $3,500, and he hopes to extract from them a definite promise to raise it to $4,000 in, say two years. May I add that you really could not help making at least $500 a year more—people clamor so for lectures and 'articles'! It would be a great mistake on your part to suppose that Mr. Wilson is their only victim. All who have any use whatever of tongue or pen are seized upon! Mr. Wilson makes $1,500 every year, and last year, when we were building, and he really tried himself, he made $4,000 extra—and almost killed himself doing it!

"Please excuse this very informal introduction of myself! I have written you so many pages that I can scarcely believe you are not my friend, too. With sincere regards to Mrs. Turner and yourself, yours very cordially,

'ELLEN WILSON.'

Each year, quite methodically, Wilson made out a budget of the necessary expenses and an estimate of the amounts he expected to earn outside of his salary. He had qualities of Scotch thrift and soon began to get a little ahead. By 1895 they could hope to build a home of their own—a great adventure, indeed. Mrs. Wilson herself worked out the plans, making an especial effort to provide a study for Mr. Wilson that would be inaccessible to chance visitors and afford him the utmost quiet. When doubts were expressed about how certain parts of the roof would look when completed, Mrs. Wilson made a model of the building from the architect's drawings so that it could be examined.

On the day after the Wilsons moved into their new house at 50 Library place, Mrs. Bliss Perry stopped in, expecting to find everything in confusion. To her amazement, the house had a look of being perfectly settled, all the carpets down, all the pictures hung, all the books in place. When she expressed her surprise Mrs. Wilson remarked that she had discovered that it was as easy to hire 15 helpers for one day as it was to hire one helper for 15 days, therefore she had settled in one day.

Here they were to live in great comfort for six years, until Wilson was chosen president of the university. It was a house built in the English style, half timbered, with stucco, standing back from the street among large trees.

Mealtime was the great family event. There was always gay conversation, good stories, interesting people. One of his daughters remembers how her whole youth was "colored by fascinating talk." She was anxious to get home during college vacations because she was so fond of hearing the conversation of her father, her grandfather and "Uncle Stock." Sometimes after dinner they would play a round or two of whist or euchre, sometimes "bag-gammon," as Wilson always pronounced it, more often they would sing old songs or read the great old books. Mrs. Sayre speaks of her father's curious mixture of gayety and dignity—says he was a remarkable mimic and could tell endless dialect stories. She can remember him dancing a jig with a silk hat tipped on one side of his head. She said he used to divide his family into the "proper members" (Mrs. Wilson and Jessie) and the "vulgar members" (Neil and himself). Margaret he designated as "proper part of the time and vulgar all the rest!"

Lover of Nonsense

He loved nonsense verses, and humorous stories, delighted to read them aloud, especially "The Bab Ballads," "Punch" and J. K. Stephens' "Lapsus Calami," and nothing pleased him more than a new story with a witty snap at the end of it, or a limerick.

All of the sisters remember vividly the family reading both by their father and by their mother, their mother most of all. As soon as they could recall anything, Mrs. Wilson read aloud the greatest books in the world—the "Iliad," the "Odyssey," the "Faery Queene," "Idylls of the King," Green's "Short History of the English People," and so on. They also remember their father reading aloud to their mother while she painted.

It was indeed a family devoted to books. We have a glimpse of a summer day in a letter written July 10, 1899, by Mrs. Wilson to her husband:

"The children seem to be having a very happy summer. . . . We have settled into a regular program now—after breakfast stroll about the 'place,' gather sweetpeas, etc.; then we repair to the upper porch and our literary studies (!) in which we sometimes get so interested—the children begging for more and more—that we go on till 12 o'clock. We are going straight through the 'English Lands, Letters and Kings,' with frequent extracts from Green and other things, and quantities of poetry, including Shakespeare's historical plays. We are also studying the map of England very faithfully, and I am about to send for some outline maps of England and Scotland that they may record for themselves the places they read about. During the heat of the day they all read Scott devoutly. Jessie has read sixteen of the novels now. Then in the afternoon they exchange visits with Beth or Margaret Bloane. After tea they either stroll with me or persuade me to play croquet with them. They fell in love with croquet all over again at Beth's and began playing it with one mallet, three broken balls and no wickets, the sad remains of their last set—the careless wretches! So I took pity on them and gave them a new set, 'for Jessie's birthday present!'"

The Family's Religion

On Sunday the entire family went regularly to church, but not to Sunday school, Mrs. Wilson preferring to teach the children herself. They were all required, just as their parents had been before them, to learn the Shorter Catechism. They did not unite with any Princeton church, however, until June 2, 1891. Wilson found two rival Presbyterian churches in the village of Princeton, where he thought that one was quite enough. He and Mrs. Wilson finally joined the Second Church and he was soon elected an elder.

It is truly remarkable, the picture one gets in the private correspondence and in the reminiscences of those who knew the Wilson family intimately, of the charming quality of their home life. George Howe, who lived in the home in Library place during much of his college course, remembers Wilson as of "a playful nature, playful both of mind and body. He loved to team the young people."

For physical exercise or outdoor games or sport Wilson cared little as a participant, though he greatly enjoyed watching baseball and football games. He liked walking, and during his period as a Princeton professor it was a familiar sight to see him riding back and forth between his home and his classes on his bicycle. In 1898 he learned to play golf, though he referred with relish to Gen. Grant's attitude toward the game. The general, who did not play golf, was watching a friend who thought he did. Finally Grant spoke up:

"That's very good exercise," he said, "but what is the little ball for?"

Nearly every summer the family escaped from the heat of Princeton for a vacation, at first to the mountains of Virginia, later to the lakes of Northern Ontario, which proved so charming that Wilson bought an island for a permanent resort, but did not afterwards use it. He also tried the Adirondacks, and the seashore at Gloucester, and spent a summer or two at Lyme, Conn., where Mrs. Wilson could carry on her art work. Two vacations during his professorship he traveled in England—both times because of broken health. These interesting foreign adventures, of which we have complete accounts in his letters, will be treated later. But the vacations were never times of idleness or even of complete rest. Wilson labored a large part of the time upon his books, his essays, his lectures. As his reputation grew, there were also long lecture trips, as we shall see, and a deepening interest in politics and public life.

Sally's Shoulders

ENGROSSING DIFFERENT LIVELY DRAMATIC

By BEATRICE BURTON

At Last—Sally's Shoulders Nestle Under John Nye's Fond Caress—The End.

HE GAVE her a long, searching look. "Why did you ask me that question, Sally?"

For a second or so there was dead silence in the big, bright, warm room. Then there came a tiny wailing sound from behind the door that led to the pantry.

Sally knew what it was and pushed open the door to let in the small stray cat that she had been "mothering" for two days. It came scampering to her, rubbing its fluffy little self against her ankle and mewing piteously for milk.

Sally brought it a saucerful from the pantry before she answered John Nye.

"Well, you see, I heard that you thought I'd made a fool of myself by bringing you sandwiches and dusting your office, and doing a lot of things like that," she said then. "But I had always done them for Mr. Peevey—"

"Who told you I said that?" John Nye asked grimly.

"Millie said Miss Kress told her that you did," answered the girl, pouring some more milk into the little cat's saucer.

"I never spoke of you to Miss Kress in any way," John Nye answered. "I hate to talk about this sort of thing, but I want to explain it to you, Miss Jerome." He seemed to have forgotten that he had called her "Sally" not 10 minutes before.

"But one day, after you had left, I was talking to Millie about a mistake she had made in a letter, and she told me that I'd been finding fault with her ever since the time you had worked for me," his deep voice ran on. "And so I had—although I hadn't realized it until then. You see, after you left me, I missed all the small acts of kindness nobody else had ever done for me, and—I wasn't satisfied with anybody else. And I certainly never thought you had made a fool of yourself!"

Sally stared hard at him for a minute. Then she swept him a low bow. "Thanks, awfully," she said mockingly. "I'm glad to know what a perfect piece of office machinery I am, Mr. Nye." She felt her chin begin to quiver and she knelt down beside the little cat to hide the tears that sprang suddenly to her eyes. Silly, uncontrollable tears.

She could feel John's eyes on her as she lifted the small, fluffy animal to its red calico cushion behind the stove and rinsed out the empty saucer it had used.

When she faced him again her face was smiling once more and the starry blue eyes had no suspicion of the tears in them.

He lifted his face and looked at Sally. An odd little smile was on it.

"I suppose," he said slowly, "you were feeding me sandwiches and taking care of me the way you're taking care of that cat, weren't you? You just have to have something to mother, don't you? You're made that way. I never knew any girl like you before, and I'm just beginning to figure you out."

Sally shook her head. "I'm just office furniture—to you," she heard herself say, speaking the thing that was in her heart, almost without knowing that she was putting it into words.

It all seemed unreal to her—these moments in the kitchen with John Nye. It must be a dream, and presently she would waken and find herself in her own small white room at the back of the house, with the windows open, letting in the crisp, cold morning air, and the alarm clock shrieking that it was time to put Aunt Em's breakfast coffee on the fire.

"I wonder if I'm love with you, Sally," the low, deep voice was saying now, and Sally shook her head with vigor.

"Oh, no," said Sally. "You knew me before you knew Millie—and yet you fell in love with Millie. If you'd been in love with me then, you'd never have even wanted to make love to Millie the way you did. You used to kiss her. She told me so." Her voice was full of bitterness and hurt.

"A man kisses a good many women he only imagines himself in love with," said John Nye, telling Millie the old story that so many men have told to so many women for hundreds of years. "Sometimes a man can kiss a girl without knowing how little he means by that kiss—"

Sally was all scorn. "If I kissed a man," said Sally slowly and deliberately, "it would mean something. It would mean everything!" And just as slowly and deliberately as she had spoken, she walked straight up to John Nye and kissed him on his chin. He was very tall, and her lips just reached his chin.

"There! I'll always have that to remember, anyway," she said to herself, through her inner confusion, as she backed away, her lovely face all scarlet with shame.

Then, as she stepped away from him, he began to come toward her, until she could go no further. With her lovely shoulders tight against the blue-and-white wall of the kitchen, she looked up at him.

"Sally," said John Nye, "I know that I love you. I suppose that's why I've missed you from my office for so long—not the things you did for me there, but you, yourself." He put his arms around her and held her so close to him that she wondered if she would break in two before he let her go. She didn't care much whether she did or not. She closed her eyes.

"When will you marry me?" John asked, his lips a half-inch from hers.

The blue eyes opened dreamily, and Sally answered him: "I can't marry you, John," she said. "I've got to stay right here and work."

She stopped and turned her head away, her eyes on the darkness outside the windows. . . . They seemed to be looking through that darkness, and out beyond the country itself, to Bermuda, where Mr. and Mrs. Jerome were waiting to go to South America with Millie and her new husband.

"Why not?" John's voice brought her back from the distances.

"Well, Millie's married, and she's going to send Mother and Dad back here for me to take care of in a few months," she said hazily. "And I've got to do it. There's nobody else but me—"

It was the first time in her life she had ever confessed to anyone, even to herself, that she felt the weight on her shoulders—the dead weight of it. The burden of the whole family on her frail shoulders.

"There's me—now," said John, with a beautiful disregard for the perfect English that he had learned at Harvard. His hands were on her shoulders now, holding them tight with his iron fingers. And suddenly Sally felt as if the whole weight were lifted from them—the whole weight of work and worry and responsibility that had lain upon them for years and years and years.

She sighed a great sigh of relief and happiness.

"But you don't know my family. They can be terrible," she said, "even if they are lovely. They're sweet and good, but they have to be looked after like children." She felt that she owed it to him to tell him about them, so that he wou'd know what he was letting himself in for, before he married her.

John's steady gaze stayed on her face for a long, thoughtful moment before he spoke. "Yes, I thought that about them, after you told me that you just had to dance out here for the money there was in it." He nodded his head "But that doesn't make any difference to—us, does it? Not to you and me?"

Sally saw just how sincerely he meant what he was saying.

And then she laughed, so that those shoulders of hers that were like some perfect bit of sculptured ivory, shook a little with her laughter. With laughter that meant sudden release from long months of dreariness and emptiness.

"John," she said, "nothing makes any difference to me—except you and me. You and me, together. Together! I can't believe it."

THE END.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer — By John Held, Jr.

"My dear, I'm all-of-a-BIB-and-TUCKer at this point—I ACtually AM, because I mean the GARter situAtion is comPLETEly out of conTROL, do you know what I mean? Because ROLLing your stockings is all very WELL but I REALly think it's simply VILE the way they sort of WRINKle round the KNEES when you ROLL them—I mean I ACtually think it looks LOUSy to see a girl sort of TRAIPsing round with her STOCKings sort of WRINKling at the KNEES because I mean people NOtice it, don't you really think they DO? So I am wearing these LONG garter effects at this point and I am honestly so MAD I could gargle BUTtermilk because I mean they are simply ALways sort of giving WAY at CRITical MOments, do you know what I mean? Because I mean they sort of have an odd way of letting DOWN under the STRAIN which is THORoughly anNOYing especially if there is some fresh BENny with you or anything. But I MUST tell you the FUNniest THING, my dear, because you would HONestly think that a GARter more or less would be simply NOTHing in the life of a youth who has seen as much of GIRLS as ARab has, my dear, but when I went sort of CAsurally FISHing for mine the other day in his PRESence I REALly think he was emBARrassed to SOBS, my dear—can you BEAR it? Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

Noel Veritzen Passes Through an Embarrassing Crisis

IT was Noel Veritzen to whom Miss Lincoln, our hostess of The Larches, directed her coquettish little smiling side glance and her provocative remark that there was no one to send her love letters by way of the hollowed-out gatepost at which we just had looked. But it was Dicky who answered her. That he did so because he saw that Noel's diffidence was not proof against this open flattery, and the young violinist was distinctly embarrassed, I was sure. Yet I was conscious of a wonder whether Dicky might not be anxious to divert the attention of our odd but charming young hostess to himself.

"It was a wonderful place," he said. "But it would be a bold man indeed who would put a love letter in there now unless he was sure that his lady were watching ready to draw it out at once. Too many people know about it. Our red-headed friend probably didn't discover it himself. I'll wager it's been used by the confiding and unsuspecting swains around here for a half century. Probably some of the usual unexplained tragedies of the countryside could be traced to the wrong man getting hold of the right letter or the other way around."

We all laughed at his nonsense, as he meant us to do, and then we returned to the house in the order we had come down to the gate, Dicky and Miss Lincoln leading the way, and I walking between Mary and Noel in the rear.

Beneath my eyelashes I cast a furtive little glance at Mary and saw subtle signals of battle in her heightened color and the unconscious squaring of her shoulders. I am in no sense a matchmaker, especially as Dicky's young niece is altogether too young to settle her future now, but my sympathies had been excited by Noel Veritzen's selfless devotion to Mary, quixotic when he knew her only as the masked dancer and a supposed protegee of the odious Jack Leslie, and no less sincere and dogged now that she had been proved guiltless of anything save girlish indiscretion in that unsavory episode. That Mary, with the self-sufficiency of the young "modern," was taking the young violinist's devotion very much for granted, while giving him only the attention she would bestow upon any personable young man, I had observed with some indignation for Noel, and secretly I was glad of Miss Lincoln's very apparent penchant for the young man. I guessed that Mary's conduct toward her faithful admirer would be decidedly less cavalier than it had been.

It was easy to see that as yet the young violinist had no idea of the little comedy which was being played around his head. I never have known a more modest youth, nor a more self-deprecatory one. That the boy was suffering from something very like an inferiority complex on account of his unfortunate estrangement from his father, we all knew, and I was sure that it would take a great deal of direct attack on Miss Lincoln's part to make him conscious of her marked interest in him. Altogether, I told myself, it promised to be an interesting and amusing summer if the young chatelaine of The Larches kept up her present average.

Mrs. Ticer loomed large and forbidding upon the veranda as we came up the steps.

"Your tea and muffins are cold," she announced reproachfully as we came up the steps. It was a salutation familiar to me, and one which I never dispute, knowing that Mrs. Ticer is not a servant but a "neighbor going to help out," a distinction very necessary to observe and heed when dealing with the country folk of the east end of the island. But Miss Lincoln stiffened.

"Remove the service and make us some more at once," she said icily, and my neighbor's head went up in a gesture as haughty as that of the young woman who employed her.

That an explosion was imminent, I saw, and averted it by the only means in my power. Quickly changing my position so that my face was shielded from Miss Lincoln, but perfectly visioned by my old neighbor, I grimaced compellingly at her, and exclaimed:

"Oh! Mrs. Ticer, have you baked any of those delicious little cinnamon snaps for Miss Lincoln yet?"

For the Lovelorn

Worried

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am in my early teens. I love a fellow very greatly. He is two years my senior. He has told me that he loves me, but gets angry if I speak or walk down the street with any other fellows. He also gets angry at many other different little happenings, and always wants to make up first. Should I show him that I love him? My senior sister has told me that I should not, but I can't help it, Miss Gale. Do you think he really loves me? What would you advise me to do?

WORRIED.

You are too young to know anything about being in love, my dear. It is just as well not to let a boy be too sure of your feeling for him.

Lita Lee

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been reading your column for some time and would love to have some of your good advice. I am a girl of 19 years. Several months ago I met my ideal of a flapper. At first I seemed to be his all in life, but for some reason we drifted apart and I understand he has taken a fancy to another girl, "my older than himself. I would like to know if you could advise me what to do and how I could win his love back. Although we do not live in the same town my heart still clings to him and life seems so empty. I am quite popular and have many boy friends, but none can take his place.

LITA LEE.

I am sorry, my dear, but if this boy is interested in another girl, I don't think there is any use in your trying to win his affection again.

MOTOR LICENSE BLANKS SENT OWNERS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 21.—Applications for 1928 automobile licenses have been mailed by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles of the State Highway Department. The first mailing reached automobile owners yesterday.

Motorists will no longer be able to use the excuse "I didn't know that was the law." The department has ordered 2,500,000 copies of a 64-page booklet containing a digest of the new motor code, effective January 1, as well as other motor laws which remain in effect. A list of violations and penalties for each appear in the booklet. A copy will be mailed to each automobile owner and every licensed driver in the state.

Police will be able to get a more rapid start in running down bandit cars in 1928, if they are informed of the license number of the outlaws' automobile.

This year the State Highway Department has furnished police with mimeographed copies of the motor license list, furnishing license numbers, names and addresses of owners and the type of car. The list, mimeographed on both sides of the paper, made a pile of paper five and one-half feet high. Police complained that the list was too bulky to be able to find any number within a reasonable time.

HOTEL MEN SET FOR MEETING

Pittsburgh hotel men at a meeting last night drew up final plans for the twenty-fourth annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Hotel Men's Association to be held here October 28 and 29. Registration will be at the Roosevelt Hotel, where the business meetings will be held.

Next Friday afternoon a theater party has been arranged for the women at the Loew's Penn Theater. In the evening a banquet will be held at the William Penn Hotel.

Members of the local chapter who are hosts to the state convention are: C. C. Butler and W. L. Baker, William Penn Hotel; Fred Klous, Roosevelt Hotel; R. L. Mosena, Webster Hall Hotel; F. T. Hanna, Hotel Henry; S. L. Benedito, Schenley Hotel; William Campbell, Seventh Avenue Hotel; W. E. Morris, Fort Pitt Hotel; Brown Nixon and Simon Nixon, Nixon Hotel, Butler, Pa.

Woven Madras Shirts with two separate laundered collars to match. In light and medium stripes and jacquards — tan, blue and grey.

$3.50

Imported French Lisle Hose, after the Paris vogue for small figures and vertical stripes. Full fashioned, long-wearing—reinforced at heel and toe.

$1.50 Pair

Fine quality Pigskin Gloves, made from carefully chosen skins. Dressy—just the glove for street wear. Practical and durable, too.

$5.00 Pair

Fall-weight Union Suits, of medium weight mercerized lisle. Ankle length, with long sleeves. Reinforced where strain is greatest.

$3.00

(McCreery—Street Floor)

Men's Two-Trouser Suits

—That Present a Rare Combination in Moderate Priced Clothes: Economy, Custom Appearance and a Surprising Wearableness

$37.50

To many Pittsburgh men, McCreery Two-Trousers Suits are the summation of all suit values.

They have found in them woolens of pleasing fineness, style that befits gentlemen of taste and, very important, a wearableness commonly associated only with suits costing considerably more. Then, too, the suits fit as though custom made—and the extra trousers place the value beyond debate.

McCreery Topcoats

$28.50

When the weatherman smiles, they're proud ambassadors of your taste. When skies are murky and biting winds joust with pelting rain —how glad you'll be to wear one! . . . The newest and smartest of woolens, of course—tailored in the expected McCreery manner.

Other topcoats $35.00, $45.00, $50.00, $60.00 and $65.00.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Miss Virginia Louise Johnston to Make Her Debut at Tea on November 11

WHEN a girl makes her debut or is married, as many members of her family as can like to attend the coming out party or wedding. And the tea which Mrs. Charles Howard Johnston of Beechwood boulevard will give on November 11 in the Longue Vue Country Club to present to society her daughter, Virginia Louise, will be no exception. For her sister and sister-in-law, both young matrons, will receive with Virginia and Mrs. Johnston. Mrs. Wilson Kennedy Ray of Washington, whom you remember, I'm sure, as Elizabeth Close Johnston, will arrive in the city several days before her sister's debut. The sister-in-law who will assist in receiving the guests is, of course, Mrs. Charles Howard Johnston, Jr., who was Dorothy Chandler before her marriage.

Yesterday was a gala day for the children of Sewickley society folk, for Mrs. Henry R. Rea, a member of on of the oldest of valley families, entertained in her home, "Farmhill," in honor of her little grandson, Oliver Rea, son of the Henry Oliver Reas. The event was designed to celebrate Oliver's fourth birthday. All the little guests, 20 boys and girls, came in fancy dress. Oliver received his guests in a Scotch costume. In addition to the usual games, the entertainment included a performance by marionettes brought from New York.

Have you ever been to a footlight party? It sounds like a theatrical event, you'll probably say, and it is. And a social event as well. Every year Mrs. George Phelps Rose, the capable president of the Sewickley Valley Cot Club, entertains the players, who give the annual Cot Club benefit play and the executive board in her home immediately after the show. And this party, one of the social traditions of the valley, has come to be called a footlight party.

Palms and ferns flanked with standards of yellow chrysanthemums decorated the altar of the First Baptist Church last night for the wedding of Miss Mary Isabella Jenks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Jenks, of Morewood Heights, and Evan Jones of Pittsburgh which took place at 7:30 o'clock with the Rev. Dr. C. Wallace Petty officiating. The bride wore white duchesse satin trimmed with silver and gold thread lace, and the full court train of satin was lined with silver cloth and appliqued with pearls and rhinestones. Her veil of French tulle was caught with a silver lace cap and orange blossoms, and she carried silver wedding roses, orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss Audrey Jenks, as her sister's maid of honor, appeared in gold taffeta with a skirt of ruffled tulle shading from pale orchid to deep purple. She carried yellow snapdragons. Frocks of taffeta with ruffled tulle skirts in matching colors were worn by the bridesmaids, Miss Ruth Lukens, of Toledo, O., in peach; Miss Sarah Hannan, blue; Miss Gladys J. Miller, rose; Miss Lillian Jones of Chicago, green, and Miss Jean Jenks, sister of the bride, in yellow. They carried orchids and yellow chrysanthemums. The flower girl, Barbara Hope Cartwright, wore pink taffeta and tulle, while the page, Evan Jones, nephew of the bridegroom, wore a suit of blue and white satin. William Shaw was best man and the ushers included Miles Jones, J. Q. McClure, Denysen Wermiche, Frank L. McShane and Dr. William McConnell. A dinner and reception in the Hotel Schenley followed the ceremony, with covers laid for 18 at the bridal table. Mrs. Jenks was gowned in hand-painted white chiffon with a fringed skirt. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will sail tomorrow on the Leviathan for a trip abroad, and will be at home in the Cathedral Mansions after Christmas.

In the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coyle, Jr., in Beacon street, the village of their niece, Miss Elizabeth Speer, daughter of the late Mrs. Harriet Coyle Speer, and Clifford R. Voskamp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Voskamp of South Atlantic avenue, was solemnized last night at 7:30 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan, pastor of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church. The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, was gowned in white transparent velvet embroidered with pearls and rhinestones, and her tulle veil was secured with rose pointe lace and orange blossoms. She carried a shower of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Mrs. H. Ralph Sauers, as matron of honor, appeared in Chinese red satin and her flowers were yellow dahlias. Samuel McCartney Jackson of this city was best man and the ushers included H. Ralph Sauers and Richard M. Fried. A dinner and reception followed the service, covers being laid for 12 at the bridal table. Mr. and Mrs. Voskamp will be at home after January 1 in Callowhill street.

Announcement has been received here of the marriage of Miss Florence Schoenthal, daughter of Mrs. Lee Schoenthal, of New York, and Dr. Verner R. Callomon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernhard Callomon, of Northumberland street, which was solemnized Wednesday night in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, New York, by the Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Dise. Miss Beulah Bluhm, Miss Ruth Weinberg, Miss Edith Stone and Miss Dorothy Lang, of New York, were bridesmaids and Mrs. Arthur Rosenbloom, of Pittsburgh, was matron of honor. Clarence B. Callomon was his brother's best man and the ushers included Louis K. Friedman, Gerald L. Goldsmit, Julian J. Hast, Jerome E. Markstein, James R. Rosenfeld and A. Cass Sunstein, all of this city. After a trip abroad, Dr. and Mrs. Callomon will be at home in this city.

The wedding of Miss Sallie Campbell Burch, daughter of Mrs. William Thompson Burch, of Washington, and William Neale McCord, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Davidson McCord, of Grove street, Sewickley, will take place November 1 at noon in the Burch home. John Davidson McCord, Jr., is to be his brother's best man. Mr. McCord is a graduate of the school of foreign service in Georgetown University, Washington.

Mrs. John R. Lewis is corresponding secretary of the Pittsburgh Panhellenic Association which will hold its fall luncheon at the Hotel Roosevelt November 10.

EPOCH CLUB MEMBERS HEAR TALKS ON TRAVELS

Since it was announced that there would be no program for the president's day reception of the Epoch Club (an event of yesterday) the members were pleasantly surprised to hear informal travel talks by several of their own number. The reception, which was in honor of the club's very gracious and new president, Mrs. Charles Orchard, was held in the home of Mrs. T. P. Gaylord, in Jackson street. Mrs. Gaylord, who was last year's president, made a charming presentation of Mrs. Orchard and then came the trio of talks. Mrs. George M. Eaton, who has recently returned from a trip around the world, told a bit of her varied experiences; Mrs. William S. Elliott, who was in Paris when Lindbergh arrived, described those days of excitement and Mrs. Frank H. Rhea, who was in Washington when the young aviator returned, gave her impressions of his reception there. A delightfully appointed tea for which here were simple but attractive decorations, completed the afternoon.

ADDITIONAL CLUB NEWS

With its new president, Mrs. Maud Walker Guthrie, in the chair for the first time, with a fine attendance and two interesting speakers, the League of American Pen Women had a most auspicious opening of its season yesterday in the Woman's City Club. The speakers were George Seibel, literary and dramatic editor of The Sun-Telegraph, and Charles F. Lewis, editorial writer of the Post-Gazette. Mr. Seibel's talk, which was entitled "We Lie to Live," was wholly humorous. "It is the man who habitually tells the truth who gets the black eye and the broken head, while the person with judicious, diplomatic evasion, suppression and protective coloration continues to exist sound in mind and body," he said, adding, "Truth is a relative thing and should be adhered to as closely as possible, but if we adhered to it too strictly we are unable to find anybody who will live with us." Literature, he said, is the art of lying convincingly and imagination is the gift to see things as they are not. In his talk on "Some Newspaper Trends," Mr. Lewis discussed the world-wide trend towards fewer newspapers. Newspapers are no longer party organs for the promotion of the political ends of party, factions or leaders, he said.

for LIGHT FUSSY THINGS

To be most attractive, lingerie and other women's underthings, should always be bright, fresh, colorful. It's easy now to keep them that way. Just occasionally add a little Gypsy Dye to the rinse water when you wash them.

These new dyes require no boiling. Simply use like bluing. All faded, worn garments get new life and lustre from a touch of Gypsy Dyes. Ideal, too, for painting on silk, when used with Gypsy Painting Medium.

Gypsy Dyes are obtainable at all drug and department stores in 12 beautiful colors. Always keep them in the house. They are the ideal "all-purpose" dyes!

Last Saturday morning at 10:15—just an hour after the store opened, one hundred and nine of these coats had been sold—all we had—and in consequence, many were disappointed. Immediately we took the matter up with the manufacturers and told them we positively had to have more coats. They have just been received—one hundred and ninety-three in this new lot.

Sizes for Misses and Small Women

Marvelous coats, every one worth far more than $35 — They are very clever styles, fine imported and domestic coatings of very marked distinction. Stressing particularly the unusual beauty of the fabrics. Wolf, Jap Fox, Cat Lynx, and Skunk—all good, long-wearing furs are used in mushroom and shawl collars.

Modish Dresses

More than thirty-five stunning styles in better dresses are booked to appear tomorrow. For the miss and the woman, styles of very unusual appeal in Satins, Georgettes with Velvet trimming, Silk Crepes, Novelty Velveteens and newest lightweight woolens.

Other Dresses From $10 to $295

Rich Dress Coats

$59.50 $89.50 $115

$155 $195

The very fact that the Boggs & Buhl Coat Section has sold more coats so far this season (and the season has only begun) than in many past seasons is proof enough that the collection meets with the complete approval of Pittsburgh women. From the standpoint of style, of selection and of value, this store's coat stock is supreme. And remember, too, that Boggs & Buhl coats are definitely priced less.

Edison Talks Tonight Over Radio Link-up

An international radio interview with Thomas A. Edison tonight, in which 41 broadcasting stations of the United States and many others in Canada, Europe and South America will be employed, will be sponsored by the General Electric Company in tribute to Mr. Edison and in recognition of the industry that has developed since that day 48 years ago when his first incandescent lamp, with carbonized sewing thread filament, was declared a success.

The program, to go on the air at 10 o'clock, in addition to Mr. Edison, will feature other speakers of prominence from the many participating stations. Goldman's Band is the nucleus around which an elaborate musical program has been built.

WCAE, the Pittsburgh link in the national hookup, also will present A. W. Robertson, president of the Philadelphia Company, who will speak on "The Adaptability of Electric Service," and G. H. Gadsby, on "Light as a Forerunner."

The network, the largest ever used by a commercial organization, will be supplemented by 2XAD and 2XAF, the 22.02 and 32.77 meter wave length stations of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, in an endeavor to broadcast the program to all sections of the globe.

Light Topic

G. M. GADSBY

Mr. Gadsby, president of the West Penn Power Company, speaks on "Light as a Forerunner," during the Edison celebration radio broadcast tonight.

WOMAN BURNED AS HAIR COMBS IGNITE

OIL CITY, Pa., Oct. 21.—Celluloid combs ignited as Miss Florence Trosh, librarian of the local library, dried her hair in front of an open gas stove. She was burned on the head, neck, shoulders and arms. Her mother smothered the ames with a rug.

Friday's Radio Program

The Pittsburgh and out-of-town radio programs listed below are for broadcast after 6 o'clock tonight. The wave length in meters and the station location follow the call letters. For those listeners who are constantly in search of the best entertainment offered by the hundreds of broadcasting stations, these programs are recommended: Cities Service Concert orchestra and Cavaliers, WCAE (517), 8 o'clock; Mediterraneans and Juan Pulido, tenor, KDKA (316), 9 o'clock, and "Electric Night," in honor of Thomas Edison, WCAE (517), 10 o'clock.

ATWATER-KENT RADIO PRICES CUT 20 PER CENT

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21. — A 20 per cent reduction on all Atwater-Kent radio products will be made effective immediately, it was announced today at a meeting of Atwater-Kent distributors. In announcing the reduction, Mr. Kent said that it is only right that the purchasers should share in the results of up-to-date manufacturing methods. Because of the large production facilities, he said, it is possible to make the reduction.

The Standard Charger for "A" batteries is Balkite

The accepted radio "A" power supply is an "A" storage battery and charger. The standard charger is Balkite. 750,000 are today in use.

This overwhelming popularity is based on performance. The Balkite Charger has no tubes, nothing to burn out or replace. It is a permanent piece of equipment.

The Balkite Charger is noiseless in operation. In most cases it can be used during reception. This makes possible continuous or trickle charging. With a Balkite Charger on trickle charge your "A" battery is always at full power. And the evaporation of liquid acts as an automatic cut-off, shutting off the charger and protecting your battery from overcharging—a feature exclusive with Balkite. Ask your dealer.

PITT AND NOTRE DAME TO MEET IN 1929

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1927 TWENTY-SEVEN

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

IT isn't often that a young athlete goes up to the biggest leagues in two sports at the same time, but that distinction must be placed to the credit of a boy whose home is in Stroudsburg, Pa., but who has been connected for so long with a team in this city that he has come to be looked upon as a Pittsburgher.

The athlete who has just made the remarkable jump to the top in two sports is Horace L. (Pip) Koehler, former star guard of the Morry basketball team, and who played both third base and the outfield in 1927 for the champion Toledo (O.) baseball club of the American Association, starring in the post-season series against the Buffalo pennant winners of the International League.

AS published exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph yesterday, Koehler's work for Toledo attracted so much attention that arrangements have been completed for his sale to the Chicago National League club as soon as the selling or buying season is reopened on November 5.

That is only half of the story, as Pip also has risen to the majors in basketball. Some time ago he received a big offer to play for the Cleveland professional team of the American League. That is the highest organization in the floor sport and a circuit that includes the famous Celtics and others.

HOWEVER, Koehler has decided to reject the Cleveland proposition, and instead has accepted more attractive terms to play for the Fort Wayne Knights of Columbus five in the same league. He will report to his new team on November 3 for the opening of the season.

The double rise to the majors in both baseball and basketball is an achievement quite out of the ordinary, but Manager Joe Goldman of the Morrys says that in view of his long association and experience with Koehler he will be greatly surprised if Pip does not make his mark in both upper divisions of sportdom.

WHILE on the subject of the Morry basketball team it may be stated that though that crack five, after a brilliant career of eight years here, will no longer represent Pittsburgh on the floor. The quintet will not be disbanded after all, but will be kept together as a team for the coming season to play elsewhere in this region.

Developments during the last few days indicate that the Morrys will continue to play as a team on a new home floor, or, rather, on two new home floors, as it looks now as if they will represent two towns the coming winter.

FROM present signs the principal new home location of the Morrys will be McKeesport, where they will represent the McKeesport Cyclers in the County League, playing one game at home and one game abroad each week, the home contests to be staged in the McKeesport "Y," if permission can be obtained.

George Ramsay, for a long time center of the Morrys, is trying to arrange for the transfer of the Morry squad to the McKeesport Cyclers, which will give the Tube City one of the best teams in basketball.

On one evening each week, when the Morrys are not playing a County League game for the Cyclers, they will represent Beaver in a contest in a specially arranged schedule.

THE Morrys were in such great demand when it was learned they would not continue as a team in Pittsburgh that several towns, in addition to McKeesport and Beaver, including Warren, O., sought to engage them as representatives. However, Joe Goldman's passers, who desired to stick together instead of scattering on account of their years of association, were unwilling to play more than three games a week, so it looks as if the McKeesport and Beaver proposals will be accepted.

UMPIRE "BEANS" REARDON of the National League, who was in Pittsburgh for several days this week on business, is intimately acquainted with most of the big figures of the fight game.

He expresses the opinion that the reported reconciliation of Jack Kearns and Jack Dempsey is the result of a firm belief on the part of Kearns that he can pilot Dempsey back to the heights or at least to one or two more big shows that will mean a tidy financial intake for the pair.

"I have talked with Kearns since he came back from Europe with Mickey Walker," said Reardon, "and I know that he believes he can get Dempsey back up there again. Many persons believe Dempsey is done as a fighter, so that whether Kearns can bring him back is matter for conjecture.

"But one thing I know from visits to Dempsey's training camp at various times is that when Kearns is his manager, Kearns is also absolute boss of the camp.

"If you dropped into Dempsey's camp after he broke with Kearns you would hear Trainer Gus Wilson say, 'We'll do so and so today,' only to have Manager Normile or later Manager Flynn cut in with, 'No we'll do this.'

"Perhaps some one else would have another suggestion to make, the result being that Dempsey was often upset and confused and didn't know whether he was coming or going.

"But when Kearns was in charge he alone gave the orders for the training work each day, and his orders were carried out to the letter.

"Furthermore, it will be readily recalled that Dempsey always won while Kearns was handling him. His two defeats at Tunney's hands were both suffered while he was being directed by other managers."

Dempsey Indicates Break With Flynn

THROUGH the SPORT LENS by HAVEY BOYLE

Havey Boyle.

MR. DOBIE, an arch-pessimist, the boys say, deserves considerable credit for working up grave fears over a schedule that is pleasantly arranged, Cornell started out with three pushovers, Clarkson, Niagara and Richmond, rolling up 113 points against six for the opposition; took a rest last Saturday to prepare for resumption of relations with Princeton tomorrow; finds a fairly tough game in Columbia the following week, and closes with dangerous Dartmouth and Penn.

The various kinds of schedules arranged, this Cornellian card shows once more, eliminate any possibility of determining the best college football team in the country.

THERE are four teams now sporting clean slates, immaculate in fact, since no club has even scored against them. This quartet, incidentally, includes two Western Pennsylvania entries, Pitt and Geneva. The other pair is composed of Michigan and Princeton.

ARNOLD HORWEEN, coach of Harvard, is aged 29 years; his assistants average 27. This, with a few exceptions, is against most football precedent. Most of the famous ones, Rockne, Warner, Stagg, Yost, Roper, are on the other side of 40. A genius like the youthful McCracken at Lafayette comes along to establish himself in short order as

Philadelphia Gets 1928 Service Game

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The Army-Navy football game, which takes place at the Polo Grounds here this year, will be played in 1928 at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, John Arthur Brown of the University of Pennsylvania Athletic Association said yesterday.

Brown, who was here for a meeting of the American Rowing Association, said alterations will be made increasing the capacity of Franklin Field to 120,000 for the classic battle. Philadelphia has been a popular city for the annual clash. New York and Chicago alternated in playing host to the service teams the last three years.

LEO HIRED FOR ONLY PAIR OF BOUTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP.)—In a letter to Ed Frayne, sporting editor of the New York American, printed today, Jack Dempsey indicates that his connections with Leo P. Flynn, who directed him through the fights with Jack Sharkey and Gene Tunney, are at an end.

The letter says:

"Leo P. Flynn is all right. However, I only employed him for two fights. He's got a lot of business of his own to look after without handling me."

JACK MUST PAY COSTS

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 21.—(AP.)—Jack Dempsey has been ordered by Federal Judge Runyon to pay the costs of his unsuccessful attempt to have the case of Jack Kearns, his former manager, who is suing him for $333,333.33, tried as an action-at-law before a judge and jury.

Judge Runyon last week denied Dempsey's application and announced that the suit would head the equity calendar next month. The court costs are estimated at $50.

WHEN'S A TITLE A TITLE?

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(INS.)—Tommy Loughran, recognized by the New York Boxing Commission as light-heavyweight champion, wants to remove all doubt as to his titular status. The Philadelphia flash has challenged Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, recognized as the champion by the National Boxing Association, for a bout at any time.

Loughran claims that Slattery refused matches with him in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Wilkes-Barre and that Slattery refused to enter into an elimination series when the New York Commission named him, Loughran and Mike McTigue as leading contenders.

Slattery, however, has been ordered by the National Boxing Association to sign for a bout with McTigue within six months. McTigue, having been deprived of his honors in New York state by Loughran, will attempt to win the other half of the disputed title.

FIGHT FILMS GIVEN OK

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The controversy over the legality of exhibiting the Dempsey-Tunney fight films, which has set legal authorities by the ears in many states, was settled for New York state, at least, when Federal Judge Goddard handed down the opinion that the law does not forbid exhibition in this or any other state.

The judge said an exhibitor or distributor may receive films from a person whom he knows to have violated the law in transporting them into the state, but as long as the receiver takes no part in the transportation he is not accountable. He explained, however, that a person may not with impunity receive fight films from another state through the medium of the mails, an express company, or other common carrier.

Following these "clear" instructions, United States Attorney Tuttle said he would continue the film investigation, but would direct it toward discovering the persons who actually brought or instigated the bringing of the films into the state.

Boats Supplant Bridges on Shawnee Links

SHAWNEE, Pa., Oct. 21.—(INS.)—Because bridges connecting the island holes of the Shawnee Country Club golf course have been swept away by flood, contestants in the Shawnee invitation tournament are being transported from one hole to the next in rowboats. The qualifying round also had to be cut to 14 holes, enabling W. E. Donahue, of Newark, N. J., and Charles Eager, of Deal, N. J., to tie for the medal with a score of 61.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS by HARRY KECK SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

CAN'T blame Dr. Jock Sutherland very much for his viewpoint on the impending Pitt-Carnegie Tech struggle. He's peeved over the fact that it's coming to be accepted that Pitt stands out as much the stronger team and should win in a canter over the Tartans when they clash in the Stadium tomorrow, for the reason that with such an idea prevailing his boys will get no credit if they win, it being taken for granted that they should win, and if they lose it will be just too bad.

Jock points out that it's the same every year, regardless of whether or not Pitt has the better team. Just because Pitt was a big team before Tech came into prominence, some folks can't seem to get it into their heads that there are seasons now when Tech is fundamentally stronger than Pitt.

Of course, on paper, the edge appears to be all with Pitt in this year's game. The Panthers have been rambling along winning their games handily and have not yet been scored on, showing more offensive power than for some seasons past, while Carnegie, in its game with W. & J. last week, did not appear to be up to normal strength. Yet Tech may be expected to play its cards close to the vest tomorrow, concentrating on a strong defensive game and playing for the breaks. If the Tartans can hold Pitt's offensive in check, there's no telling what a break or two may do.

JAMES (RED) MASON, under commission ban in this state as a result of the aftermath of Cuddy DeMarco's bout with Billy Wallace at Motor Square Garden last week, is looking ahead several months to a trip he has planned for himself and three of his boxers to California, beginning shortly after the Christmas holidays. He will take along with him DeMarco, Young Rudy, the lightweight of Charleroi, and Tug Phillips, the welterweight of Fayette City. U. S. Carpentier, who is married and has family ties that force him to remain close to home, will not accompany the party. Mason expects to keep his crew busy on the coast for about three months and already is negotiating for matches. The return trip will be made via Hot Springs, Ark.

Mason and DeMarco will leave next Tuesday for Milwaukee, where Cuddy boxes Harry Kahn Friday night of next week. They will stop off one day in Chicago to break the monotony of the trip.

ANNOUNCEMENT by the University of Pittsburgh that it has effected a two-year home-and-home agreement with Notre Dame, whereby the Irish eleven will be met at South Bend in 1929 and in the Pitt Stadium the following season is just about the most cheerful football news that has been dished up for the local followers of the sport in years. The Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame games in recent seasons have proved very popular and there has been a genuine demand for a test of strength between Pitt and Coach Knute Rockne's men under the more favorable seating conditions in the Panthers' large stadium. The resumption of football relations between Pitt and Notre Dame is all the more pleasing, coming after a hiatus of 15 years, for it emphasizes the fact that feelings between the two institutions have remained friendly and that the stage is set for a renewal of competition on a healthy basis.

For the dyed-in-the-wool football fans the time can not pass any too speedily before the appearance of the Irish in the stadium, and if this athletic plant is not filled to capacity before that event it is just about a foregone conclusion that this battle will pack 'em in.

DUKE BARRY, former boxing promoter of Connellsville, who left there for Florida several years ago and now is campaigning in Chicago, has one good fighter who promises to make a lot of money for him. He is Roleaux

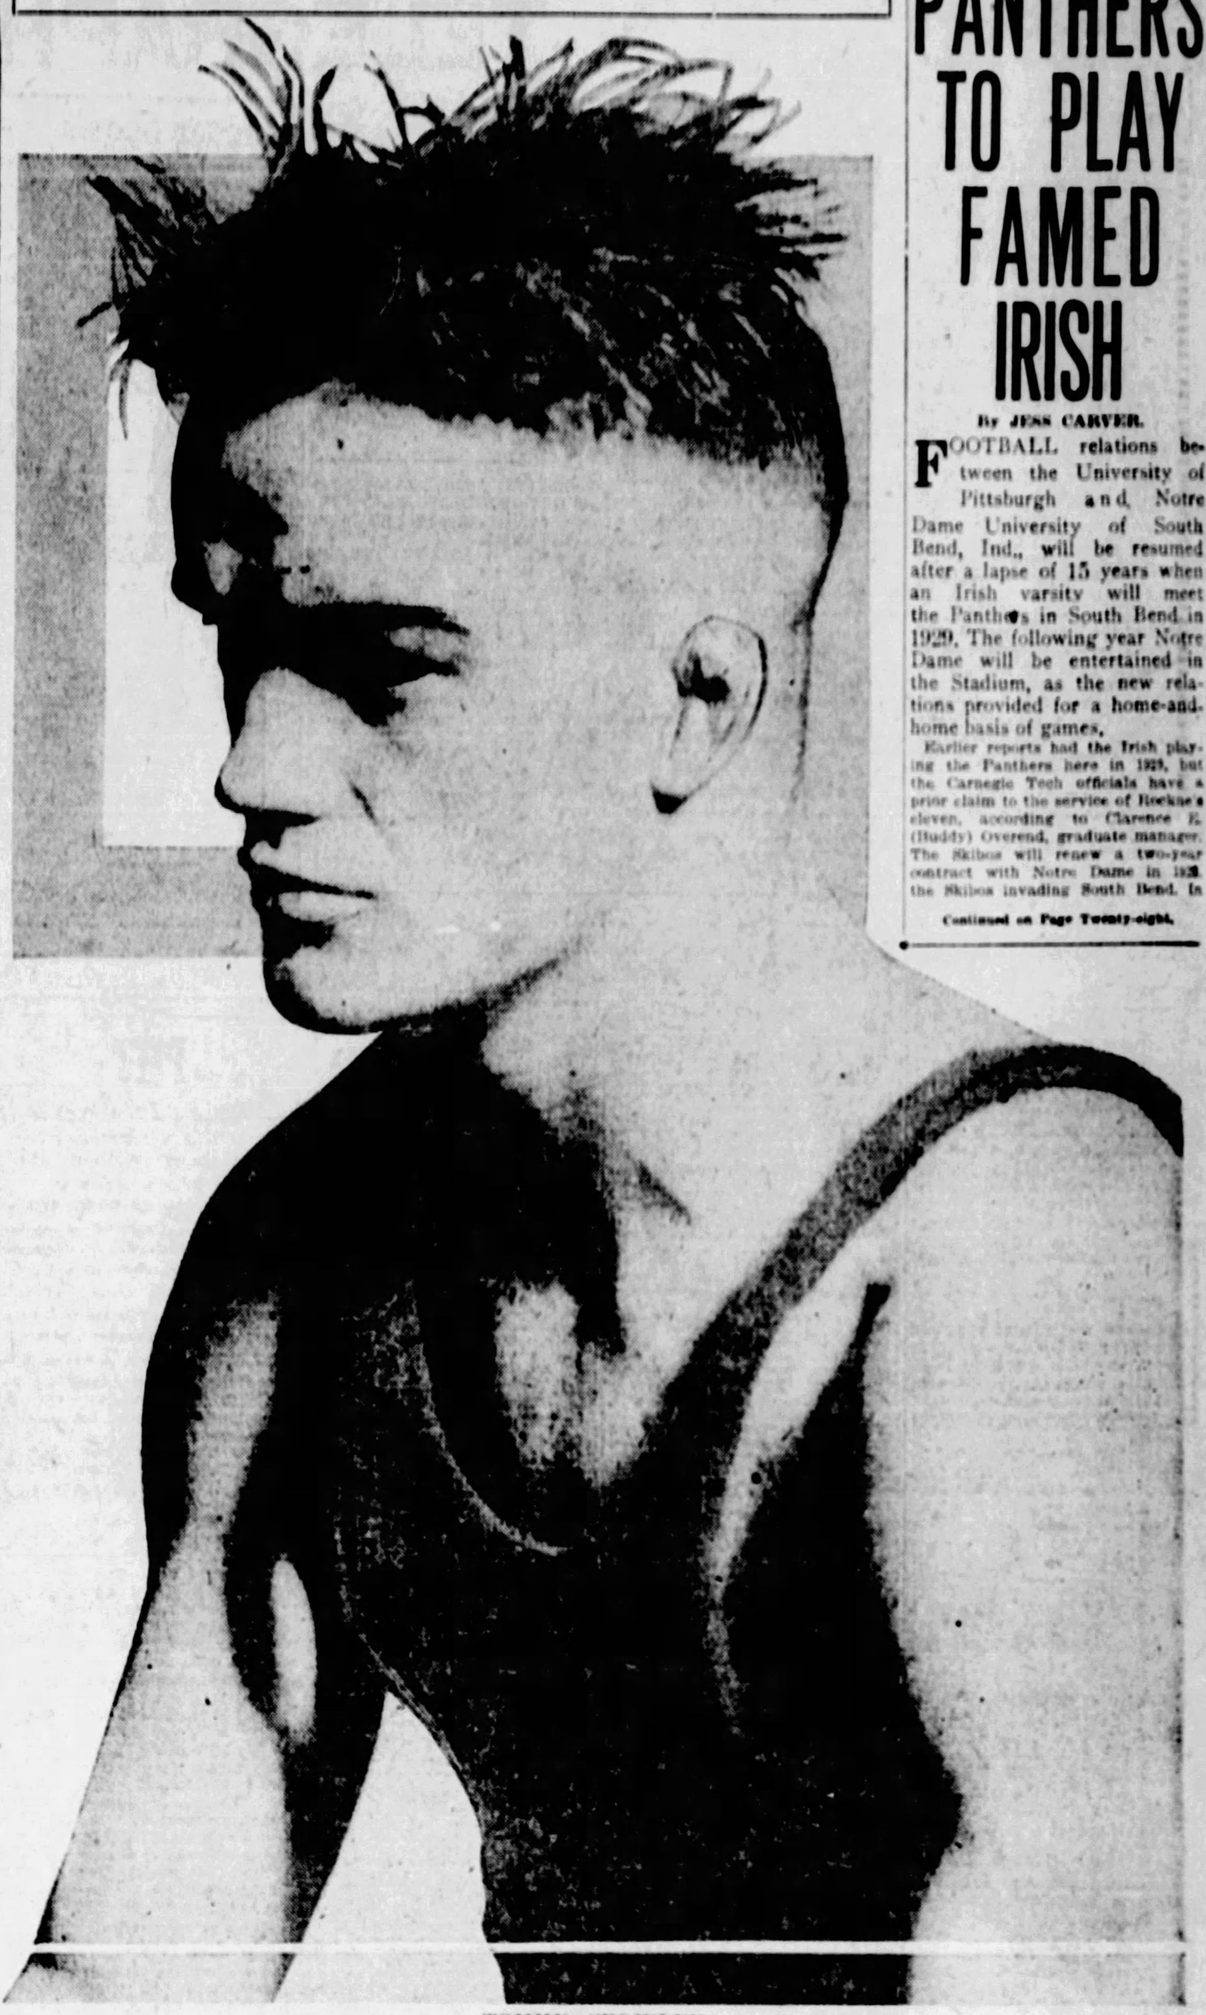
RARIN' TO GO AGAINST GOLDSTEIN



TOMMY CROWLEY

South Side lightweight, who boxes Phil Goldstein in a return bout in the Motor Square ring next Monday night. Their first meeting, last Christmas afternoon, in the same arena, was a wow, first Crowley and then Goldstein being on the verge of a knockout. Crowley won the decision at the end of the eight rounds and with it the featherweight championship of Pittsburgh. Since then both have outgrown that division. This picture of Crowley was taken following his daily workout at the Pittsburgh Lyceum yesterday. Doesn't he appear to be fit for animated action?

PANTHERS TO PLAY FAMED IRISH

By JESS CARVER.

FOOTBALL relations between the University of Pittsburgh and Notre Dame University of South Bend, Ind., will be resumed after a lapse of 15 years when an Irish varsity will meet the Panthers in South Bend in 1929. The following year Notre Dame will be entertained in the Stadium, as the new relations provided for a home-and-home basis of games.

Earlier reports had the Irish playing the Panthers here in 1929, but the Carnegie Tech officials have a prior claim to the service of Rockne's eleven, according to Clarence E. (Buddy) Overend, graduate manager. The Skibos will renew a two-year contract with Notre Dame in 1928, the Skibos invading South Bend. In

PATCHED DUKES PLAY THIEL ON BLUFF

By JESS CARVER.

WITH a patched lineup, the Durable Dukes, of Duquesne University, engaged the second Conference game of the season in Pittsburgh against Tom Holleran's Thiel College Lutherans on the Bluff this afternoon.

The game brought together a pair of elevens, neither of which has been able to get a victory over a Conference or sectional rival. Duquesne, true enough, won over Broaddus in the second game of the season here, but the drive shown in that game was sadly missing in the Geneva encounter and in the game with Bethany last week.

After making splendid showings against Pitt and Tech, and scoring on the latter, the Lutherans were held to a tie by Waynesburg, or rather, held Waynesburg to a tie. Coach Tommy has built his team around Stan Berkman, Schilling and Mitchell, a trio of mighty good backs. His chief stock in trade is a fine aerial game.

The Dukes, under the mentorship of two former Notre Dame stars, Elmer Layden and John Erie Weibel, with some green but willing material and with Ganzy Benedict, Donelli and Bus Shelton as the big guns also have a good passing attack, but so far, have been unable to find themselves and consequently, touchdowns have been as scarce as diamonds in a poor house.

DUKES CRIPPLED

Today, Coach Layden found himself further handicapped by having two linemen on the sidelines nursing injuries that will practically insure their remaining on the bench. One is a guard, Kelleher, who played such a fine game against Geneva, and Kirby, a tackle, who was injured in the Bethany contest.

Kemp has been groomed for Kirby's place, and Propokovitz is scheduled to start at right tackle in the place of Kirby.

The Lutherans arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday noon and were put through a short drill on the Bluff gridiron in the afternoon. Coach Holleran's team is in slightly better physical trim than are the Dukes, but there is much left to be desired even in the Thiel camp.

Berkman is the gentleman that Duquesne must keep an eye on today, for he baffled Tech with his passes and running and he is just as likely to baffle the Dukes unless they are on the alert every second.

The game will start at 2:30 p. m.

PEABODY LOSES TITLE CHANCE

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER

Westinghouse High's football team downed Peabody yesterday afternoon on the Silver Lake field 22 to 6, and virtually clinched the Section I championship of the City League.

The only team standing between Westinghouse and the title today is Fifth Avenue, whose eleven was soundly trounced by Schenley yesterday.

Westinghouse's triumph yesterday was a clean cut one. The victors scored in every period, scoring three times with touchdowns and once on a field goal. Peabody's lone score came in the last quarter, when J. Williams picked up a fumble and ran 70 yards for a touchdown.

Peabody had a chance to score in the opening quarter. After the kickoff, Westinghouse punted on the first down, but the punt was poor and the ball went out of bounds on the 30 yard line. Peabody tried a pass, but it was intercepted and the chance to tally was lost.

Kelleher proved the stellar light for the East End team from a defensive standpoint, while little Red Sullivan, Ormiston, Brown and Patterson showed brilliantly for Westinghouse. Goeddell, who dropped on the first Silver Lake points for a "lucky" touchdown, was forced to the sidelines shortly after when he received a bad cut over his right eye.

Oliver, which appears to be the strongest remaining contender for Section II honors, easily bested South Hills, 27 to 7. McLane and Moar were the bright lights in the victory.

Carrick took over Langley, 19 to 6. Burke, Port and Nussbaum starring for their respective teams. The first half was fairly even, Carrick leading

TRAVELERS DROP JOE CANTILLIO

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 21.—"Pongo Joe" Cantillio, manager of the local Southern Association baseball club during the past two years, will not pilot the team next year, according to announcement made yesterday by Ray Winders, assistant to president R. G. Allen of the Travelers.

Winders would make no further statement regarding next year's manager, except to say that no man now a member of the team is being considered for the place.

Waner Bros. Prefer Life On Diamond To Stage

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 21.—Paul and Lloyd Waner, stars of the Pittsburgh Pirates National League Championship ball club, who have taken their brother act from the diamond to the stage prefer the life of a ball player to that of an actor, they said here.

The young Oklahomans are appearing in a vaudeville skit in a local theater. Their act opens with moving pictures of the world series. The usual repartee follows with the two ball players exchanging baseball jokes and the act closes with Paul performing on the violin and Lloyd with the saxaphone.

FIRE DESTROYS $5,000 IN GRID EQUIPMENT

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

LLOYD WANER, one-day captain of the Pirates, gave the Pittsburgh crew a laugh on that occasion. After clinching the flag in Cincinnati on the day before the windup of the season, Donie Bush sent most of the regulars home, but Sprout remained over to take part in the finale, he being the only one of the first-string performers to participate. And Sprout was the only player who could cope successfully with the curves of one John Jablanowski who held the Buccos to four hits as he scored a shutout victory. As the battle waged furiously, but with few Pirate hits, Lloyd, coming to the bench, remarked to his men:

"The next time I run this team I'm going to get Socko in the lineup to give the club a punch."

ONE of the funny things of sport world is the light-heavyweight boxing title. The tissue paper crown is supposed now to belong to Tommy Loughran, but Jimmy Slattery is recognized as the holder of the title in some quarters, it would seem. Loughran is a great boy, but he is no champion in the ring.

ADDED publicity, of course, goes with a championship. On the other hand, an athlete may be a champ in some respects but through lack of press notices he will not get far with the men who name the champs. A striking case we have in Pittsburgh at the present time. There are football critics of this town who think that Gibby Welch of the Panther squad can do more things on a grid than were achieved by Red Grange. But Grange played in big intersectional games and in the press boxes at these contests were wires that carried the deeds of the clever red-head to the far-flung and remote places of the United States. The big news services that reaches all corners of the country were on hand to chronicle the runs made by Grange, and he was thus made the unanimous choice.

WELCH will play most of his games in the Pitt Stadium. A great place, you bet, but there will be little note made of Gibby in the East and West when he runs 105 yards for a touchdown. Had Grange achieved this feat against a club as good as West Virginia, the scores of writers and critics of the big cities would have placed the stunt in bold letters in their Monday columns. Some of them didn't seem to know it happened.

WELCH is a wonder of the grid, but he'll be lucky to make the All-American team on account of the reasons cited. However, the All-American team is pretty much bunk, anyhow.

Saguero, the Cuban light-heavyweight. Recently Saguero knocked out Art Weigand in one round in Chicago and followed this up last Tuesday night by stopping Earl Blue in three rounds in the Windy City. He also has in his record a hard 12-round battle with Jack Renault in Havana and a four-round knockout victory over Homer Robertson at the same place. The Duke would like to show his Cuban here against what have we. Saguero is a southpaw.

WILLIAM H. BUSCH, Pittsburgh and Boston runner and walker, who is crossing the continent afoot from Los Angeles to Boston in an effort to break Edward Payson Weston's long-standing record, has passed through Indianapolis and is now headed for Columbus, from where he will go to Wheeling and then come to Pittsburgh. He is keeping well up to the schedule he has mapped out for himself and is confident of breaking the mark. A vaudeville tour awaits him if he makes good. The young athlete's parents reside in Millvale.

HOMER ROBERTSON wants to fight Maxie Rosenbloom again. His manager, Solly Snyder, writes from Boston that Homer figures he fought Maxie all wrong here last Monday night and will not make the same mistakes in a return bout.

NIGHT baseball recently was successfully tried down East, and now night football has been initiated in the South, sort of taking the gridiron sport out of the limelight and putting it in the spotlight. In Birmingham, Ala., thousands of fans witnessed a demonstration of night football played under the glare of electrical illumination that proved very practicable. With the spectators sitting in the darkness, 30 lights, each of 1,000 watts and 1,500 candlepower, were strung lengthwise across the field five feet apart at a height of 50 feet. In addition, there were two floodlights, one playing on the scoreboard. The lighting facilities were such that the highest punts easily could be followed and the game proceeded as smoothly as a daylight contest.

to 6, but the Hill team came back in the third quarter to score a pair of touchdowns, the while holding its opponent even.

Schenley used a number of utility men from its reserve squad to another Fifth Avenue under a 38-0 score. The Bellefielders were held scoreless only in the second quarter.

Presidents In Top Form

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 21.—A rousing sendoff was given the members of the Washington and Jefferson football squad by the Red and Black undergraduate body as the team entrained here last night for the annual battle with Lafayette at Easton Saturday. The entire student body, 500 strong, turned out to bid goodby to the gridders.

A short but snappy drill at College Field yesterday afternoon completed the active intensive work for the struggle Saturday. The squad as a whole is in fine condition with the exception of Jap Douds, sterling tackle, who is still feeling the effects of the severe cold which gripped him prior to the Carnegie Tech game last week.

The backfield, made up of the "Four Patriots," Amos, Kirkman, Heisel and Cook, is intact and will start the game.

Graduate Manager William G. Theurer said just before the party left last night that the team will be taken direct to Bethlehem and will be quartered at the Bethlehem Hotel. They will get a chance to take out the kinks this afternoon at Bethlehem and will be taken to Easton just about an hour before the time for the opening kickoff.

Bad weather this week has handicapped Head Coach Andy Kerr in his work of preparation, but when leaving he said he was satisfied with the condition and expected a great game.

"We are ready," the mentor said, "and I anticipate watching one of the bitterest struggles Saturday which has ever been played by the two teams. It looks like pretty much of a tossup to me."

NOTES of the BOXERS

THE card has been definitely set for next Monday night's show at Motor Square Garden after two rearrangements, each of which has helped to make the bill more attractive. The show will consist of four eight-round bouts, with Tommy Crowley and Phil Goldstein meeting in their long-awaited return battle in the windup. The semi-final will see Young Saylor, of Charleroi, in action again, with Teddy Esterbrook, of Niles, O., as his opponent. Nick Susnell, welterweight, of Rochester, Pa., and Joey LaGrey, of Johnstown, will box in the second bout and the opener will be between Tug Phillips, of Fayette City, and Walter Dickerson, of California, also welters.

The Motor Square Club probably will not run a show next week on account of Halloween.

Pete Zivic boxes Toney Carney at Worcester, Mass., tonight.

Midget Mike Moran, of Mt. Washington, now a member of the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery, answers the gong against Trip Limbaco, the Filipino, at Lafayette, Ind., next Friday night.

Sandy Seifert, the North Side heavyweight, plans the return to New York next week for some bouts his manager has lined up for him in the East. He probably will return shortly for a return battle with Emmett Rocco, the Ellwood City heavyweight, who gave him such a hard fight at Youngstown last week.

Wee Willie Davies, state flyweight champion, got his first peek at Willie, Jr., on his return to Charleroi the other day from California. The heir to the Davies fortunes was born while Willie was competing in bouts on the coast.

Young Nanci, of Swissvale, and Pete Roberts, of Wheeling, have been matched for the six-round main bout of a show at Wheeling Monday night.

Patsy Gallagher, South Side featherweight boxer, is mourning the loss of his father, who died last evening following a long illness. Patsy's mother died a few months ago.

Football Stars Are Suspended for Cribbing

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP.)—Because of violations of training rules or cribbing at examinations football players were under a cloud in two eastern cities today. In a third football writers demanded an investigation of charges that one of their number had divulged plays of one college team to an opponent.

Syracuse newspapermen have been stirred by a letter to the athletic governing board of Syracuse University by the coach of William and Mary, at Williamsburg, Va., saying he had received information regarding Syracuse plays in advance of the game on October 1. William and Mary made a better showing against Syracuse than ever before.

The letter said the information was divulged by a newspaperman through a third party. Nine newspapermen joined in a letter to Chancellor C. W. Flint requesting a complete investigation. They said they had been unable to find anyone who had acted improperly.

Because of a break in training rules, Capt. Tom Sawyer and three first-string men, Christie, Elliot and Begg of the American University squad at Washington, have been suspended. The American game with William and Mary tomorrow has been canceled due to lack of players.

At Vineland, N. J., five members of the high school football team have been suspended for looking at examination papers alleged to have been stolen by three students two weeks ago. The students are barred from athletics until February 1.

DENIAL ISSUED

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 21.—(AP.)—Wilder Tasker, coach at William and Mary College, emphatically denied today that he had written a letter to the athletic governing board at Syracuse University saying that he had received information regarding Syracuse plays in advance of the game on October 1.

Billy Is Fooled

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Billy Wallace, Cleveland lightweight, is so eager to get a shot at the world's lightweight championship that he wired Jim Mullen yesterday, offering to fight Sammy Mandell, the titleholder, for nothing.

SCHOLASTIC GRID ELEVENS TO PLAY TODAY

By VERNON A. SWARTSPAGER.

With most of the local games carded today already history, there are few games left on the lists for Pittsburgh proper. However, a number of games are carded in surrounding territories and several of them are mighty interesting. The Crafton-at-Dormont tilt should bring about some excellent competition; Sewickley and Bellevue clash in a battle of rivals; Coraopolis visits Ben Avon; Canonsburg invades Bridgeville; McKees Rocks goes to Carnegie; Donora and West Newton clash; Glassport visits Homestead; McDonald is host to Cecil.

A change in date has been noted for Rankin High. It has canceled its October 28 date with Etna and booked Sacred Heart High School. The Etna-Sharpsburg game has been changed to November 11 at Etna. Etna meets Aspinwall on the latter's gridiron tomorrow.

Wilkinsburg's adherents are backing their team to down Greensburg tomorrow following the announcement that Tom McDowell, Holy City captain, who was injured last week, will be able to take the field. Greensburg has taken on the status of the big game of the year for the Red and Blue, and additions have been made to the Graham Field bleachers.

Added interest is given to the fray because of the presence of Elmer Carroll at Wilkinsburg. Carroll produced well-nigh unbeatable teams for seven years at Greensburg before taking the reins at Wilkinsburg.

Both teams have been saving tricks for this game, neither one having used any trick plays in their early season wins.

Dormont, pepped up by their showing against Schenley last week, is ready for Crafton High, which goes to Annapolis Field this afternoon for the fifth meeting between the two teams.

The Dormont gridders, who scored more touchdowns against Schenley than any other team during the last five years, have yet to win their first game from Crafton. Coaches Glass, Carroll and Laeffler have the team in first-class shape, their morale being restored by the return to scrimmage of Capt. Jim Saeger, who was out of the Schenley game due to injuries suffered the week previous, when he was kicked in the head, suffering a slight concussion.

Shady Side Academy battles Western Reserve Academy tomorrow on the Aspinwall school's field, beginning at 10:45 o'clock in the morning. The teams will attend the Pitt-Tech battle in the stadium in the afternoon. Shady Side has been considerably weakened in its line with the loss of Capt. Hal Shekels, who is out with an injured leg. Shekels may not be able to play, although doctors have been working on his hurt limb all week. Shady Side hopes for victory.

PITT

This information, coming as it did on the eve of the annual city classic, the Pitt-Tech championship game, has been received with joy throughout the athletic, university and civic circles of the city. Director of Athletics Elmer F. Blakeslee made the announcement last night. The scheduling of Notre Dame, it was said, is only the first step in a campaign designed to bring to Pittsburgh the best football attractions in the country annually.

Notre Dame and Pitt squared off on the gridiron for the last time in 1912. On that date, Gus Dorias, now coach of Detroit University, booted a field goal to give the Irish a 3-0 win over the Panthers. They battled to a scoreless tie in 1910, and in 1909, Notre Dame won 6 to 0. This game was the first to be played at Forbes Field.

Notre Dame has met two other district teams, playing Carnegie Tech four times and W. & J. once. The W. & J. game was in 1917, at Washington, Pa., when the Irish triumphed 3 to 0.

The joy that greeted the scheduling of the Irish was slightly dampened by the concern felt over the loss of Dick Booth, plunging fullback, who will hardly be able to play against Tech Saturday. Coach Sutherland stated yesterday that the extent of Dickie's injuries, received in the Drake rumpus last week, were greater than had been expected, and that he did not believe that he would use Booth against the Tartans.

TEAMS LEAVE TOWN

Both teams are out of the city, the Panthers leaving early in the morning yesterday for parts unknown, where they will put the finishing touches on their training today, and the Tartans leaving somewhat later in the day, also for an unnamed spot.

Both coaches, Sutherland of Pitt and Bob Waddell and Judge Wally Steffen of Tech had a few pointed remarks to make as their team hied for the sticks. Sutherland emphasized the fact that his Panthers should not be established overwhelming favorites over the Tartans, and Bob Waddell said that he had the highest respect for the Pitt team this season, and that if his team was beaten decisively, he'd give Pitt a world of credit.

Judge Steffen does not consider the Tartan's chances hopeless, though he admits that the Panthers have a powerful machine, even with Booth on the sidelines.

As things stand now, it remains for Tech to stop the open field and off tackle thrusts of Welch and Hagan, and passing of Gibby and Edwards and the line plunging that Parkinson will be called upon to do. On the other hand, Pitt must be on the alert for the tricky plays sure to be exhibited by Tech, but break up the Harpster passing attack and rush Harp all that is possible when he is punting.

Pitt need have but little fear of the Tech running attack or the line play. So far, the Tartans have not been able to develop a ball carrier who can approach the Mefort-Donohoe combination of last year. English has been doing most of the ball toting on the end around play and so far has failed to turn in any sensational gains.

The old psychological angle, the one that has entered into every Pitt-Teach football game ever played, crops up again with the Pitt being made the favorites. Pitt was favored in 1923—and lost. They were beaten again in '24, and in '25, Jack Harding, Jess Brown and Sandy Gustafson led Pitt to its first victory since relations were resumed between the schools after the 1917 fracas. Last year, with the teams evenly matched, Tech again entered the game somewhat of an underdog, and won.

Tech has been defeated by W. & J. so far this year and scored on by Thiel. But the whole matter may be summed up in a crack something like this:

"Tech, crushed to earth by W. & J., or some other team, usually rises again and swats dear old Pitt right in the neck—whether you like it or not."

Keppen Takes Lacing From Joey LaGrey

JOEY LAGREY, Johnstown, Pa., welterweight, easily defeated Sig Keppen of Beaver Falls in the 10-round main bout at McKeesport last night. LaGrey, touted as a stiff puncher, failed to drop Keppen, but won every round by a wide margin.

Stinging lefts and rights to the head and body and a general superior attack kept LaGrey in front all the way. In the first round, he missed a hard right swing aimed at the jaw, and both fighters fell to the floor of the ring.

LaGrey weighed 143 pounds, Keppen 140.

In the semi-final, Steve O'Malley of Bellaire, O., outpointed Jack Banty of McKeesport over the six-round route. O'Malley carried every round by a wide margin with the exception of the last, which was fairly even.

O'Malley kept Banty from working in close, and planted solid lefts and rights on his face as he tried to bore in. Banty weighed 137 pounds to 140 for O'Malley.

Chuck Zelnack, boxer and football player, staged a fine comeback to get a draw with George Pavlick of Johnstown in the second bout of the card. The men fought hard all the way, and many believe Zelnak deserved an edge. Judge Simco called the bout in favor of Zelnack, but Judge Graff and Referee Deitz voted for a draw.

The judges also disagreed on the outcome of the first bout, between Marty McHale of McKeesport and Nick Zinna of Jeannette. The referee finally awarded the bout to McHale. It was a hard-fought fracas, with McHale punishing Zinna severely and having him all but out in the fifth round. Judge Graff thought neither fighter deserved the decision and called it a draw.

SHOTS and PASSES

GRANTING admittance to three new members, namely Heinz House, Sharpsburg Y. M. C. A. and Webster Hall, the West Penn League, one of the strongest amateur basketball circuits ever organized in this vicinity, was formed last night at a meeting of the managers. Five of last year's members, Kingsley House, Duquesne Saltzers, Knickerbockers, Trinity Church and Homewood Presbyterians, retain their franchises.

THE addition of the three new members strengthens the West Penn League considerably and indications point to a close fight for the championship this winter. This league stirred up considerable interest in local amateur circles last winter, but a closer fight is promised this year in view of the number of evenly-matched quintets enrolled as members. Heinz House, Sharpsburg Y. M. C. A. and Webster Hall have organized powerful quintets and will make a determined effort to win the championship this winter.

WHILE no official schedule has been adopted for the West Penn League, it was agreed by the rival managers to open the campaign on November 19 and to split the season. Fourteen games will be played by each quintet during the first half of the season and a similar number during the last half. All teams will be limited to 12 registered amateur players, the names to be turned into the hands of the league officials no later than November 12, one week before the schedule opens.

UNLIKE past seasons, an arbitration board of five members will act on all disputes that may arise during the course of the league schedule. This board will be composed of Jack Sell, Paul Kurta, Ralph Davis, Dr. L. J. Beinhauer and Julius Levin. Al Underwood, organizer of the league, will serve in the capacity of director as in past years.

EIGHTEEN applicants for berths in the West Penn League turned out at the meeting last night and as it was decided to form only an eight-club circuit, steps were taken to organize another circuit to be known as the Central League. This loop will include the South Side Falcons, Penn Five of Sharpsburg, M. G. Leslie Club of Lawrenceville, McKeesport Y. M. C. A., Avalon Scholastics, One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery, Pittsburgh and Lake Erie and Verona Traders.

WEBSTER HALL, a newcomer in local amateur basketball circles, will present a center in its lineup this winter who is said to be one of the tallest tipoff men engaged in basketball hereabouts. Red Hukle, former University of Kentucky star, will hold down this important position for the Oaklanders. Several other former college stars will be found in Webster Hall's lineup.

GENE BOYLE, manager of the Knickerbockers of Lawrenceville, will have another powerful quintet at his command this winter. The Knickerbockers, as in past years, will play all home games at Forresters Hall. The Strip passers shape up as one of the strongest enrolled in the West Penn loop and they are expected to make the race quite interesting for the remaining contenders.

SAM DREYFUSS TO WED MEMPHIS GIRL MONDAY

Sam Dreyfuss, treasurer of the Pittsburgh baseball club, left for Memphis last night, where on Monday he will be married to Miss Carolyn Wolf of Paragould, Ark. The couple will spend their honeymoon in Europe. The bridegroom was accompanied by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Dreyfuss.

FIGHT RESULTS

At McKeesport—Joey LaGrey defeated Sig Keppen, 10 rounds; Steve O'Malley defeated Jack Banty, 6 rounds; Chuck Zelnack and George Pavlik drew, 6 rounds; Marty McHale won referee's decision over Nick Zinna, 6 rounds.

At New York—Pete Sanstol defeated Nick DeSalvo, 4 rounds; Al Moscowitz defeated Nick Quagliano, 4 rounds; Tommy DeCarlo and Tony Pellegrino drew, 4 rounds; Sid Angstreich and Ernest Sarkies drew, 4 rounds.

ALEKHINE LEADS

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 21.—Alexander Alekhine still leads Jose Capablanca three games to two in their match for the chess championship of the world. The eighteenth game ended last night in a draw after the twenty-eighth move.

SPORT LENS

WORD from Des Moines says that the boys of Drake who played both Pitt and the Navy believe that Pitt is two touchdowns better than the Navy. This will be interesting to those who remember that Navy was beaten by Notre Dame 19 to 6. The question on many a man's lips today is: "What a great fight would come from a game between Notre Dame and the great Pitt eleven?" Some day that dream may come true.

An insurance company sends in a list of prominent persons with the amount of insurance these notables carry. In the entire list there is not a prominent sport participant. One naturally looked to see how much insurance such men as Ruth, Tunney and Dempsey carried, but they either don't carry much or their names have been lost in the shuffle.

MUCH fuss was made about the change in rules which followed a futile lateral pass to enjoy the same exemption from enemy recovery as the forward pass enjoys. Many were the complaints and awful were the consequences predicted. Yet the average spectator watching the game this year can find no great difference as compared with the game of last year before the lateral pass was granted exemption. Judging from various accounts the lateral pass, even with the present exemption, is a weapon not overly liked by the coaches.

WHILE far from being a genius about the intricacies and subtleties of football, it strikes us that one of the futile plays attempted is short forward passes. The only forward that brings a reward commensurate with the risk is a long one, it seems to these inexpert eyes. How many short forwards do you see that gain little if any ground, when completed; which, at their worst, are often incompleted and sometimes intercepted?

TUSS M'LAUGHRY, a good-looking gentleman from Mercer county originally, who coaches Brown (almost coached Brown to a championship last season) has an original vein. After Brown took one on the chin at the hands of Yale last Saturday the capable Mr. McLaughry made switches in his lineup, not because the boys removed were inept, but because they were worrying, taking their football too seriously.

IF YOU go to the Pitt-Carnegie Tech game, please do not give all your attention to the man carrying the ball. He is being helped by those boys in the trenches who so often are unsung. Divide your time something like this: For three plays watch an end; for the next three plays watch a tackle; for the next three observe the guard. Pick out one individual in the line for three or four plays and watch how he paves the way for the man in the backfield. After you thus watch these linesmen helping the ball carrier, then watch the defensive lineman. Observe how the defense tackle tries to knife through to smear a play. Watch how he uses his hands. It is fairly easy to watch the ends, the backfield men, and an outstanding center, but the work of giant guards, capable tackles all too often is overlooked.

TWO BOUTS ANNOUNCED FOR Y. M. H. A. RING SHOW

Two of the eight bouts being arranged by the Young Men's Hebrew Association for its opening amateur show of the season, scheduled in its building on Bellefield avenue on Thursday, November 3, have been announced by Ben Giffen, director of the boxing activities at the Y. M. H. A.

Scott Delo, wearing the colors of the Verona Club, has been matched with Frank Lanz, of the Willow A. C. They weigh in at 126 pounds.

In the other event, John Brown, of the Willow A. C., will meet George Guba, Clairton, at 135 pounds.

G. O. P. MACHINE PRIMARY COST $128,869.07

The Regular Republican organization spent $128,869.07 in its recent primary campaign and has unpaid debts and obligations amounting to $23,759.75, represented chiefly by a note of $20,000 to the Washington Trust Company, and $2,627 for rent owed to the Hotel Henry, where the organization maintained its headquarters. The chief expenditure was $42,555 for 8,511 watchers at the polls, one-third of the total outlay.

Contributions to the campaign fund aggregated $132,400, consisting of actual contributions of $92,420 and the notes payable at the Washington Trust Company of $40,000. The donors or individuals responsible on the notes were not shown. The expense account was filed by J. B. Euwer, treasurer, with Clerk of Courts John Francies late yesterday, the last day for filing.

After the $40,000 contribution represented simply by notes, the largest donor to the "war chest" was William I. Berryman as treasurer of the committee for the four common pleas judges, with a contribution of $7,500.

Contributors giving $500 or more were:

Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, $2,000; Judges Nelson McVicar and George V. Moore and Elder W. Marshall, E. C. Chalfant and W. Heber Dithrich, candidates for judge, and John Francies, candidate for County Treasurer, $2,500 each; County Commissioners E. V. Babcock and Joseph G. Armstrong, $2,400 each; Mrs. Edith Oliver Rea, $2,000; E. T. Weir, $1,750; District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, City Controller John H. Henderson, S. J. Tepley, candidate for clerk of courts, and R. G. Woodside, candidate for County Controller, $1,600 each; W. A. Bonita, Irwin B. Laughlin and J. H. Humphrey, $1,500 each; Councilmen Daniel Winters, Charles Anderson, Robert J. Alderdice and Robert Garland, $1,300 each; Elizabeth M. Horne, Alice Jones Willock, B. F. Jones, Jr., and Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Jr., $1,250 each; Samuel D. Foster, candidate for Recorder, $1,100; Joseph Kissane, E. W. Mudge, H. F. Wahr, Joseph M. Hollander, H. C. McEldowney, R. V. Bingay, Grant McCargo, S. G. Robinson, E. P. Jackson, E. H. McClintock, J. C. Trees, Lucy Lippitt, W. H. Boots, M. A. Williams, G. M. Laughlin, Jr., and J. D. Hauser, $1,000 each; Elisa L. Phillips and Duncan Phillips, $750 each; County Poor Directors W. D. Henderson, H. H. Miller and J. T. Lorch, $700 each; F. D. Saupp, Edgar Kaufmann, James H. Hammond, George L. Craig, William G. Clyde, J. D. Callery, George M. Davison, Raymond Pitcairn and L. A. Robinson, $500 each.

A large staff of clerks, janitors, stenographers and messengers received a considerable proportion of the expenditures in weekly pay ranging from $25 to $100. The remainder went for printing and stationery, office equipment, rent, postage, transportation, advertising, music and radio and miscellaneous expenses.

MOTORCYCLIST KILLED AS CAR HITS POLE

Fred Campbell, 19, of 133 Sixteenth street, Ambridge, died in the Rewickley Valley Hospital late yesterday an hour after he was hurled from the sidecar of a motorcycle when it skidded and collided with a pole in Merchant street, Ambridge. He suffered a fracture of the skull. The owner and driver of the machine, Harry Cochenour, of 309 Fourteenth street, Ambridge, was reported recovering from a fracture of the skull and other injuries.

MAN CONVICTED IN KILLING OF BROTHER

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 21.—After two hours' deliberation, a Criminal Court jury here found Robert Kunkle, 24, guilty of manslaughter for the killing of his brother, James, September 29, after a quarrel over their joint moonshining activities. The state asked for a verdict of first degree murder.

ASK STATE STOP USE OF CREEK AS SEWER

A plea to the state health authorities to end the nuisance of using Nine Mile Run as an outlet for the sewers of three boroughs, parts of three townships and a section of Pittsburgh was filed in Harrisburg after 95 residents had affixed their signatures.

Arthur E. Campbell, 415 Trenton avenue, Wilkinsburg, in a few hours' time found sufficient signatures to the petition to give it standing with the authorities.

From where it empties into the Monongahela River at Brown's Station, to Barnes and West Hutchinson streets, Edgewood, Nine Mile Run is an open stream. Beyond, through Wilkinsburg, Swissvale and Edgewood boroughs and parts of Penn, Wilkins and Braddock townships, the run has been covered. Sewage from these sections drains into the stream, which also flows through a part of Frick Park.

Residents of Regent square, the Trenton avenue section, Wilkinsburg, Greendale avenue, Edgewood, and North Homestead long have complained of the odors arising from the open section of the stream, and the petition to the state health authorities is their effort to have conditions remedied.

ALTY AGENT HELD IN CASH BOND TRICK

R. R. Becker of the City Builders' Corporation of America was held for court on a charge of false pretense before Alderman G. J. Anderson yesterday in connection with his activities in South Hills real estate.

Joseph Gribshaw of 615 Delaware avenue, Glassport, the plaintiff, says in a sworn statement that he answered an advertisement for employment and was taken on a bus ride to the corporation's lot plan beyond Mt. Lebanon.

He says that Becker promised him employment if he would put up a cash bond of $75. He borrowed the $75 from a widowed mother, deposited the money with Becker, and signed his name, in the belief that he would be employed at $40 a week, he charges. He discovered later that what he had done was to make the first payment on one of the corporation's lots, according to his story.

WINTER'S WIFE GETS DIVORCE

Raymond Winter, condemned murderer, lost his wife yesterday in Common Pleas Court when Judge James B. Drew granted a decree of divorce to Mildred Winter, 13 Shannon avenue, Overbrook, who sued on grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment.

Unless a sanity commission's pending report results in a change of sentence, Winter will die in the electric chair for the murder of Alexander and Helen Sabo, youngsters, in Castle Shannon two years ago.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Gas in the stomach accompanied by a full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful or four tablets in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never in liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Hoot Gibson to Emulate Some Other Screen Celebrities and Produce His Own Photoplays

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 21.

FROM cowboy to producer sounds as if Horatio Alger had a movie inspiration. Alger might have written such a success tale, too, if he had ever heard of "Hoot" Gibson, film actor. "Hoot" has been with Universal Pictures Corporation for many years. Now his contract expires and he wants to make his own pictures.

At first Carl Laemmle tried to talk him out of the idea. But when he found "Hoot" wanted to emulate Gloria Swanson, Corinne Griffith and the other film celebrities and make his own pictures, he said all right but let Universal do the financing.

"Hoot" agreed to let it be said with a five-year contract, which bears the new and intriguing title, "'Hoot' Gibson Productions," to be distributed through Universal. His first will be "The Roaring Rider," written by Arthur Guy Empey and directed by Reeves Eason.

I suppose "What Price Glory" will always remain a goal to everyone on the Fox lot. Not only because it is such a good picture, but because it has been making money, and that, my friends, is an infallible standard for judging any picture. Raoul Walsh will gather as much of the "What Price Glory" cast together as possible to play in "The Cock-Eyed World." Dolores del Rio, who leaves for Mexico City for a visit as soon as she finishes "Ramona," will be borrowed for the feminine lead, while Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe will be Mr. Walsh's choice for his leading men.

Universal cannot possibly realize any returns on their $250,000 investment in "Broadway" until 1929. There is a stipulation in their contract forbidding the film version to be released before that date. Alfred Cohn, who has been in New York and who is returning to Hollywood with Carl Laemmle and family, has been engaged to write the scenario. He strongly favors Marshall Neilan as the director and has mentioned his preference to Universal. Whether or not Mickey gets the job is not yet set. He has always wanted to direct "Broadway," because he believes it is his kind of a story. Edmund Goulding is another Broadwayite who has looked with longing eyes on this play since it was first mentioned as a film possibility.

The familiar faces are increasing at Columbia studios. It isn't safe for any star to talk five minutes with Harry Cohn, for if he isn't careful he gets his John Hancock on a piece of paper. Jack Holt was caught off his guard and signed for a picture at Columbia a few weeks ago. He liked the experience so well that now he has signed for two pictures and this time [illegible] own volition. His first will be [illegible] arning," with Dorothy Revier [illegible] leading lady. The second is [illegible] ong the unnamed.

Now that Fanny Brice is all divorced and can concentrate on her work, she is getting ready to think about her first picture for Asher, Small & Rogers. Production will start in April and the only thing missing is the story. However, Miss Brice has talked with Edna Ferber and has tried to sell Miss Ferber the idea of writing an original and if she does, it ought to be a story worth filming. Edna can write, and how.

Christmas time isn't so far away. (No, this isn't an advertisement for the merchants and I don't like to think about it any more than you do. Still, we must face facts, mustn't we?) The reason I know it is near is because Maurice Stiller is leaving to spend the holidays in Sweden. Harry D'Arrast will sail shortly for Paris to eat his Christmas dinner with his mother. He will be accompanied by Monta Bell.

Dolores Costello, with her health fully restored, is not going to be allowed to remain idle by Warner Brothers. As soon as she finishes "The Glorious Betsy" she will begin work on "Tenderloin," under the direction of Michael Curtiz. "Tenderloin" is by Darryl Zanuck and is mentioned as a program picture of six reels. I suppose if they present it with Vitaphone that will make it much longer and they tell me that is their plan at the moment. I am wondering just how successful these pictures with Vitaphone will be. Most people enjoy their movies in silence. Yet, there are times when Vitaphone would not be amiss.

Two Film Stars Patients in Hospital

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.—Adolphe Menjou is in the California-Lutheran Hospital, suffering from stomach trouble. Attending physicians said they do not believe an operation will be necessary. Menjou will remain in the hospital under observation for two weeks.

Blanche Sweet, actress-wife of Marshal Neilan, the director, who underwent a minor operation a few weeks ago, is back again at the Good Samaritan Hospital. She will undergo another operation. Her trip to New York, planned for next week, has been postponed.

College Students Give Jobs as Film Extras

Dozens of college students who are working their way through various Southern California colleges and universities will find their financial burdens lightened, due to the foresight of Marion Davies, star of "The Fair Coed," which comes to the Penn next week. Miss Davies saw that all working students at these schools were given as much work as possible in her new college film in order that their earnings would help them in their struggles for a higher education.

There isn't a college in the country that wouldn't envy the big gymnasium, especially built and equipped for scenes in "The Fair Coed," recently produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It is said to be the best equipped gym in the nation. The picture was based on the play by George Ade and Gustav Luders and it was directed by Sam Wood.

More Education -:- Happy Family Group -:- Iron Hat Nifty

MARION DAVIES, as Cynthia in "The Fair Co-Ed," visits the college gym and learns some things that are not in text books—how to basket a ball, for one important thing.

CLARENCE KENYON SILLS, son of Milton and Doris Kenyon Sills, here faces the camera for the first time. After he becomes a little more of a veteran he will look more unconcerned. His parents work together next film, "Valley of Giants."

MARIA CORDA and Lewis Stone, in "The Private Life of Helen of Troy." Lew has just bought a new hardware suit and Maria is telling him he got gyped on the derby.

"Constant Nymph" Among Plays Coming

Monday evening, and for the balance of the week, there will be seen in the Nixon "The Constant Nymph," a play in three acts by Margaret Kennedy and Basil Dean. Beatrix Thomson and Claude Rains, head a cast including Betty Pratt, Sidney Paxton, Henry Carvill, Olive Reeves-Smith, Louis Sorin, Paul Ker, Vera Mellish and William Hallman.

Manager John B. Reynolds, of the Alvin, announced last night, at the end of the first day's sale of tickets for "My Maryland," which opens in the Alvin Monday night, was the heaviest on record. The first matinee will be given Wednesday.

Laura Hope Crewe comes to the Pitt Monday evening in "The Silver Cord." Sidney Howard's Theater Guild play. In the cast are, Melvyn Douglas, Pamela Simpson, Jack Livesey, Vera Allen and Hazel Stone.

Healy and Cross, appearing on the Keith-Albee vaudeville program in the Davis next week, specialize in songs. Phyllis Haver will be on the screen in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary."

GIGLI SINGS HERE TONIGHT

The concert season opens tonight when Beniamino Gigli, celebrated Metropolitan Opera tenor, makes his first appearance in Pittsburgh in the opening May Beegle concert in Syria Mosque. Gigli's program will include the Italian arias from "Martha," "L'Africaine," "Pagliacci," "Rigoletto" and other favorite operas. He will be assisted by Anne Tyson, contralto.

FINDS OLD GOLD HOARD

JIM CRAIG

Jim Craig, hardy prospector, who has devoted his life to learning the whereabouts of "Peg Leg" Smith's famous gold strike, is reported to have found Smith's hoard at last. It is about four miles from the recent Mulheisen gold discovery in the Piute Mountains, 266 miles east of Los Angeles.

TWO SUNDAY HIKES SCHEDULED BY CLUB

Two hikes have been scheduled for Sunday for the Pittsburgh Hiking Club. There will be an all-day hike, along Little Beaver River to Smith's Ferry, about 14 miles. Those taking this trip will take P. and L. E. train at 8:10 a. m. to Beaver. Those desiring a shorter afternoon hike will take Avalon car about 2 p. m. to Home avenue, and will walk through Lowry's Run to Emsworth.

MAN ARRESTED HERE FOR ATTACK ON MOTHER OF 17

Sam Hardick, 29, Greensburg Negro, accused of assaulting and robbing Mrs. Fannie Jacobs, mother of 17 children, at her home in that borough, was arrested in Denny street, Pittsburgh, by the state police yesterday and taken back to the Westmoreland county seat for trial.

Better Than Whiskey for Colds and Flu

To cut short a cold, cough or the flu and prevent complications, nothing gives such quick and delightful relief as Aspironal, the new, scientific "Liquid Cold Remedy" that clears the head; relieves congestion in the nose and throat; checks the excessive flow of mucus; banishes dull headaches and that chilly, achy feeling.

Aspironal is a complete Liquid Cold Remedy, acting gently on the liver and bowels, and your druggist is authorized to refund your money while you wait at the counter if you do not feel relief coming in two minutes. If your druggist cannot supply Aspironal, sent direct upon receipt of price, 50c. Aspironal Laboratories, Dept. 1, Atlanta, Ga.

2 RETURNED IN GARAGE THEFT

"An inside job," detectives said investigating the hold up and robbery of the Tenth Street Garage Wednesday night. An auto, $37 and some tools were stolen when a robber held up Richard Jones, 134 Crawford street, garage employe.

Yesterday state police arrested Jones and Frank Hilton, Monongahela Negroes, in Fredericktown, Md. with the auto and brought them to Pittsburgh. This morning they were held for court on charges of robbery and larceny by Magistrate George H. England.

AWAITING CAR, WOMAN DIES

While waiting on a car at Eighth avenue and Ann street, Homestead, at 9:30 o'clock this morning, Mrs. Arbella Mulligan, 57, Homestead Park, collapsed and when carried into a physician's office was pronounced dead. Heart disease is blamed.

DRIVER BADLY HURT AS CAR AND TROLLEY CRASH

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 21.—Raymond McCullough, 20, Waynesburg, Pa., is in Ohio Valley Hospital, the result of a collision of his auto with a street car. Alvin Reeves, his companion, escaped with a few scratches. The auto was wrecked.

Broken Butterflies

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHAT is lovelier than a cloud of gay butterflies, flitting aimlessly from flower to flower, on pleasure bent?

Yet, after all, how short is the life of the butterfly—possibly only a day! And how pathetic are butterflies when broken or crushed, because of their helplessness and stupidity!

Pitiful letters reach me now and then from girls who have lived for pleasure and learned, too late, that there are great moral laws governing life and love, which must be reckoned with.

To follow every impulse, never to say "No" to love or pleasure of the instant, sounds like an enchanting way of life to some girls. Drinking, necking, late hours, lawless, careless love may be a human right. But are they worth while, since they lead to misery, broken health, broken lives?

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes Frances, "I fell in love with a man. I thought he was good. I still love him.

"He took me driving for the first time one evening about two months ago. We got to necking. Then the situation got out of my control. I am ashamed to tell you what happened. I can't forget. I am almost a nervous wreck from remembering.

"When he sees me on the street he ignores me. What shall I do?"

At McKey's request I shall not print her letter. At sixteen Dickey was forbidden by her mother to marry the man she thought she loved. So she went ahead without marriage, feeling that love justified everything.

Now her lover has deserted Dickey and is going about with what she calls a "wild bunch." "If he does not come back to me soon," she writes, "I shall go to the bad."

"I have no one else to go to," writes "Broken Butterfly." "When I was little more than a child I went wrong. Now I am ashamed.

"I am nineteen and am going with a young man I dearly love. I am sure that very soon he will ask me to be his wife. Shall I tell him everything, even though I may lose his love?"

"I met a man at a party," Worried" states in her letter. "He asked to come to see me. Of course, as he had been introduced to me, I thought this was quite all right.

"After he came to see me several times he took me to visit his sister, who lives in the country. I cannot tell you what happened on the way home. I know there is no excuse. But I have no mother to advise me—only a step-mother—and I dare not go to her.

"When he learned the truth about the situation, he said he would marry me. But instead, he went away without telling me. I hear he is back in town. Please, please tell me what to do. I am just 16. I need help so. Something must be done soon. Shall I write to him? It is hard to humble my pride again."

The letters I have quoted show all too painfully the practical working out of the theory that every one has the right to pleasure regardless of others and of obedience to the great moral laws.

Emotion can be controlled. It is girls who set standards. All that makes progress, security, peace, love, joy possible for any of us is emotional control.

For you, dear girls who are in despair because you have made a tragic mistake, there is comfort and courage in the thought that you need never make the same mistake again.

Hold up your heads and determine, even though the battle may be uphill, to live down the past and build well for the future.

Girls who have not the loving help of a mother in their panic and terror over the approaching ordeal, or who dare not face their parents, should go either to the clergyman of their denomination or to the Salvation Army. The Army has lovingly, wisely aided thousands of girls in trouble and guided them back to the road leading to self-respect, success and, eventually, happiness and love.

Girls who get into tragic trouble are not by any means always bad at heart. They either begin by letting down barriers to self-respect in the way of drinking and necking, or else they yield because it is so hard to say "No" to a man who appeals to their trust and love.

There is always hope for such a girl and for every girl, provided she is determined to profit by her mistake and turn her face bravely toward a happier, nobler tomorrow.

Do not fail to tell the man who has asked to marry you about past mistakes, provided you really and truly respect and love him and wish to marry him. If he really loves you, he loves the woman you are today, not the girl you were yesterday. A man who refuses to forgive and trust you could not in any event make you happy long. So, be honest. Look forward to atoning in time for tragic mistakes and hope to find usefulness and happiness at last through love that is unselfish, understanding and true.

Fay King Forecasts Trousers for Women Soon

By FAY KING.

I BELIEVE it will only be a matter of time until an attractive style will be introduced for women to have trouser-like costumes for street wear.

These will be practical, modest, flattering, and not nearly so masculine in appearance as some of the severe tailored suits that women have worn.

Materials, color and embroidery will make them becoming and attractive. There will no longer be any worry about wind blown skirts that reveal too much.

The short skirt has been a wonderful convenience when walking. But it has also been inconvenient in sitting. What is often a pretty length when standing is too short when sitting.

There is nothing more flattering to a stout woman than graceful flowing folds of material. Her lines may not be slim, but at least it appears that this is due to her dress and not to her fat.

Why should she starve herself into a sharp temper, when looser clothing of indefinite lines can conceal the extra poundage? These few extra pounds are not only a difference in weight, but in disposition and health.

Those who raise their hands in horror at mention of trousers, thinking them too masculine, should remember they are not more so than skirts are purely feminine.

Ears Are Not Organs for Amateur Cures

HOW do you take care of your ears? Do you poke them with toothpicks, hairpins, pencils, or other devices?

It isn't a good thing to fuss with the ears. Most of the things you do are likely to damage two very necessary organs.

DR. COPELAND

For convenience of description, the ear is divided into three parts, known as the external, middle and internal ear. The external ear includes the outer trumpet-shaped organ, known to the doctors as the "pinna" and to everybody else merely as "the ear."

A tube runs inward from the outer opening in the pinna. This is the "ear canal," an hour-glass shaped passageway, about an inch long, ending at the drum-head, or "ear-drum," as it is commonly called.

The drum-head is a thin, flexible membrane, freely movable and having much to do with carrying the air vibrations to the other parts of the hearing organ. It is not absolutely essential to hearing and when it is destroyed by accident or disease, there is no great impairment of the hearing power.

It is dangerous to injure this structure, however. To do so may be the beginning of serious trouble with the vital parts of the hearing organ. For this reason you must not trifle with the ear. There is an old saying and a wise one, that you should put nothing in the ear but the elbow!

Nature has provided in a remarkable way for the protection of the ear-drum. She has arranged for a supply of sticky, disagreeable smelling wax to guard the ear canal against the entrance of dust and insects.

When man was first created he did not live under the cleanly conditions of modern civilization. He lived out-of-doors, slept on the ground and, of course, must have been overrun by insect life.

If there had been no flavored wax to repel the insects or to entangle the feet of the more venturesome ones, the ear canal of Adam would have been the resting place of many of the more humble dwellers in the Garden of Eden. But this provision of Nature guarded his ears better than his moral safeguards protected his conduct.

The wax glands are found just outside of the narrow part of the hour-glass shaped canal. You will see why this was their location. If the glands had been placed between the constricted portion and the ear-drum, gravity would have carried the wax downward and inward to fill up that end of the canal. This would have resulted in a plug of wax which would have shut out sounds.

To make doubly sure that the wax shall not reach the drum, Nature arranged for the renewal of the skin of the canal from within outward. This makes a sort of escalator or movable sidewalk, carrying the wax outward.

If you do nothing whatever to assist its removal, the wax will be carried outward and discharged. Everything you do blindly simply pushes the wax inward, through the narrow part of the canal.

If the wax does accumulate you must ask your doctor to remove it. By the gentle use of the syringe with soap and water it may be washed out without danger.

Answers to Health Queries

J. D. Q.—Is insulin a sure cure for diabetes?

2.—Would chills seemingly coming from the spinal column between the shoulders indicate a lung condition?

3.—I have an inward goitre and do not wish to be operated upon since I have been told that the trouble might develop into cancer or tumor. Is this correct? Would the violet ray be helpful?

A.—Insulin is not a cure but when it is taken, under the direction of a physician, the diet may be much broader and the condition improved.

2.—Not necessarily. Have the chest examined if you are uneasy.

3.—You must be guided by your doctor's judgment. Such an operation should not cause cancer or other growths. Your doctor will advise you.

* * *

B. N. R.—Q. I have large puffs under the eyes due to a heart condition. What would clear up the former? I cannot afford to see a doctor.

A. Rest will probably help you. Why not go to one of the large hospital clinics for advice regarding your particular condition?

S. B. S.—Q. Will tobacco affect the bowels—the ordinary chewing tobacco? Have been advised against its use by my doctor.

A. Follow your doctor's advice since he is naturally familiar with your condition.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Saturday, October 22

The planets are the vehicles of the great spirits who minister to His Will.—ALAN LEO.

THIS day is under the most propitious signs for advancement, accomplishment and the happy fruition of cherished ambitions. With Jupiter, Mars, Mercury, Neptune and the Luminaries in friendly aspect, it forms a congeries of stellar forces which aid and abet the direction of human effort into many avenues of achievement, with gain and expansion wherever the aims and the energies may be directed. It is a time for forging forward with vim and confidence.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of achievement, with success, expansion and fruition in whatever lines of endeavor the interests may direct the energies and ambitions. Employment and new projects are favored.

A child born on this day may have many talents and energies which should lead it into avenues of success and good position, with little opposition. It may be expected to make rapid rise in life.

Oily Skin?

Here is good news

If you are troubled with oily skin, enlarged pores or occasional face blemishes, try Listerine for a week or two. It is a natural astringent. And it gets results equal to those of preparations costing from three to five times as much.

Your skin will feel and look better from the moment you begin to use it—and your pocketbook will appreciate the saving. It is particularly effective as a treatment for oily skins and may be used full strength. For dryer, more delicate skins, it should be diluted.

How Fierce Competition Is Strengthening America.

— By B. C. FORBES —

TRIBULATIONS sometimes lead to triumphs. America's habit of flying to extremes, of grossly overdoing things, has helped to develop our unrivalled industrial efficiency and strength. How?

ELECTRIC refrigeration furnishes the latest example. As soon as electric refrigeration sprang into prominence new companies galore were launched. Shares of such projects were clamored for by the public. The demand was abundantly met. Here, there, everywhere, plants were started.

All went rip-snortingly for a time. Enthusiasm ran high. Glowing pictures were painted of electric refrigeration's possibilities. Why, every household was itching to install an ice-making machine.

THE inevitable happened. Excessive productive facilities were created. Competition for orders became intensely keen. Prices were cut.

The weaker concerns found themselves running into difficulties. Some fell by the wayside. Others incurred losses instead of profits and the quotations for their shares tumbled headlong.

The age-old battle for the survival of the fittest is still on. What will now happen?

THERE is happening and there will happen in electric refrigeration just what has happened and is happening in radio. America witnessed exactly similar developments when radio suddenly burst into vogue. Scores, even hundreds, of companies, good, bad and indifferent, were hurriedly formed. Business boomed and excitement ran high. Many became convinced that they had discovered a quick and certain way to wealth.

Then the inescapable reaction set in. The boom burst. Wreckage strewed the country. Thousands of unfortunate stockholders lost every dollar of their "investments."

BOTH electric refrigeration and radio are now entering a new and more solid era. There are emerging from the fierce fires of ruinous competition a limited number of strong companies. These companies have demonstrated their right to live. They have proved their ability to produce economically and to distribute successfully.

CAST your mind back and you will recall what happened at one stage of our telephone development—hundreds and hundreds of small companies were born, lived for a more or less limited period, then disappeared. The steel industry had a like experience before only a few giants were left following the organization of the United States Steel Corporation at the beginning of this century. In the electrical manufacturing field, General Electric and Westinghouse emerged as the two towering victors—but not until after they had run the gamut of severe competition from a multitude of competitors.

At this moment the weeding-out process is rampant in various other directions. Consider how many small utility companies are being absorbed by powerful corporations. Look at what is happening in the newspaper world. Gigantic railway mergers await only the sanction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

WHAT has this got to do with America's economic strength?

It has meant that extremely fierce competition has subjected American enterprises to the severest of tests and that, in order to survive, unusual ability and judgment and energy and efficiency have had to be exercised. The creation of excessive productive facilities has meant the elimination of all but those concerns capable of achieving the best and most economical results.

THUS it has come about that the temporary evils of cut-throat competition and surplus productive facilities have helped very greatly to strengthen the ability of American industry and business to compete effectively with foreign countries. Had there not been such grueling competition, and had there not been a drastic weeding-out process, our position at this time would have been calculated to create alarm in view of the determined preparations made by other countries to win from us foreign markets and to invade our domestic markets.

As it is, we should be thoroughly able to hold our own.

STOCK REACTION HALTED UNDER OILS' LEAD

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP.)—The reactionary movement in stock prices, which has been under way most of the week, was halted today. Some irregularity took place at the opening as a result of liquidation inspired by inability, or unwillingness to meet margin calls, but the market soon swung upward under the leadership of the oil shares, which have taken little part in the "bull" movements of the last few years.

Phillips Petroleum, which has been under pressure in recent weeks on fears for the safety of the dividend, led the advance in the oil group by climbing nearly 2 points on unofficial assurance that dividends would be maintained. Other oil issues advanced 1 to 2 points. Houston was an exception, selling off 3 points in the early afternoon on publication of an unfavorable earnings report.

Extreme gains in a number of high priced specialties such as Abitibi Power, American Machine and Foundry, American Tobacco issues, Fidelity-Phenix Insurance and Reasia Insurance, ran from 4 to 10 points.

Pools were again active in a number of specialties. A sudden outburst of buying in the preferred stocks of the National Railways of Mexico sent the A up 2 points to 16 a share and the B up 1 to 2½, both new highs. Underwood Typewriter advanced to a new high on the announcement that negotiations were pending for a merger with the Elliott-Fisher Company. Christie Brown and Columbia Carbon also reached new peaks.

Rails also moved upward after an early period of sluggishness with Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson and Chesapeake and Ohio in the forefront of the advance.

The closing was irregular. Selling of Lehigh Valley, which declined 5 points to 95½, the year's lowest, caused sympathetic reaction in other railroads and induced realizing in various industrials. Some stocks, however, continued to forge upward, especially independent oil and gas, Greene Cananea and Dodge preferred, the last named going close to 61 following President Wilmer's statement that fears for the dividend were unfounded. The stock had been down close to the year's lowest level. Total sales approximated 2,400,000 shares.

QUOTATIONS STEADY ON LOCAL STOCK EXCHANGE

New York Bond Market

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP.)—With new offerings in the past two weeks aggregating nearly half a billion dollars, trading in the listed bond market today was again quiet. Prices showed little change, as continued easy money conditions supplied a firm foundation.

Fractional gains were recorded by a few railroad issues, but buying appeared to be of a perfunctory character. International Great Northern 6s and Baltimore and Ohio 5s were taken in moderate amounts, and Erie 5s sold a small fraction under their peak price.

Industrials and utilities were given little attention, aside from nominal buying of Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit 6s, Loew 6s and Armour 4½s.

Italian bonds, which rallied yesterday, were again under pressure, and Mexican 6s lost 2½ points, selling only 1 point above their year's low. There was a little buying of the 6 per cent issue of the Republic of Colombia.

United States government securities were steady.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

PARTY BOLTING HELD ATTACK ON PRIMARY

The bolt of Controller C. C. McGovern and George B. Shields from the Republican ranks was viewed as an attack upon the direct primary system by Robert G. Woodside, Republican nominee for controller, in an address today at the noon meeting in Hotel Henry headquarters.

"I have always been in favor of the direct primary system and believe it ought to be respected not only in letter but in spirit," he said. "If we are to have a successful continuation of the open primaries we must not have violations in either letter or spirit and when men enter the primaries they must be bound by the decision of the voters of their party. The thing that will destroy it the quickest will be persistent disregard of it and its meaning by those who claim to be its best friends."

The inability of the present Controller to furnish the people with daily accurate statements of the county's financial condition "is not because of interference or obstruction by any other county office," Woodside said, pointing out that the Controller has a veto power on all expenditures. Miss Suzanne Beatty presided.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Annual Meeting. Special Matter.
Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the stockholders of United Engineering and Foundry Company will be held at the principal office of the company, 22 Farmers Bank Building, corner of Fifth avenue and Wood street, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on October 25, 1927, at 10 o'clock a. m. (Eastern Standard time), at which time, in addition to the election of directors and the transaction of regular business, the following, pursuant to resolutions of the Board of Directors duly passed at the meeting held July 28, 1927, will be submitted to the stockholders for their approval or disapproval:

First—The reduction of the authorized common capital par stock of the company from 75,000 shares to 69,353 shares and from a total par value of $7,500,000.00 to a total par value of $6,935,300.00.

Second—The conversion of the 69,353 shares of the common capital par stock into 416,118 shares of common capital stock without nominal or par value and the exchange of six shares of no par value stock for each share of the present 69,353 shares of the common capital par stock issued and outstanding.

Third—The fixing of the stated capital of the company applicable to the no par value common capital stock at $[illegible].

Fourth—Authorizing the $1,525,[illegible] of the capital of the company heretofore credited against the common capital par stock to be credited to surplus so that the same may be declared out in dividends from time to time at the discretion of the directors.

Fifth—The reduction of the authorized preferred capital stock of the company from 15,000 shares to 15,749 shares and from a total par value of $1,500,000.00 to a total par value of $1,574,900.00. Said 15,749 shares represent the now outstanding and issued preferred capital stock.

Sixth—Amending Article VIII, Section 1 of the By-Laws, to make the certificate for the common stock read "without nominal or par value," instead of a par value.

Seventh—Various other amendments to the By-Laws, a copy of the proposed amendments having been mailed in accordance with the By-Laws, to each stockholder.

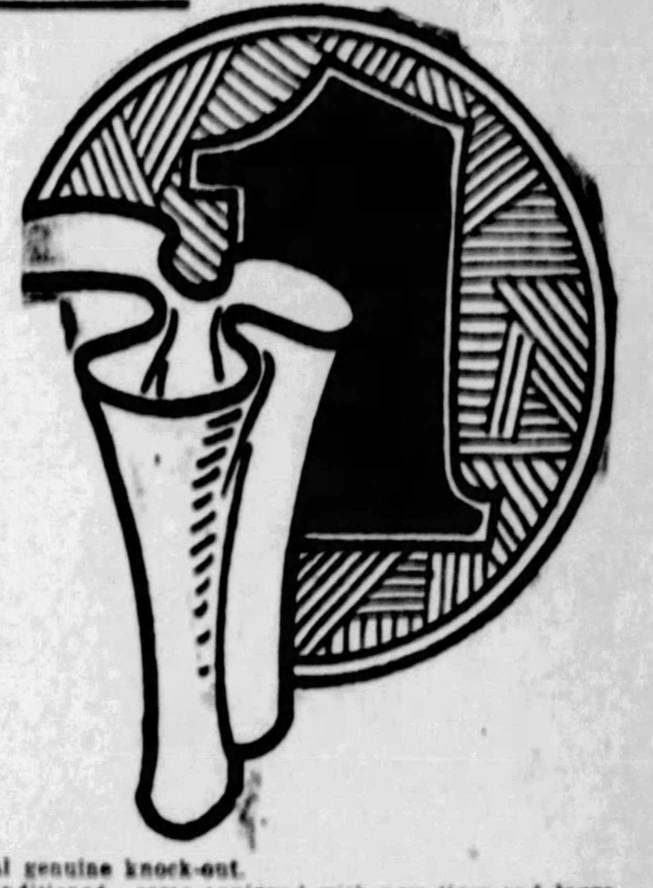
DOLLAR AUTO SALE

CARS



OCTOBER 22nd to 30th

One Dollar Actually Buys a Good Used Car

NOT ONE DOLLAR DOWN---BUT ONE DOLLAR PAYS FOR THE CAR COMPLETE

This is our first clearance sale. It will long be remembered. We will GUARANTEE to sell automobiles cheaper at this sale than they have ever been sold in the history of the country.

Each and every unit will represent TREMENDOUS VALUE.

In this sale are cars of all standard makes. The prices might seem ridiculous, but we are determined to move this entire stock (at once).

All cars have been reduced to the lowest level.

We will not sell automobiles at this sale to automobile dealers.

We will sell only one car to each buyer. We will not sell any of these cars to people in our employ.

Our cars will range in prices from $1, $10, $25, $50, $100, $200, $300, $400 and up. Cars all in good, serviceable condition. All standard makes. The terms of sale are cash for all cars up to $50; on other cars 40% in cash, balance in reasonable monthly or weekly payments.

ONE DOLLAR CARS

To be sold Sat., 8:30 p. m.: No. 942—762—847
To be sold Sund., 1 p. m.: No. 940—763—810
To be sold Mond., 1 p. m.: No. 913—805—754

NOTE—The first customers to sit behind the steering wheels of the "Dollar Cars" will be purchasers. Every car numbered. All Dollar Cars displayed in with our large stocks of cars and trucks. Remember the Dollar numbers.

You are invited to inspect these cars Wednesday, Thursday, Friday. Price will be so low as to amaze you. This sale is going to be a "knock-out"—a real genuine knock-out.

No Cars Sold Before Saturday, 8:30 p. m.
$25 DEPOSIT REQUIRED ON ALL CARS

BUGS BAER Says

THE average American has been discovered living well below the average in Iowa.

He lives in an average town, on an average street, has an average wife, four average children, drives an average car and goes crazy on the average of six days out of the week.

He was discovered, of course, by no less than the average nut who is trying to keep the wolf away from the front door while the squirrel creeps in the back window.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

The American who was thus honored with a minority report was found by experts who used a weather chart, a map and the census reports.

They should have also used a paper hat, a tire gauge, an elapsed street car transfer and a package of bird seed.

However we are indebted to the registered statistician who acquaintes the average American for some very helpless household hints.

He sleeps eight hours a night. This makes a total of ten slumber hours when you include the movies.

He is a party man in national politics, but in Pullman smokers he is a Republican if the other guy happens to be a Democrat.

His attitude on prohibition is puzzling. When he goes down into the cellar to stoke the furnace he carries a glass instead of a shovel.

Foreign news is below zero to him, but he reads presidential speeches from beginning to finish, indicating that he is a glutton for mild cheers in brackets and hoots in parenthesis.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE d'ALROY

ON "THE PRICE OF A PEDESTAL"

SOME wives think
That their HUSBANDS are NOT their equals
MENTALLY.
Perhaps they are RIGHT!

But it is HARD to tell,
ALL wives, of course, are QUITE remarkable.
Most of them DEMAND
That their husbands make MUCH money,
Yet they BEGRUDGE the
Time this takes,
They reproach them for
NOT enjoying the OPERA,
The Art Gallery,
Or other HIGH-BROW
Institutions, yet THEY INSIST on being EXQUISITELY dressed. And
THIS takes dollars as well as TASTE,
NO woman should call
Her husband DOWN
When HE is working to Put her UP
On the PEDESTAL
That HE is paying for.

Farm Engineers Here Sign of City's Prestige

Commenting on the meeting here of the North Atlantic section of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, Dr. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, said Pittsburgh's importance as an electrical center determined the selection of this city as a meeting place for the agricultural engineers. "... felt that our prestige as an industrial city had been heightened by electrical development which attracted the interest of our rural cousins.

That is a true but purposely limited statement. Our position in the electrical world touches all parts of the geographic sphere. The motor that runs the milking machine on an Iowa dairy farm and the electric locomotive that hauls trains over South American mountains are products of the great shops of Pittsburgh. Radios the world over are powered with Pittsburgh batteries and vivified with Pittsburgh "tubes." The toaster in the breakfast nook of the suburban home is a Pittsburgh blood cousin of the huge dynamos that take the power of coal and water and transform it into an obedient servant of the humble and the great.

Pittsburgh electrical devices save billions and billions in labor. The other day "Bugs" Baer took an electrical show as his topic for a humorous article, stating facetiously that it was an indication that "we are now dodging the world's greatest era of industry." That thought, expressed to bring a laugh, is a big one. We are dodging work. But it is unnecessary work that we formerly had to do. We are dodging it to enable us to do more of the work we have to do and cannot dodge. Electricity is our great ally in this "artful dodger" act.

Children Educate Parents

This Small Boy's Prayer Illustrates That Fact.

Mr. Farwell, of Chicago, sends the touching verse printed below, taken from the Winnetka, Ill., Congregational Church Bulletin:

THE TWO PRAYERS.

Last night my little boy confessed to me
Some childish wrong:
And, kneeling at my knee,
He prayed with tears—
"Dear God, make me a man
Like daddy—wise and strong:
I know you can."
Then while he slept
I knelt beside his bed,
Confessed my sins,
And prayed with low-bowed head
"O God, make me a child
Like my child here—
Pure, guileless,
Trusting Thee with faith sincere."

—Andrew Gillies.

Those verses are more than charming and touching. They illustrate a most important truth in the progress of the human race, which is the fact that CHILDREN EDUCATE THEIR PARENTS.

Savage mothers, touched by the helplessness of their children, worked to make the world better for the children's sake and for their comfort and safety.

Human beings changed from nomads, roaming from place to place, without settled habitations, because of the mothers' desire to save children from the dangers and fatigue of constant wandering.

The first wild animals were tamed by savage mothers for their children's sakes. The first crops were planted FOR THE CHILDREN.

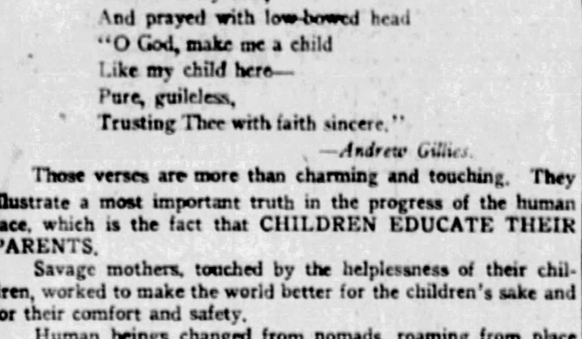
Fathers and mothers should read a little book by the Rev. Mr. Drummond, called "The Ascent of Man."

One chapter of this book, which is admirable throughout, shows an old male gorilla, staying awake all night at the foot of the tree, to protect the young gorilla above, thus illustrating the civilizing effect that children have had upon their parents. It began with lower animals.

Men and women are what their children have made them. Providence has worked through the child to civilize the father, and through the mother to cure the father's brutality.

How Would You Like This?

Newest 1,000 Horse Power Racing Car



THE 1,000 HORSE POWER "SUNBEAM" RACER

Many a young man's heart will beat faster as he looks at this car and imagines the fun he could have sitting in there, throwing everything wide open and eating up the road.

The engines of this car, recently completed, concentrate the power of 1,000 horses into speed. The machine, expected to break all records on the level and on hill-climbing, looks like some strange monster out of prehistoric time.

It takes nerve to drive this machine around corners or to open up its full speed. Such an automobile, of course, is not suited to modern conditions. Roads are not flat enough, the law would not allow it to develop its full speed except on a specially prepared track or sandy beach.

But what a thrill you could get from the "jump" of this car as the power was turned on!

The way to get such a car is not merely to LONG for it, but to WORK FOR IT. That is what the men did that built it. That's what Lindbergh did before he got the machine that carried him across the ocean to glory. And everybody, Lindbergh included, will tell you that the greater part of the fun is THE WORKING before you get what you want.

Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Thoughts while strolling: A calliope advertises auto washing. Bob Davis and Irvin Cobb. An archery school. A shivering street preacher haranguing Wall Street. The bachelor hotel where George Jean Nathan lives.

Those derbied, pipe-smoking men who stand near bank entrances. Trying not to look like private detectives. The linen-dustered British clerks at Dunhill's. Florists' window cats. Whatever became of that movie salary cut? Hand-carved doors with big brass knobs, behind which slave underpaid clerks.

Youngsters of easy means who breakfast at 11. The silence around the Yacht Club. A policeman looks at a beribboned dog sleeping on a pink pallet in a limousine. And shakes his head. Ladies with wistful eyes and crooked smiles.

The shawled, gray and expressionless women sitting crouched in the gloom of newspaper hutches. And corner sports who prattle of a future that never comes. A crowd watching a musician step from a taxi with a big, coiling French horn.

Keats Speed, the editor. Who has a Southern drawl. The noon-day meeting of women who want to be economically independent and emotionally free. Those police horses that stand perfectly still while masters sneak off somewhere to smoke a cigaret.

A Tammany leader who wears shoes with light cloth tops. Sign: "Unobtrusive jewelry." And a beauty parlor warns: "Our charge accounts limited to $5." A deadly spider in a drug store window jar. Ewing Galloway, the photographer, and his Kit Carson coon-skin cap.

Eager matinee girls. The eternal Broadway jangle. And incessant rush nowhere. Impudent pedestrians, thoughtless motorists and traffic Mussolinis. The actress whose face is scarred by artificial sunburning. Cafeteria clatter and excavation booms. Par as we go. All out!

Many theatrical producers are known by some special quirk of dress. Ziegfeld for his lavender and blue collars. Lee Shubert for his white vest edging. A. L. Erlanger for his cap. Al Woods for his pulled-down hat. David Belasco for his trick clerical collar. George White for his polka dot ties. Arthur Hopkins for his dark blue suits. Edgar Selwyn for his tweeds. Charles Dillingham for his richly colored ties. Ted Hartis for his need of a shave. And as for actors, well there are Lou Mann's wide winged collars, Lowell Sherman's monocle, George M. Cohan's walking sticks, Jack Buchanan's double-breasted dinner coats and Walter Catlett's flowing bow ties. The best known sartorial misogynic crissy of all was the late Valentino's slave bracelet.

Orchids are almost passe this season for decorating ladies in evening dress. The Mayfairish thing is a row of six gardenias worn over the shoulder. Gardenias may be worn with any color and orchids can not. The demand for gardenias has sky-rocketed the prices. The single blue cornflower is worn in the gentleman's dinner lapel.

* * *

Filipino servants are in great demand among bachelors, especially as valets. Our Valet Espionage Department reports the best have been trained by high army officers in Manila and that among their virtues are silence, no desire for evenings off and a deft and dignified system of handling unwelcome callers and telephone calls.

* * *

And top excellence in lady's maid is reported on Park avenue. She is an Esquimo girl brought to her mistress by an uncle who was an explorer. She has been in service 15 years and in that time has never asked for a day off, a rise in salary or suffered an hour's illness. Furthermore her diversion is to clean the silver and brighten the mirrors—occupations that entrance her.

La Barba

By DR. FRANK CRANE

There is a young man going to school at Stanford University who is quite remarkable in many ways.

This young man seems to have learned the first lesson in all education. That first lesson is to take yourself off other people's backs. If a man has never learned that, nothing else that he learns will do him much good.

The most important thing in one's career in this world is the ability to stand on his own feet, and the greatest calamity that can happen to a human soul, so far as has been reported, is to be endowed.

The Biblical command to earn our food by the sweat of our brow seems to be founded on mighty good economics. It may be the curse of Deity upon man, but if so the curse of Deity is better than the blessing of mankind.

The strange thing about it all is that this young man has earned his living in a peculiar way while going to high school. He has been prize fighting during his school days and climbed to the eminence of being the fly-weight champion.

At this queer business it is said that he has amassed $200,000 or so.

But the queer thing about it all is that he now gives up his career as a bruiser and his alluring prospects of cash and elects to go to a university.

He has not only been exceptional in athletics, but is a young man of good habits, quiet and well-behaved, and also has managed to be among the foremost, intellectually speaking, of his class. His marks are A-1.

He may disappear. School prodigies have a way of settling down into clerks. The man who was foremost in all athletics and in his studies when I went to school became principal of the high school and, as far as I know, never got any farther, yet some of the runts of the class made circles all around him in the way of success.

Sometimes the boy who is expelled from school turns out to be the leading man of the town and employs the school genius at $40 a week. You never can tell.

But it is a good idea just the same to keep your eye on La Barba. He has started off right, no matter whether he gets anywhere or not, and it is a safe bet that he will amount to something.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

Einstein and Newton

EINSTEIN disputes Newton's idea that gravitation is a force, acting between all the particles of matter and tending to draw separate bodies together, with an intensity that varies directly with the mass of the bodies and indirectly with the square of their distance apart. But Einstein does not dispute the fact that Newton correctly describes the effects produced by the gravitational "force," nor that his mathematical rules for calculating and predicting these effects give correct results. What Einstein contends is that gravitation, instead of being a force acting upon matter in the way described by Newton, is—well, what shall we say? The Einsteinians themselves are unable to define it except by mathematical symbolism. All attempts to put it into common words lead only to confusion and incomprehension. Usually it is stated that gravitation is an effect primarily due to the "curvature of time-space," and that its various manifestations arise from the "distortion of time-space in the presence of matter." (The universe is conceived as made up of time-space, "a four-dimensional continuum," time standing for the fourth dimension).

Professor E. T. Whittaker, a British authority on this subject, has lately offered the following definition:

"Gravitation simply represents a continued effort of the universe to straighten itself out," which, he adds, "is general relativity in a single sentence." And we may add that to the reader who has not specially studied the subject, Professor Whittaker's definition must be verbal and of extraordinary spissitude.

The Einstein theories are undergoing continued development by different mathematical physicists, and fundamental changes may occur at any time in some of their features. Meanwhile it is wisest for the layman to "stick to his Newton." Newton's "law" is not really concerned with the inherent nature of gravitation, but only with the calculation and prediction of its observable effects, and how little occasion there is for anybody but a specialist to concern himself about Einstein or Relativity may be seen by the following statement from Russell, Dugan and Stewart's recent revision of Young's "Manual of Astronomy," a work of standard authority:

"In all but a few instances the consequences of the new theory" (Einstein's) "agree with those of Newton's laws, far within the accuracy of the most refined observations, so that the older and far simpler mathematical methods are still to be employed in practice." But "the observations favor the new theory."

What Price Education?

A WORD to college boys and girls:

Have you ever thought that it requires sacrifice on the part of your parents to send you away to college?

If their income is comparatively small, do you know what it means to them to provide the money for you to go?

Putting you through college may deprive your parents of the money they should have in their old age fund. When are you going to pay it back?

Is it any more than right that you should consider your necessary expenses which are advanced by your parents as a debt you owe?

There are many broken homes today because too much has been spent on children who have made no effort to reimburse their parents.

Powerful Sermon

Editor, THE SUN-TELEGRAPH:

I want to send you a word expressing how deeply impressed I was with Powers' sketch and the accompanying article. To me it was one of the most powerful sermons in print I can conceive of. You have done untold good for the mind of the young in this sketch and word picture, brought out in last Sunday's Sun-Telegraph. Thanking you,

Very truly yours,
WILLIAM PORKESS,
Rector, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.

My Thanks

ONE left his riches all to me, the gold he held so dear, his home beside the singing sea, his lands both far and near. Oh, he had toiled for long years through to hoard that golden store, and all of joy his dull days knew lay but in grasping more. Fair are the goods his gold will buy and fair the seaside home where waits to rest the weary eye, green wave and snow-flecked foam. I thank him from a grateful heart, yet to another give of gratitude the larger part with every day I live. For one his wisdom wisely spent and when he went to rest he left me dowered with content, with cheer and courage blest.

Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister

FOR over 60 years Edison has kept the trail to the patent office warm. Since his first patent (for the electric vote recorder) issued in October, 1868, the records show that over 1,150 patents have been taken out in his name. The picture symbolizes Edison's frequent contact with the patent office.

EDISON commands a high degree of loyalty from his employes. One exception was a dishonest patent attorney who sold 78 of Edison's patent applications on electric-lighting inventions. In Edison's own words, the incident "has left a sore spot in me that has never healed."
